Income Tax Dropped for Realty Levy In D. C. Bill

House Forces Change by Threat of Denying Special Rule.

Passage Due Today Despite Opposition

Committee Sulks, Yields as Leaders Crack Whip on Revenue Measure.

By James D. Secrest.

With a 20-cent realty tax increase substituted for an income levy, the omnibus District tax bill will be called up in the House today under a special rule.

House leaders, still smarting under criticism of the House revolt against a tax on salaries of members of Congress, cracked the whip and forced the District Committee to reverse its stand for an income tax.

The House Rules Committee, following a hearing, delivered an ultimatum to Chairman Kennedy and his colleagues on the local tax subcommittee: either committee should change its vote or there would be no special rule.

While openly resentful at first, the District Committee capitulated at a special meeting and voted to make the change demanded by Speaker Bankhead, Majority Leader Rayburn and the powerful Rules Committee.

Sees "Irony" in Stand.

Representative Cole (Republican), of New York, a member of the subcommittee, remarked it was "ironical" House leaders stood steadfast against the District income tax after President Roosevelt had indorsed it and in the face of a Congressional inquiry into national tax-dodging.

The champion of an income tax that would tap the salaries of members of Congress, Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, expressed regret the levy was stricken from the bill.

He stated he will offer an amendment on the House floor to have it restored.

All indications, however, point to the prompt passage of the bill today with probably a few restrictive amendments. As the threat of personal taxation has been removed, the House is expected to impose the $6,000,000 in taxes on District residents with its customary unconcern over local legislation.

$2,500,000 Boost.

A 20-cent increase in the realty tax will raise an additional $2,500,000, District officials estimate, whereas estimates on the income tax varied from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000.

The speical rule limits general debate to one hour, but leaves the bill open for any number of amendments from the floor.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, stated he will be prepared to expedite the passage of the measure when it reaches the Senate providing it is satisfactory to the District Commissioners and Washington citizens.

Despite his illness, Senator King said he will call the District Committee together immediately after the bill reaches the Senate.

Unless there is a strong demand from the District heads or organized citizenry for drastic changes in the bill, he indicated, the committee may pass upon it without any extensive hearings. If there is such a demand, however, the measure will be referred to a subcommittee.

While he has long been an advocate of a local income tax, Senator King intimated he would not press the issue at this time. He stated, moreover, he believed a small increase in the realty rate is justified.

The District Committee, before adopting a motion by Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to substitute a realty tax hike for the income tax, rejected by a vote of 8 to 1 a motion to exclude property assessed at less than $8,000.

The motion was made by Representative Sacks (Democrat), Pennsylvania, who indicated he will offer a similar amendment on the House floor.

Hearing of the Kennedy sub-com-

Roosevelt Calls Parley To Heal Party Breach

Democratic Legislators to Confer With President at 3-Day Series of Sessions Next Week at Jefferson Island Clubhouse.

By William V. Nessly.

Facing a well-defined and spreading split in his party's ranks in Congress, President Roosevelt yesterday arranged to participate in an unprecedented three-day series of conferences to which the 407 Capitol Hill Democrats will be invited to bring their complaints, their questions and their suggestions.

The "harmony meeting" was scheduled after the President, for weeks, had watched a growing revolt against numerous major phases of the New Deal program, had seen the party split wide open over his court reorganization bill and had felt scattered outbreaks of marked hostility to various others of his suggestions. Instances are:

Allocation of relief funds and the extent to which States and communities should share in the cost have brought bitter discord. Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, speaking yesterday on "political orders" given on relief, shouted to the Senate: "I do not intend to worship before the altars behind which they minister as high priests."

The spending program has found powerful Senators arrayed against the Administration, demanding immediate economy and a closer approach to a budget balance.

Wages-and-hours legislation, exemplifying the New Deal labor policy, has brought a definite cleavage, with some at the Capitol insisting it go over until next session.

The President's proposal for reorganization of the executive branch has added to the discord.

Suggested legislation on tax evasion, housing and farm tenancy have brought differences sharply to the surface.

Drastic changes have been made in the Executive's bill to make a permanent organization of the civilian Conservation Corps. His veto of the war risk insurance bill was overridden.

Into such a picture the planned peace conference was projected by Presidential lieutenants on Capitol Hill.

Late in the afternoon of Thursday, June 24, the President, with his immediate advisers, will retire, via Annapolis, to secluded Jefferson Island, in Chesapeake Bay, just off Claiborne, Md.

There, on the following morning, will come the first contingent of House and Senate members for a full day of conferring, visiting and sports.

Until 5 p. m., the time will be spent in ironing out differences, conferring on matters of policy and seeking to bring about a better understanding between the Executive on the one hand and House and Senate members on the other. Boats will return the Congress

Publicity Glare To Turn Today On Tax Evaders

Morgenthau Ready for Role of Exposer as Joint Inquiry Opens.

By Sidney Olson.

The arena was freshly sprinkled with sawdust yesterday to catch the heads of the victims, the guillotine was oiled to flashing perfection and the lord high executioner—otherwise known as Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., went through a brisk dress rehearsal for his role in the spotlight.

Thus, figuratively, could yesterday's grim preparations be described—preparations for one of Washington's biggest shows, the revelation of the names of the Nation's chief tax avoiders and tax evaders.

Confer With President.

Secretary Morgenthau, accompanied by Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill, visited the White House yesterday for a conference with President Roosevelt. Today the Secretary will be the center of attention in the huge House Ways and Means hearing room, where the joint committee investigating tax evasions and avoidances will meet.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, and also chairman of the investigating committee, and Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and vice chairman of the tax group, were present at the White House during the President's interview with Treasury officials.

Procedure was outlined and the situation carefully explored, it was learned, in a sort of dress rehearsal for the inquiry today, when Secretary Morgenthau, the first and thus far the only witness, is expected to name the wealthy citizens who allegedly have dodged the clutches of the tax collectors.

"Venomous Nonsense."

A newspaper story that Republican members of the investigating groups were preparing to point to the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and others of the "first family" as tax avoiders was assailed throughout the day yesterday as members mentioned indignantly denied any such action was contemplated.

Democratic members were also bitter about the piece, assailing it as "ridiculous and venomous nonsense." Representative Fred M. Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, one of the leading tax experts in Congress, attacked it as "completely unjustified," and asserted the suggestion of Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, the other day that President Roose-

Bailey Seeks Senate Watch On WPA Outlay

Proviso for Localities to Share Cost Meets Wall of Opposition.

By Robert C. Albright.

Surveillance by a special Senate committee over future WPA outlays was called for in the Senate yesterday by Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, following bitter criticism of Harry L. Hopkins and alleged political use of relief funds.

The speech climaxed four hours of Senate controversy on Southern Democratic efforts to shift 40 per cent of relief costs upon local communities able to bear it. Bailey's attack upon WPA pictured Senators "sitting like beggars on their doorsteps," awaiting "political orders."

Sponsored by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, the 40 per cent "matching" proposal encountered a stone wall of Administration opposition.

Spirited debate followed charges by Bailey and Byrnes that New York and other big Eastern cities have received an undue portion of relief money. Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, countered with charges of "provincialism."

LaFollette Answers Byrnes.

Byrnes argued "recovery has taken place," that local communities are financially able to assume more of the burden and ease the Federal debt. Rising in hot rebuttal, Senator Robert M. LaFollette (Progressive), Wisconsin, said recovery had returned only to wealthy taxpayers and "coupon clippers." Two stalwart Administration men, Senators Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, and Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, disputed capacity of localities to carry the load.

Then Bailey rose in a peroration to Byrnes' economy plea. He proposed a Senatorial committee to scrutinize relief outlays and serve as a restraining influence, then lashed out at Hopkins.

"What are we that we should turn over $1,500,000,000 to a man like Harry Hopkins?" Bailey shouted. "And who is he that we should place our confidence in him?"

Bailey said Congress appropriates money "knowing that they can surround us, and they can have all sorts of demands made upon us, and they can refuse us our projects."

He said a Senatorial committee would have no actual "power" but at least it would supply information on how the money was spent.

"They give us political orders, and if we disobey, we are told our consciences should hurt," continued Bailey. "Conscience! What did he mean by that. Conscience refers to Deity. He meant political conscience. He referred to God in their political

Both Parties In Johnstown Ask U. S. Aid

Mayor Shields Requests Roosevelt Remove 'Murderous' Group

Murray to Confer With Miss Perkins Over Steel Election.

On The Labor Front.

Mayor Daniel J. Shields of strike-embroiled Johnstown, Pa., and Phillip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, called for Federal intervention to end the walkout of 100,000 steel workers.

A suppressed newsreel was brought to light, showing Chicago police beating defenseless strikers during recent riots which resulted in eight deaths.

The Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association charged John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, with violation of the United Mine Workers contract in calling on members not to load coal for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Phillip Murray arrived in Washington for the Senate hearing today on the steel strike.

Intervention Sought.

By the Associated Press.

Johnstown, Pa., June 16.—Strike-embroiled Johnstown's Mayor Daniel J. Shields appealed to President Roosevelt tonight for direct intervention to "remove the murderous element that now infests the city."

Still another appeal for Federal intervention—renewing pressure on the White House to take active steps in the 7-State labor strife that has made more than 100,000 workmen idle—came from Phillip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

Murray arranged to meet Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins tomorrow to discuss the possibility of an election on employe representation, supervised by the National Labor Relations Board.

No immediate hope of peace was in sight, however.

Nor was there any save negative reaction to President Roosevelt's views that steel companies should be willing to sign labor agreements if they are willing to make them verbally.

On this question of signed contracts hinges the whole dispute, with the four independent steel companies—Republic, Bethlehem, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube—persistently refusing to sign contracts with John L. Lewis' C. I. O.

Back-to-Work Move Halted.

Any settlement seemed far in the offing tonight.

Two men were stabbed, one critically, tonight in a brief flurry of violence at the Franklin gate of the strike-besieged Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The Cambria works has been strike-bound since Saturday over refusal of Bethlehem to sign work contracts.

A back-to-work movement by 10,000 non-strikers in Youngstown, Ohio, collapsed for the time being, at least, when Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet & Tube, declined to reopen the mills until he receives assurance of protection from civil authorities.

C. I. O. chiefs scored the "back-to-work" movement as having been inspired by "the professional strike-breaker, Pearl Bergoff."

At Bay City, Mich., leaders of a picket line, 1,000 strong, attempting to enforce a strike at the Bay Manufacturing Co., warned that they would send pickets inside the plant to eject nonunion workers unless the factory closed.

An attempt by Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio to find a peaceful solution to the mounting crisis received a setback when Tom Girdler, president of Republic Steel, sent his "regrets" that he would be unable to attend Gov. Davey's peace conference tomorrow, and reaffirmed "our determination not to sign the C. I. O. contract."

Explaining his refusal to sign a contract as demanded by C. I. O., Girdler said C. I. O. has "broken numerous contracts," adding:

"Would you, yourself, sign a contract with a man who clubs his

White Russian Head Kills Self, Hundreds Seized for Treason In Soviet's Greatest Purge

Citizens Flee As Big Shells Rock Bilbao

Counter Attack Beaten Back; Death Threat Dropped by Planes.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 16.—A bitter aerial and artillery duel terrorized Bilbao today. Many were buried beneath shell-wrecked homes and thousands of women and children fled the city in panic.

Dispatches reaching the border from Bilbao said houses were splintered by 12-inch shells from insurgent artillery. It was believed they were fired from German-made guns. It was almost impossible to walk through the streets without hearing the screams of wounded inhabitants. They said only "Death wreckage, said refugees reaching here.

Insurgent warplanes droned over the city to drop bombs and warning leaflets to the frightened inhabitants. They said only "death awaits you. (Signed) Franco."

Basque artillery and planes launched a fierce counter attack, but this was beaten back, the insurgent radio station at Durango reported.

Officials Take Flight.

The first considerable flight of Basque officials was reported tonight. Six members of the Bilbao maritime police command and the harbor master at Las Arenas, nearby resort town, arrived at St. Jean de Luz in a small motorboat.

Three hundred additional Basque children were unloaded at the French port of Pauillac by the Spanish government destroyer Jose Luiz Diez.

French refugees reaching border points near here reported the populace of Bilbao was in near panic.

"All roads, paths and trails are clogged with the thousands fleeing the invaders throughout the countryside," one refugee said.

Insurgent air bombs cut the Santander road, which had been Bilbao's principal exit to the west. Insurgent batteries commanded the Nervion River leading from Bilbao to the sea and turned back any vessels attempting to enter the port.

Refugees asserted Basque President Jose Antonio Aguirre remained in the city vowing to die there rather than surrender the capital to the insurgents.

Many Basque militiamen were reported to have gone over to the insurgent forces, accusing the Basque government of deceiving them about the reputed invincibility of the city's "iron ring" defenses, smashed by the insurgents.

Insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco's forces held positions on three sides of the city, leaving only the Nervion River to be crossed and the heights on the west to be occupied before an order for occupation.

Way Reported Clear.

With the Insurgents, Galdacano, Spain, June 16 (AP).—A Basque tobacconist, Miguel Uriguen, walked unmolested today from besieged Bilboa through the insurgent lines to this battered post behind the front lines of Gen. Fidel Davila.

"I saw no Basque soldiers at all—the way into the city is perfectly clear," said the amazed shopkeeper.

That seemed to be precisely the

Kurds Lose 5,000 As Revolt Fails

Istanbul, June 16 (AP).—The government today announced more than 5,000 Kurdish rebels were killed or wounded in suppression of a revolt in the Dersim region of eastern Turkey.

Official documents disclosed 25,000 troops, equipped with aircraft, stamped out the insurrection, under way for three months.

The government declared the situation was well in hand although rebel leaders, reported to be Habeb Kijo and his son, escaped after being wounded and were hiding in the mountains.

Europe Today

Premier Van Zeeland, Prisoner During World War Days, Leads Europe in Co-operative Effort Toward Peace and Recovery.

This sixth article in a series by Felix Morley, editor of The Post, offers an interesting insight into the visit here this month of Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium. The premier is to arrive in New York tomorrow and expects to confer with President Roosevelt and others in Washington next Wednesday.

By Felix Morley.

Copyright, 1937, The Washington Post.

Brussels, June 8.—A meeting of very great importance to the cause of peace will take place in Washington when Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium visits the White House on June 23.

The conversations to be held between President Roosevelt and the Belgian Premier are significant in themselves, for under the leadership of Dr. Van Zeeland this little country is rapidly establishing itself as the spearhead of economic recovery in western Europe. But the latent possibilities go much further than the field of Belgian-American relations, which in themselves pose no serious difficulties of any kind.

Dr. Van Zeeland, a young man of the war generation, is revisiting the United States partly to be awarded the degree of LL. D. by Princeton, where he was a post-graduate student in 1921. But he comes also with a purpose of far more general interest than is provided by the bestowal of this well-deserved academic honor. With the prior knowledge, and the hearty approval, of both the British and French governments Dr. Van Zeeland is traveling to America to further, as opportunity affords, the cause of international economic reconstruction.

Although Dr. Van Zeeland is the Premier of Belgium, and although in Washington he will consult with President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and other Administration leaders, the informality of his visit must be emphasized. It is, in his own words, entirely an "exploratory mission."

In particulars, Dr. Van Zeeland seeks nothing whatsoever from the United States:—no agreement, no commitment, no pledge, no understanding of any kind. But in general he comes to ascertain whether or not the United States is willing to place its enormous influence behind the constructive forces now struggling for the upper hand in Europe. The Americans talk a lot about peace; what are they willing to do to secure it? That is the question on which this statesman, whose Spectacular $25,000 Ceremony Jams Traffic for Blocks as 15,000 Mass About Church, Delaying Bridal Attendants and Guests.

Hollywood, June 16 (AP).—Jeanette MacDonald and Jean Raymond were married tonight in the most spectacular wedding in Hollywood history, attended by more than 1,000 movie stars and film figures. She is 30 years old. He is 29.

The ceremony, held at a fashionable Wilshire boulevard church, attracted more than 15,000 spectators, who lined the streets for blocks around and spread their automobiles on the side streets for more than a mile.

The wedding came after a year of what Hollywood called "the perfect romance." Neither Miss MacDonald, red haired singing star, nor Raymond has ever been married.

Friends estimated that the wedding cost $25,000.

It was the essence of formality with white-gloved ushers, a long pink ribbon down the aisles, candles and thousands of roses.

The bridal gown was of flesh pink mousseleine over taffeta of the same color. The dress having a redingote top with long, full sleeves, a high neck, lace collar and a tiny bouquet of flowers. The skirt was full, with a long, full train.

The veil was a pink tulle. From a shell-shaped lace cap, a short veil extended over the tulle. The cap edged with flowers. The bride carried a gold embroidered pink satin prayer book used in the ceremony.

She was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Anna MacDonald. The ceremony, a Methodist Episcopal ritual, was performed by the Rev. Willsie Martin. Bridal attendants were Fay Wray, Ginger Rogers, Mrs. Warren Rock, Mrs. Richard Hargreaves, Mrs. John John Mack Brown. Best man was Robert Marlow, brother of the groom. Harold Hargreaves, Mrs. John Mack Brown, Basil Rathbone, Richard Hargreaves and Warren Rock were ushers.

Wild excitement prevailed outside the church before, during and after

Information Shows Nash Wed as Midshipman At Academy.

Ensign Charles A. Nash, jr., who graduated from Annapolis two weeks ago, yesterday had his commission canceled by the Navy after it had been reported he had been married since last August.

Navy spokesmen said Nash's case was without duplicate in Navy history. Midshipmen at the Academy, who are forbidden to marry, occasionally resign from the service after a sudden elopement. Ensigns, forbidden to marry for the first two years, similarly have their commissions canceled for the same reason. But Nash had married while a midshipman, concealed the fact for more than a year, graduated from the academy with high academic honors and been commissioned as a junior officer before being discovered.

Navy officials refused to name the bride of the Saginaw, Mich., ensign, appointed to Annapolis in 1932 by former Representative Michael J. Hart (Democrat), of the Michigan city. And officers did not disclose how the Bureau of Navigation had learned of the marriage.

"It having come to the attention of the Navy Department that Charles Alden Nash, jr., was married while a midshipman, in disregard of regulations," the Navy's terse announcement read, "Nash's commission is hereby revoked, effective June 15."

When midshipmen first enter the Annapolis Academy they take an oath not to marry. Upon graduation and commissioning they are released from the oath, no longer being midshipmen, and are given revocable commissions with special regulations. These regulations provide that no ensign shall marry during his first two years as a naval officer.

Nash was graduated at the Naval

Conspiracy Charge Results in Suicide

High Officials Arrested in 'Granary' of Nation; Polish Plots Cited.

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, June 16.—The suicide of the president of the White Russian Soviet Republic, hundreds of arrests and the removal of thousands from Communist Party rolls were announced by the government today as the greatest political purge in Soviet Russia's history went forward.

The government said Alexandria G. Cherviakoff, 45-year-old head of the westernmost of the Soviet Union's 11 republics, killed himself for family reasons, but his death followed closely his denunciation at a Communist Party meeting, the arrest of 45 of his colleagues for treason and the execution of the former commander of the White Russian garrison.

The continued denunciation of thousands of men, including many who have stood near the very top of the state and party organization, gave the Soviet Union the appearance of being engaged in a gigantic, nation-wide Salem witch hunt.

Evidence of Dissension.

Foreign observers still were bewildered by the storm of charges and the scope and ruthlessness of the purge. No foreigner believed most of the charges in full, but most agreed they were evidence of chaotic dissension within the Soviet regime and showed many persons desired, if they were not actually plotting, the downfall of Josef Stalin.

The latest flood of charges of treason, "wrecking" and "diversion," centering in White Russia, the western portion of the Soviet Union adjoining Poland, alleged a huge conspiracy against Soviet agriculture.

At Minsk, capital of White Russia, N. M. Goloded, president of the White Russian council of commissars, former commissars of the state and numerous members of the state central executive committee were arrested.

Gen. I. P. Uborevitch, former commander of the Red army garrison in White Russia, was one of eight high army officers executed June 12 for a plot to "dismember" the Soviet Union. It was understood the eight were charged with plotting to sever White Russia and the Ukraine from the union and give them to Germany.

Recall Hitler's Speech.

Diplomats recalled Reichsfuehrer Hitler's reference in a speech at Nuernberg last year to what the Reich could do with the rich Ukraine, Russia's granary. Marshal Michail Tukhachevsky, one of the most respected military figures in Europe and one of the Soviet's five marshals, was among the army officials executed last week.

White Russia is one of 11 republics making up the Soviet Union. It has an area of about 50,000 square miles and a population of 5,500,000.

(There was no further word today as to the fate of I. Mikhailski, commentator on American political affairs in the official government newspaper, Izvestia, who disappeared last night from his apartment in the United States Embassy building. Indications pointed to his arrest.

The government's announcement of Cherviakoff's suicide said it followed closely the removal and execution of Gen. Uborevitch and the arrests of N. M. Goloded, premier of the White Russian council of commissars, 10 former commissars of the state and numerous members of the state central executive committee.

Polish Spying Charged.

At the meeting of the state Communist Party at Minsk last week it was charged the collective farms in White Russia were hotbeds of Polish espionage.

Party leaders declared "wreckers" in the commissariats of agriculture and education, with the connivance of M. I. Kalmanovitch, recently removed as all-union commissar for state farms, had brought about destruction of livestock and crops.

It was charged they even persuaded a scientist in the veterinary institute to inoculate blooded livestock with cholera germs.

Cherviakoff's was the second suicide of a high Russian official this month. Gen. Jan Gamarnik, former

Copyright 1937 Pulitzer Publishing Co.

Five agents of the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee, headed by Robert Wohlforth, the committee's secretary, are in Chicago investigating the tragic events of Memorial Day, when nine persons were killed or fatally wounded by city police in smashing an attempt by steel-strike demonstrators to march past the Republic Steel Co. plant in South Chicago.

Appearance of the committee's agents on the scene Tuesday coincided with the death of the ninth victim, a 17-year-old boy reported to have joined the pickets in the hope of getting a job in the mill after settlement of the strike.

The committee's decision to proceed with the inquiry was hastened by the private showing here of a suppressed news reel, in which the police attack on the demonstrators is graphically recorded. The committee obtained possession of the film in New York, after its maker, the Paramount Co., had announced it would not be exhibited publicly, for fear of inciting riots throughout the country.

The showing of the film here was conducted in utmost secrecy. The audience was almost limited to Senators La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, who compose the committee, and members of the staff. Those who saw it were shocked by scenes showing scores of uniformed policemen firing their revolvers point-blank into a dense crowd of men, women and children and then pursuing and clubbing the survivors unmercifully as they made frantic efforts to escape.

The impression produced by these scenes was heightened by the sound record which accompanies the picture, reproducing the roar of police fire and the screams of the victims. It was run off several times for the investigators, and at each showing they detected additional instances of "frightfulness." It is expected to be of great value in identifying individual policemen and their victims. The film itself evidently is an outstanding example of camera reporting under difficult conditions.

The following description of the picture comes from a person who saw it several times and had a particular interest in studying it closely for detail. Its accuracy is beyond question.

The first scenes show police drawn up in a long line across a dirt road which runs diagonally through a large open field before turning into a street which is parallel to, and some 200 yards distant from, the high fence surrounding the Republic mill. The police line extends 40 or 50 yards on each side of the dirt road. Behind the line, and in the street beyond, nearer the mill, are several patrol wagons and numerous reserve squads of police.

Straggling across the field, in a long, irregular line, headed by two men carrying American flags, the demonstrators are shown approaching. Many carry placards. They appear to number about 300—approximately the same as the police—although it is known some 2,000 strike sympathizers were watching the march from a distance.

A vivid closeup shows the head of the parade being halted at the police line. The flag-bearers are in front. Behind them the placards are massed. They bear such devices as "Come on out—help win the strike:" "Republic vs. the people" and "C. I. O." Between the flag-bearers is the marchers' spokesman, a muscular young man in shirt sleeves, with a C. I. O. button on the band of his felt hat.

He is arguing earnestly with a police officer who appears to be in command. His vigorous gestures indicate he is insisting on permission to continue through the police line, but in the general din of shouting and talking his words cannot be distinguished. His expression is serious, but no suggestion of threat or violence is apparent. The police officer, whose back is to the camera, makes one impatient gesture of refusal and says something which cannot be understood.

Then suddenly, without apparent warning, there is a terrific roar of pistol shots, and men in the front ranks of the marchers go down like grass before a scythe. The camera catches approximately a dozen fall-

Party Coalition Against Court Change Studied

Democrats Favor Wheeler to Lead Fight; G. O. P. Willing to Unite.

Senate Democratic opponents of the President's court plan last night were faced with the politically significant choice between independent leadership in the coming court fracas or a formal coalition with Republican Senators.

Decision on an opposition "steering committee" to direct the court plan fight was postponed 24 hours, while members of the opposition individually discussed methods of organization and parliamentary strategy.

Informal agreement already was said to have been reached upon the liberal Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, to lead the new opposition steering group.

But leaders of the opposition still were undecided on the political form the organization should take—whether it should be bi-partisan in character, or whether Democrats alone should comprise the group.

G. O. P. Would Co-operate.

Republican opposition to the court bill, comprising virtually the entire minority side of the Senate, are said to have left the decision entirely in the hands of Democratic opponents, with no group preference expressed.

If the minority is offered representation on the new steering committee, Republicans were said to be ready to accept. If the steering group is made solidly Democratic, Republican court strategists may decide to form a policy group of their own, but working toward the same end—defeat of the court plan.

In view of the definite Democratic party cleavage over the court bill and other issues, more than ordinary interest attached to the decision on the political make-up of the Democratic opposition group.

Some observers professed to see in a possible bi-partisan steering group the makings of a Democratic-Republican coalition that might spread to other issues, possibly becoming the nucleus for a more significant political party alignment.

Conference Postponed.

Both Democratic and Republican opponents of the court plan in past weeks have worked closely in harmony, but Democrats by common consent have taken the leadership, and would continue to.

An opposition conference on the new "steering" plan had been called for yesterday, but was postponed when extensive Senate debate developed on proposed changes in the President's relief bill. A decision may be reached today.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, who has been given a free hand by the President in attempting to marshal a court bill through the Senate, said yesterday it may be "several days" before the bill is called up.

Asked for comment on the President's assertion both he and the country wanted a vote—not a filibuster—on the court bill, Robinson said he thought a vote could be reached "without much trouble."

U. S. Men to Watch Japanese Fishing

By the Associated Press.

The State Department announced yesterday Government representatives would be sent to the Pacific Coast and to Alaskan waters to investigate the activities of Japanese fishing boats reported operating near Bristol Bay but outside of American territorial waters.

The action was decided upon after American fishing interests in those areas had advised Washington that there were in Alaskan waters an "unusually large number of Japanese fishing vessels."

The communications were received about a week ago and addressed to President Roosevelt and various Senators, expressing apprehension lest the Bristol Bay salmon fisheries be invaded by the Japanese.

Rule Sought for Bill Ending Marriage Clause

The House Rules Committee yesterday heard Representative O'Day (Democrat), of New York, plead for a special rule on the Celler bill to abolish the "marriage clause" of the 1932 economy act. It took no action, however.

Mrs. O'Day told the committee 6,000,000 women, members of the Federation of Women's Clubs, had adopted unanimously a resolution asking that the famed Section 213 be repealed. She also noted that its repeal had been advocated in the Republican platform.

Politics and People

President's Utopian Plan for Little Man Laudable, But May Be Long in Realization.

By Franklyn Waltman

Like so many New Deal objectives, President Roosevelt's expressed desire to place purchasing power in the hands of the underprivileged one-third of the Nation and thus raise the living standard of this unfortunate group is wholly admirable and praiseworthy.

WALTMAN.

Even though the task the President has set for himself is one to challenge and fire the imagination and inspire ardent young liberals with a crusading zeal, it is not one that is going to be accomplished overnight. No genie with an Aladdin's Lamp can do this job nor are there any rabbits of this particular color in the high hat.

What Mr. Roosevelt is urging is Utopia and that is beyond the reach of man in this realistic and every-day world. Nevertheless, the fact that achievement of Utopia is impossible should not deter the President and those in authority from striving to do all they can to better the condition of life for those most in need—provided it is done with patience and a weather-eye to the realities of the situation.

There is nothing new about the situation to which Mr. Roosevelt has called attention. Those with eyes to see know that many of their fellow-citizens, most of whom are worthy, live under substandard, if not pitiful conditions. The Brookings Institution with statistics and technical findings confirmed and made clearer these impressions. The existence of the conditions was attested by the successful followings built up by Huey P. Long and Dr. Francis Townsend.

Nor is there any disagreement over the desirability of ameliorating these conditions. Place purchasing power in the hands of those without it today and such worries as unemployment, huge relief expenditures, surplus crops and unbalanced budgets would be things of the past. This, indeed, would be a happy land.

The question is, however, can it be done? Mr. Roosevelt has not hinted as to what he exactly has in mind. But several proposals to achieve his objective have been projected in recent years and have been explored and discussed. One of the first proposals was the redistribution of wealth by taking from the wealthy and giving to the poor through a medium of taxation.

This method the New Deal is now trying on a modified scale—except that through its borrowing program it has placed the cart before the horse; it first gives to the poor and later on will take from the wealthy. But the possibilities of this plan have been recognized as so limited as to make its effect negligible. It has been discovered that if all the wealth of the country were equally divided that none would have very much.

And with that discovery by persons who were never proficient at arithmetic came the realization that the situation called for an increase in the wealth and income of the Nation—that the present economic pie—or even the pie we had in 1929—was not large enough to go around and give to each a fairly decent standard of living. Thus fell schemes based on economics of scarcity and the realization came that only by producing more could the situation be helped.

It would be more nearly correct to say that this realization came only to a few. Many of our foremost statesmen remain unconvinced and talk of limiting every man's work week to 30 hours on the theory that then all would be prosperous and happy. But if that should be done, there would remain even less to be distributed throughout the Nation.

The problem that remains unsolved—the stroke that is needed to cut the vicious circle—is to get purchasing power into the hands of the underprivileged without lessening the effectiveness of the existing purchasing power. Men can attain purchasing power in one of two ways: Either through an increase in wages and income, without a corresponding offset through increased prices, or through an opportunity to obtain more commodities and services with the wages and income they now have.

Consequently it will be seen that increased wages and income mean nothing if offset by increased prices. Thus if minimum wage and maximum hour laws increase prices, nothing is gained but in all probability much is lost. On the other hand, if income and wages remain unchanged and prices go down, there is a gain for everyone, for each man may get more of this world's goods with his income and thus he contributes to an increase in production and makes work for his unemployed neighbors.

Progress in increasing real wages or purchasing power was made last year. The Commerce Department in its survey of national income for 1936 found that the per capita wages and salaries of all employes was $1,244 for the year or 85.8 per cent of the figure for 1929. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the cost of living last year was 82.1 per cent of what it was in 1929. Thus the mass of employed workers were better off than they were in 1929.

In 1935 they just about broke even. The per capita wage was 81.8 per cent of the 1929 level, while the cost of living was 81.1 per cent of the predepression year figure. But in 1934 the average employed worker was worse off than he was in 1929, for his per capita income was 78.3 per cent of the latter year but the cost of living was 79 per cent of the 1929 figure.

The reason the average employed worker gained in real wages last year was because his per capita income increased from 81.8 per cent of the 1929 level in 1935 to 85.8 per cent last year, while the cost of living increased only from 81.1 to 82.1 per cent of the 1929 level between 1935 and 1936.

Comparable figures for this year are not available but it is possible, despite the wage increases granted this year, that the gain of last year already has been lost through advancing prices. For the index of wholesale prices in the first four months of this year has advanced several times the amount it advanced in all of last year.

Thus in the matter of increasing purchasing power it is as important—if not more important—to keep an eye on price levels as on wages, salaries and income.

Economists See Outlook as Better Than a Year Ago

Geneva, June 16 (AP).—A report by world economists published at Geneva tonight struck an optimistic note, declaring the world situation is "much more favorable" now than a year ago for improvement of economic and political relations.

The report was prepared by the League of Nations economic committee, headed by the Economist Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, financial adviser to the British treasury.

It noted with satisfaction Belgian Premier Paul Van Zeeland's mission to the United States to discuss world economic relations with President Roosevelt and expressed the hope he will be able to elaborate effective proposals.

Sen. Tydings Offers Aid To Beautify New Road

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—United States Senator Millard E. Tydings wants the new Philadelphia road past his estate at Oakington beautified and is willing to give the State road commission foliage and shrubbery necessary for making it attractive.

Frank F. Luthardt, member of the commission, said today Senator Tydings offered to donate any suitable trees, bushes and shrubs from his estate for planting in the center parkway of the road in front of his property.

Ship Line Charter Bids Considered

By the Associated Press.

The Maritime Commission had under consideration last night eight bids for a one-year charter of four Government-owned ship lines.

The offers varied widely, ranging from $4,970 to $1,491,000 annually for the same route.

They were in response to invitations issued a month ago under terms of the merchant marine act, which requires the commission to terminate existing agency agreements by next June 29, and, in its discretion, offer the lines either for charter or sale.

Tokyo Nurses Strike.

Tokyo, June 16 (AP).—Seventy Japanese student nurses at St. Luke's American Hospital went on strike today demanding that the Japanese system of nursing replace American methods, that hours of training be reduced and that nurses be given a weekly day off.

Fascist Leader, 14 Others to Die For Franco Plot

20 More Receive Life Terms as Insurgents Purge Ranks.

By the Associated Press.

St. Jean-de-Luz, France, June 16. Diplomatic dispatches from insurgent Spanish territory tonight reported that Manuel Hedilla, former chief of the Fascist Party, had been sentenced to death for conspiracy against Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Eighty lesser chiefs of the party were tried by court-martial at the same time, it was reported, and 14 sentenced to death, 20 to life imprisonment at hard labor and the remainder to be deported to Spanish Guinea.

The Fascist chiefs of Salamanca, Burgos, Toledo and the Province of Vizcaya were among those condemned to death.

Double Death Sentence.

Hedilla, who took the leadership of the Fascist Phalangists after the founder of the Phalax, Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, was executed by a Spanish government firing squad November 20, was found guilty on two counts and twice sentenced to death.

Dispatches said the outcome of the trial was hailed by monarchists in Spain as a distinct victory for them since they considered the Fascists "too revolutionary."

The blue-shirted Phalangists were the largest single Spanish contingent to join the insurgent ranks in the civil war, but retained their separate organization while serving under Generalissimo Franco.

The events leading to their downfall were given as follows:

Hedilla heard in April of a plot to oust him. He sent a squad of his followers for a showdown with leaders of the rival faction at Salamanca. Shots were exchanged and Manuel Goya, a friend of Hedilla, was killed.

All in Fray Jailed.

Generalissimo Franco immediately ordered the arrest of all involved in the fray, including three members of the faction which planned to oust Hedilla—but not including Hedilla himself.

Two days later, Franco announced unification of all the groups under his command, including the Phalangists, the Carlist Requeses and the Bourbon Royalists, both monarchist organizations.

Hedilla, dissatisfied with the allotment of seats on the one-party council, told Franco his party must have more places and stayed away from the first meeting.

Franco quickly had Hedilla and a number of his supporters arrested.

Charges on which they were tried were reported to include "conspiracy against the security of the country and state."

3 Navy Ship Bids Opened Today

Bids for the construction of one 35,000-ton battleship and two submarines will be opened in the office of the Secretary of the Navy at noon today. The superdreadnaught is one of two such ships for which funds were provided in the naval appropriation act of 1937. The other will be constructed in a Navy yard. The names North Carolina and Washington have been assigned to these two ships.

While the armament of the new ships has not been definitely determined, the vessels will incorporate a large number of technical improvements. Insofar as speed is concerned, the new ships will be superior to any vessels of their class now afloat.

Preliminary estimates of the cost of the two ships approximated $60,000,000 each when fully completed. The bids are for hull and machinery only.

German Chief of Staff Visits Paris Privately

Paris, June 16 (AP).—Gen. Ludwig Beck, first German chief of staff to come to Paris in nearly 70 years, arrived here tonight. The foreign office, war ministry and German Embassy all stated he was on a purely personal visit, but diplomatic sources nevertheless said they interpreted his coming as a sign of improvement in Franco-German relations.

Gen. Beck is to talk with Gen. Marie Gustave Gamelin, chief of the French general staff, and Edouard Daladier, minister of national defense.

The Basque capital might be occupied within the next few hours or insurgent commanders might defer ordering the coup de grace till Saturday.

Hundreds of prisoners poured into the hands of insurgents engaged in mop-up duties consolidating insurgent victories on the march into this outer suburb of Bilbao.

Law 'Freezes' Utility Claims, REA Head Says

New Mexico 'Protection' Robs Farms of Power Carmody Asserts.

In a new condemnation of what he termed "spite-line, cream-skimming tactics" of private utilities aimed at the Rural Electrification Administration, REA Administrator John M. Carmody yesterday accused a State Legislature of enacting a legal provision "intended to protect utilities in the enjoyment of unserved territory."

Carmody announced rescinding of a $56,000 allotment for a rural electrification project in Valencia County, N. Mex., asserting the action was taken because "the power company, since the allotment was made, has built into the territory to such an extent that the project is not at the present time feasible."

Series of Denunciations.

This was the latest in a series of denunciations by Carmody of such "tactics." The most recent previous to the New Mexico case was cited by Carmody as having occurred in West Virginia.

The REA announcement of the action yesterday said, in part:

"At the same time Administrator Carmody expressed apprehension over the future of any co-operative rural electrification projects in New Mexico because of a provision of the new electrification legislation, the electric membership corporation act. Although REA recently allotted $104,000 to be used for line construction in Eddy County, New Mexico, Mr. Carmody expressed a fear that this project will never be built.

"Mr. Carmody said: 'Those farmers in the less profitable parts of the project area will probably wait many years for service. All of them are now at the mercy of a monopoly so far as rates and conditions of service are concerned.'

Freezes Claims.

"The legislative provision, which REA believes will preclude participation of New Mexico in the direct benefits of the Federal rural electrification program, keeps farmers from building lines in such a manner as 'to interfere with any existing system or systems and except as herein otherwise provided, any corporation organized hereunder shall not serve the inhabitants of any municipality or other political subdivision of the State being served by a public utility under a valid franchise from such municipality or other political subdivision.'

"In the opinion of REA, this provision will serve to freeze the claims of utility companies to territories which they not only do not now serve, but have no immediate intention of serving. Since REA is not authorized to make loans to bring electricity to people actually being served, the provision can only have been intended to protect utilities in the enjoyment of unserved territories."

2 Boy Scouts End Long Hike, Ready to Rest

Pair Finish 8,000-Mile Hegira From Venezula to Washington.

Descansar.

In Spanish that means rest, which is what Rafael Angel Petit and Juan Carmona are going to get plenty of, now that they've completed their hike from Caracas, Venezuela, to Washington.

The two Rover Boy Scouts, who had been en route since January 11, 1935, puffed across Key Bridge a few minutes before noon yesterday to reach the end of a trail that led through snake and malaria-infested jungles, head hunters' camps and brigands' hideouts.

They were greeted near the city's entrance by a reception party of Boy Scout officials, legation attaches and motorcycle police but politely declined an invitation to ride.

"No, thank you," said Juan, 20, and quite handsome, with Valentino sideburns, "we've walked every step of the way to this point, except when we crossed rivers on hand-made rafts. We want to walk all the way to the Capitol."

Official Greetings.

At the Capitol were waiting the Venezuelan Minister, Dr. Diogenes Escalante, and Director General Leo S. Rowe, of the Pan-American Union. Much handshaking, newsreel and photograph shooting, more handshaking and South American genticulating followed.

A few hours later the boys were telling a radio audience what it's like to hoof some 8,000 miles apiece without ennui. (The actual distance may be far less but Rafael and Juan often had to take the long way around, not the crow's route.)

Hardships were plentiful on the trip but the boys arrived fit and sound, save for a few vanishing malaria symptoms. Carmona was hit the worst and, through an interpreter, said he is going to look up a doctor here.

At times the heat was so bad the hikers nearly despaired of continuing. The tropical sun killed a dog companion and another perished of snakebite.

Two thousand miles, or about one-fourth, of their journey was through dense jungles. One of them, the Choco Colombiano separating Panama and Colombia, had never before been traversed by civilized man.

"We had to cut our way through this territory," the scouts said, "with machetes, not being able to take one step forward through unbelievably luxuriant vines, trees, grasses, without first clearing our path.

"We were forced for many miles to lay a constant bridge before us of tree trunks in order to avoid quicksand and quaking marshland. For nearly six months we were wet constantly, as the normally difficult crossing of this jungle was further complicated by our striking it at the rainy season."

In Bandits' Hands.

Malaria, dampness, snakes, insects and heat plagued them. Often they slept in hammocks swung high above the ground for safety. Usually, however, they made their beds on the earth.

In Panama they were feted by the San Blas Indians who, more often than not, are hostile to strangers. A few of them spoke a Spanish dialect, which helped. The natives gave a banquet in their honor, featured by a beverage called chucula.

"This drink was bad enough by itself," the adventurers said, "but we had to watch the women prepare it, and that nearly finished us. It is made of green plantains, grain and coconut, all chewed up personally by the women, mixed well with saliva and left to ferment."

Juan and Rafael said they had a hard time explaining their way out of the clutches of Honduran bandits, then when they were liberated the police placed them under arrest, until their credentials were verified with the Venezuelan government.

It was pretty discouraging, too, when they arrived at Laredo, Tex., only to be halted because of passport difficulties. The scouts had to walk all the way back to Mexico City to get their entrance papers in order.

The sojourners averaged 25 miles a day, wore out 24 pairs of shoes, and passed through Colombia, Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, Guatemala and Mexico.

Carmona and Petit will make their Washington headquarters at the Roosevelt Hotel. This morning they will be received formally at the Pan American Union Building by Dr. Rowe.

Publicity Glare To Turn Today On Tax Evaders

velt's income tax return should be examined "was pointless except for its publicity seeking."

Chairman Doughton indicated Morgenthau, and possibly Magill, will be the only witnesses heard today. Procedure probably will be to hear Morgenthau without interruption and then to question him, he said. The eight chief tax-dodging methods and the three chief loopholes in the tax laws named by Morgenthau in his recent letter to the President likely will be discussed, he added.

Meanwhile, the scene of the expected sensations was prepared carefully for the drama. The rows of blue leather chairs were lined up in neat rows in the vast hearing-room; the press tables were set up with room for the telegraph operators who will flash the names of wealthy people, perhaps socially and industrially eminent, to the country.

And "Old Harry" Parker, the colored man who has guarded the Ways and Means Committee door for more than 50 years, shuffled busily about, preparing the note-pads and checking the ice-water coolers.

First come, first served! Ten a. m. is the time; the first floor of the New House Office Building is the place, and the show—according to the advance publicity—will be colossal!

Court Will Hear Maxwell Appeal Next September

Wise, Va., June 16 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals will hear arguments at its September term in Staunton on an appeal by Edith Maxwell from a second conviction on a charge of killing her father.

Date for the hearing was set yesterday after the court had granted Miss Maxwell's attorney, Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, a petition for a writ or error and supersedeas.

Miss Maxwell visited relatives at Pound, Va., today. She was free under $15,000 bond. A new bond was issued yesterday after one of the sureties on her previous bond had asked to be relieved of his obligation.

White Russian Head Kills Self In Party Purge

Hundreds Held for Plots; Thousands Dropped by Communists.

vice commissar of defense, killed himself June 1. The government said he acted after exposure as a traitor to the nation.

Cherviakoff a Communist.

Goloded was removed from office recently, charged with guilty knowledge of a widespread conspiracy, which the government said was "organized by Trotskyist diversionists and wreckers."

Cherviakoff, a native of White Russia, was 45 years old. He took a leading part in the Russian revolution from the outset, joined the Communist Party in 1917 and led in establishment of the Bolshevist regime in White Russia. He had been president there since 1924. He was also a member of the all-union central executive committee of the Communist Party, highest authority of the dominant element in the union.

The party itself today is going through a purge more drastic than any previous cleansing in its history.

In the city of Ordjonikidze, in the Caucasus, 5,362 members have been removed from the party roles. Thousands have been dropped in the Ukraine, where the purge is particularly intense. The same is true at Rostov, where more than 30 party officials are under arrest.

Thousands Expelled.

More thousands have been expelled from the party in the Far East, where already 94 persons have been executed for treason and "wrecking" in recent weeks and scores more arrested on charges of being enemies of the people.

Foreign authorities here can only guess at the number of highly placed Russians under arrest in Moscow. Some believe it to be thousands.

The great purge has not yet materially affected the common people. Most of the arrests have been confined to the Communist Party.

Foreign observers are puzzled by the official admissions of chaotic confusion and disorganization in the party, the Red army, Soviet industry and agriculture.

Today there is not a single commissariat, important factory or industrial enterprise which has not been alleged to be honeycombed with spies, "wreckers" and "diversionists," said to be working to restore capitalism.

151 Known Dead in Purge.

A known total of 151 have been shot in the Soviet Union during the last year for treason, sabotage, "wrecking" and "diversionist" activities.

Most recent reports of such executions came June 14 from Khabarovsk, Siberia, where 28 were executed because they were alleged to have committed acts of sabotage under the direction of Japanese agents to wreck the strategic Amur Railway.

Previous Siberian trials brought death for 66 others. Twenty were reported executed recently at Tiflis, Transcaucasia.

Most widely publicized of the treason trials were those of last August, which sent Leon Kameneff, Gregory Zinovieff and 14 others to their deaths, and of January, which led to 13 more executions.

Leon Trotsky, former leader of the Soviet regime and now an exile in Mexico, has been named by Moscow as the leader of the vast conspiracy for which most of these men have died. He has vigorously denied the charges.

Deaths "Sad," Says Envoy.

Pittsburgh, June 16 (AP).—Recent executions of high army officials in Russia were termed today "sad, unpleasant and at times shocking, but just and necessary" by Alexander A. Troyanovsky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States.

In a 10-minute stop-over on an air trip to the West Coast, he told reporters the conviction and execution of the officers "gave conclusive proof that undercover dealings with unfriendly nations will not be tolerated," and that they "served to bolster the morale of the people."

Ruins of Western World's First City Found in Panama

Panama City, Panama, June 16 (AP).—The Panama-Colombia Border Commission reported today it had discovered the ruins of the lost city of Santa Maria la Antigua del Darien, believed to be the oldest city in the New World.

Britain Offers 5% Excess Profit Tax

London, June 16 (AP).—The government offered a maximum 5 per cent tax on excess profits today as a substitute for its national defense contribution program, which would have taken up to 25 per cent of net profits in industry.

The national defense tax on profits, offered by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain when he was still chancellor of the exchequer, was withdrawn from the government's budget legislation after it had aroused a storm of opposition.

A government white paper outlined the substitute tax proposal, which would be imposed for a five-year period, retroactive to April 1.

The rate would be 5 per cent for corporations and 4 per cent for individuals, on profits exceeding $10,000 annually. The tax is expected to yield $123,500,000 a year.

Special Church Collections Are Under Nazi Ban

Order Hits at Support of Confessional Synod Seminaries.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, June 16.—The Nazi regime struck a new blow today against the Confessional Synod, long an opponent of Nazi domination of Protestant Church affairs, by prohibiting special church collections without government permission.

The decree, if strictly enforced, deprives the Synod of means by which it has been possible to maintain theological seminaries in defiance of State-appointed church authorities and to carry on the work of the Synod.

Under the order issued by Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, and Hans Kerrl, head of the Nazi-created department of church affairs, individual churches are prohibited from taking any collections except those approved in a general plan for the year's work of each church.

Members of the Confessional Synod appeared tonight to be in a mood to ignore the collection decree, preferring to face arrest rather than to yield.

Pope Sends Priests to Reich.

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, June 16 (AP). Jope Pius told a group of graduate priests today to go back to Nazi Germany and uphold their faith "where a blind battle rages against God and the Church of Christ."

Deploring what he termed the persecution of Catholic in Germany, the Holy Father, in a determined voice, especially commissioned the young priests to act courageously.

He gave to the priests of the German-Hungarian College of Rome a "special great blessing" for their forthcoming work in Germany.

Rep. Wearin Wins Hog-Call Contest But Pigs Disappear

By the Associated Press.

Representative Otha Wearin, of Iowa, exponent of the "S-oo-o-ie," hog call of the Corn Belt, laid claim last night to two pigs, whereabouts undetermined.

The pigs were the State of Louisiana's bet that the Cajan dawn-greeting call of "Eh, la bas!" had the hog call licked for carrying power and tonal quality.

Wearin pressed his claim for the pigs after Representative Bob Mouton, official Louisiana representative in the scheduled contest, suddenly announced he had withdrawn.

Calling this a "victory by default," Wearin said he was "willing to let it go at that, as long as Louisiana acknowledges the superiority of Iowa hollerin'."

Then Wearin learned the pigs were missing. Wearin said Mouton kept them in his office for several days, but a clerk there denied any knowledge of their whereabouts.

Screen Stars in June Wedding

Gene Raymond and Jeanette MacDonald, screen favorites, lead the procession of June weddings in Hollywood. Their invitation list to their wedding yesterday included many movie notables. Neither has been married before.

the ceremony. Every time the crowd recognized a star in the long queue of automobiles, a roar of applause went up. During the intonation of the Lord's Prayer near the conclusion of the service, an explosion of sound was heard in front and around the sides of the church.

Attempts were made to block the limousines in which the bride and groom and the bridal party left the church.

One hundred police patrolled the area, rushing traffic through and roping off the crowds, but at times they were powlerless to handle them.

The service began when Nelson Eddy, who has been Miss MacDonald's singing co-star in a number of movies, sang "I Love You Truly." Then, to the familiar strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, the bridesmaids began to file in. Miss MacDonald followed them. She looked neither to right nor left as she came down the long middle aisle.

A gasp of admiration came from the throng, accustomed as its members are to her loveliness. Raymond was waiting for her at the end of the aisle. She smiled faintly as she approached.

Their voices were strong and plainly audible throughout the large auditorium as they made answer to the questions of the marriage ceremony.

As they left the church, they were halted for a moment at the front door. Meanwhile the signal had been given to a cordon of police, who were clearing the streets and forcing back the crowds. An attendant told the bridal couple:

"You'll have to run for it."

"How will I take care of this train?" Miss MacDonald asked.

Someone picked it up for her, and as countless photographers' flash bulbs blazed, they ran to the waiting automobile. An escort of six motorcycle policemen accompanied them on their departure.

The ceremony was 25 minutes late in starting, owning to the difficulty the bridal attendants and guests encountered in reaching the church. Among the last arrivals were Mary Pickford and Charles Buddy Rogers, who themselves will be married later this month.

Mrs. Kellison Wins Acquittal in Death Of Her Husband

After 11 hours of deliberation a jury in District Court last night acquitted Mrs. Frances S. Kellison of a charge of murdering her young husband.

The woman collapsed as the jury announced its verdict. She was surrounded by her eight children. She was immediately released on motion of Assistant United States Attorney Samuel F. Beach, who prosecuted the case.

A jury of five women and seven men decided Mrs. Kellison, 38, was not guilty of murder when she shot and killed her 26-year-old husband, John H. Kellison.

Hidden Grave Of Mrs. Parsons Believed Found

'Unmistakable' Clew Draws Search 2,000 Feet From Home.

By the Associated Press.

Stony Brook, N. Y., June 16.—Police Lieut. Stacey Wilson said tonight odors he detected caused authorities to seek a hidden grave within 2,000 feet of the home of the missing Mrs. Alice Parsons.

Wilson, a member of the Brookhaven police force, said "he could not be mistaken." The search was halted tonight by darkness, but men equipped with shovels and other implements were ordered to begin a new hunt of the bush-covered area north of the Parsons home at daybreak.

Lieut. Wilson's announcement followed discovery / local authorities had been engaged in digging at nightfall. Assistant District Attorney Lindsay Henry, who earlier denied a possible grave was sought in the hunt for Mrs. Parsons, admitted more than ten "bare spots" had been examined.

The odor, said Wilson, was "unmistakably that of a body," although, he added, it might be that of an animal.

Unofficial reports Parsons was communicating with persons he believed were the kidnapers of his wife flew thick tonight after appearance of an advertisement in the New York American, which read:

"All is forgiven, Danny—come home. Before we give you your part the others insist upon proof you are entitled to it."

The notice was signed "Billy."

Missing Scientist Is 'Safe and Well' On Aleutian Island

Seattle, June 16 (AP).—A message stating that John Holt Steenis, 31, Madison, Wis., scientist lost four days on Agattu Island far out in the Aleutians, has been found well and uninjured, was received at Coast Guard headquarters here late today.

The message, from Commander H. R. Searles, of the Coast Guard, Bering Sea Patrol, said:

"Federal Biologist John Steenis found well and uinjured. Cyane will proceed to Attu to overhaul island radio.

Steenis, a Biological Survey bird scientist, failed to rejoin the party working from the survey ship Brown Bear last Saturday. He had been left there to make a survey of bird life on the wild, uninhabited island 1,200 miles weest of the Alaskan mainland.

Bulgaria Throne's New Heir Greeted By 100-Gun Salute

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 16 (AP).—A 100-gun salute thundered announcement of the birth of an heir to the Bulgarian throne today.

Queen Giovanna, wife of King Boris, gave birth to a son in the early morning at Vrana Palace. Both the mother and the little crown prince, first son of the royal couple, were reported in excellent health.

The King and Queen have one other child, 4-year-old Princess Maria Louisa, who is not in direct succession, since the Bulgarian constitution provides that a man of royal birth must occupy the throne.

King Boris stood on a palace balcony to wave to cheering subjects who paraded from Alexandre Newsky Cathedral after a thanksgiving mass. Work was suspended and the day given over to singing, drinking and dancing in colorful costumes.

Encampment Of 4-H Groups Gets Under Way

Boys and Girls Greeted by C. W. Warburton, U. S. Official.

Greetings from C. W. Warburton, director of the United States Extension Service, and an address on "Our Traditions and Objectives" by George E. Farrell marked the opening last night of the eleventh encampment of 4-H Club boys and girls in West Potomac Park.

The camp was to "get going" on regular farm-hour schedule this morning at 7 o'clock. More than 160 club members, representing 1,100,000 "back on the farm," are in attendance. The camp will last through June 23, with "Making the Most of Our Rural Heritage" as the theme of its programs.

In addition to the boys and girls, who were selected from the 48 States on basis of achievement, 80 club leaders are in attendance and will hold conferences in the south building of the Department of Agriculture.

During the encampment delegates will wear regulation club uniform, the girls in green and the boys in white, with the club emblem of a four-leaf clover prominently displayed. Army tents south of the Washington Monument provide the camp living quarters. This is the eleventh year that selected delegates have camped in Washington during a week in June.

Supervised study of Government organization and visits to historic shrines will provide two-thirds of the encampment program. The other third will be made up of speeches, conferences and group singing.

Dr. VanZeeland Leading Effort For Recovery

Belgian Premier's Visit to U. S. Will Foster Economic Peace.

forty-fourth birthday is still some months ahead, is seeking to satisfy himself.

Such a mission, it is important to point out, cannot be a failure. If Dr. Van Zeeland should find America unco-operative, nothing is lost. He will merely report back to the democracies of Western Europe that the great American democracy is still wedded to isolationist ideas. In that case the Belgian premier will concentrate with redoubled energy on the upbuilding evident on every hand in his own country.

NOT COMING HERE "HAT IN HAND."

It is necessary to appreciate the extent of that domestic reconstruction to remove any idea that Dr. Van Zeeland is coming to Washington, hat in hand, as a poor relation asking favors from prosperous Uncle Sam. Belgium does not see herself in that position; nor can any who visit this country with open eyes have doubts as to the reality of the upswing here.

Here is a highly-industrialized nation with a population of something less than 9,000,000. Of this number only 115,000 are at present on relief as unemployed, as compared with 160,00 a year ago.

The business improvement is reflected visually in the residential building activity now in progress and statistically in the tax receipts. With some adjustments, but no alteration of basic rates, the current taxation income is not merely well ahead of last year, but is also running much above the Treasury estimates. In spite of relatively heavy armament expenditures there is no question of the government's ability to keep revenue ahead of outlay.

Dr. Van Zeeland, however, is not content with the large measure of recovery secured since the devaluation of the Belgian franc, in March, 1935, immediately after his accession to the premiership. During this period it has been his notable accomplishment to raise wholesale prices 39 per cent with a simultaneous increase of only 15 per cent in the retail price index. His government has successfully stimulated production without any pronounced increase in living costs. But he wishes to consolidate this gain. To do so, in a country so largely dependent on its foreign trade, necessitates external as well as internal recuperation.

ABOLISHED QUOTA AND LICENSE RESTRICTIONS.

Within the past fortnight the initiative of the Belgian Prime Minister has greatly contributed to a notable step in this direction. By an agreement signed at The Hague, on May 28, six small but commercially important European nations have collectively abolished, as between themselves, all of the "crisis measures" imposed during the depression years to restrict imports from other countries.

This agreement extends to Belgium and Holland the so-called Oslo accord, sponsored by the League of Nations, whereby Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden some years ago made an initial breach in the wall of arbitrary trade restrictions. But the new arrangement, in addition to adding Belgium and Holland to the circle of countries standing for freer trade, goes further. As between the participants all quota and licensing restrictions are abolished, without any increase in tariff rates. And the modesty of Dr. Van Zeeland cannot conceal the leading part which he played in achieving this success.

Premier Van Zeeland therefore comes to Washington as one who is by theory and practice sympathetic with many of the measures taken by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull in their fight against the depression. But he does not come as one asking assistance. He will explain in detail the various aspects of his policy, which of course can only be indicated in this article. And then he will inquire as to the way in which America might, to the advantage of our own budgetary and employment situation, be co-operative in the trend.

The trip may, of course, prove politically advantageous to the Belgian premier. But this is certainly not a major consideration in his mind. In the first place his smashing victory in a direct election contest with Leon Degrelle, local Fascist leader, a few weeks back has amply demonstrated his popularity with the electorate. In the second place quiet, soft-spoken, studious Dr. Van Zeeland, with a limpid mind and an iron will, is interested in objectives greater than any which Belgian politics alone can provide.

That this is so is shown by the complete confidence in his good judgment extended by both the British and French governments. Before it was announced, the Belgian premier's trip to Washington was discussed in detail with Anthony Eden, the British foreign minister. It will coincide with the close of the Imperial Conference in London, already discussed in these reports, on the developments of which Premier Van Zeeland has been kept closely informed. And the Van Zeeland visit, according to reliable information here, may be followed in September by a trip to the United States by Premier Blum of France, if the situation in his country permits.

REPRESENTS DEMOCRACIES OF WESTERN EUROPE.

The Belgian premier, in other words, is going to Washington as the envoy of the democracies of western Europe. Visibly recovering from the depression, obviously anxious to consolidate their gains in co-operation with the United States—if that is the American desire—these countries are fortunate in their representative. His mission is completely informal. And in spite of his responsible office it is really completely unofficial, in the sense that the premier carries no mandate from his Parliament and seeks no proposals from the United States.

But if the visit clicks, the proposals, from one source or another, will be forthcoming later. In important areas of Europe the downswing of depression is over, the panic feeling of an inevitable war is perceptibly lifting. Premier Van Zeeland has shown Europe his skillful ability to assist recovery by action to remove outworn restrictions here, by a tactful impetus to better understanding there. Even before he came into the limelight as president of the last Assembly of the League of Nations, this youthful statesman was known throughout Europe. Now, during his three-weeks' stay in New York, at Princeton and in Washington, it will be possible for America to learn something of his quality at first hand.

Just 20 years ago this beautiful capital was prostrate in the hands of a German army of occupation. The present premier of Belgium, then little more than a boy, was a captive soldier in a prison camp across the Rhine.

Today Premier Van Zeeland, with a still younger King who shares his high ideals, directs the affairs of a prosperous Belgium without the slightest animus toward either Germany or its Nazi dictatorship. The need of easing the pressures on that country are always present in his efforts for European economic reconstruction.

There is something very appealing, and even symbolic, in the leading part now played in Europe by this former prisoner of war. The men who knew war as he knew it will not easily tolerate another. Their rise to posts of great authority is one healthy sign. Their interest in the part which America is to play in the fight back from the abyss is equally significant.

The boys were Robert Morris, son of Mrs. Dave Swartz, of Los Angeles, Calif., who had been living with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Stetson, and Junior Richards. The coroner said fumes from 8 inches of oil in the tank caused their death.

Seek Freedom, Graduates Told At Catholic U.

Senator O'Mahoney Warns Class of 500 Against Absolutism.

In life ahead, members of the new generation "must choose between industrial and political freedom under the democratic process, or some form of the absolute state in which religion and democracy must perish together," Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, told Catholic University graduates in a commencement address yesterday.

Speaking on "Religion and Democracy" before 500 graduate and many hundreds of parents and friends in the large campus gymnasium, the Senator declared that both have the same aim. "Both," he said, "are securely founded on faith and the dignity and independence of the individual soul."

"It is clear," O'Mahoney said, "that in the moment we are passing through a phase of centralism in the economic and political fields that tends, temporarily at least, to obstruct democracy. The fate of whole peoples and continents seems to depend upon the caprice of a few men who hold themselves in power not by the free will of those they rule, nor by the 'consent of the governed,' but by the repeated and the ruthless exercise of arbitrary force."

"Big Government."

"We shall the more clearly understand the phenomena in the world about us when we realize that political centralism is the product of economic centralism. Big business has produced big government. There was no public agency great enough to cope with constantly centralizing economic power except the Federal Government, and as a consequence, during the past 50 years the steady expansion of big business has been accompanied by the equally steady expansion of the Washington establishment—at the expense of State governments.

O'Mahoney warned that the modern corporation must be recognized as "a public and not a private agency."

"With its thousands of stockholders scattered all over the country, with plants and offices operating in many States and cities, with its personnel recruited from the four points of the compass, the national corporation is an economic state, the policy and control of which is far more important to all the people of the country than the political activity of most States," the speaker said.

"Tribute From Masses."

"We talk much these days of public debt, of staggering Government expenditures and of the heavy burden of taxation. All of the taxes collected by all of the many public taxing agencies are but a drop in the bucket compared to the tribute that has been and is being wrung from the consuming masses of the Nation by these corporate states which fix the prices of the necessities of life."

Senator O'Mahoney's address was the high light of a program bringing the academic year at Catholic University to a close.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, presided, and the Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the university, gave the invocation.

John Pearson Stanley gave the valedictory, and deans of the several schools and colleges awarded the degrees.

Does it make friends with all the fixings?

Not if you smell or taste the gin in the finished drink!

WHEN gin really mixes with its pals . . . the lemon, lime and soda . . . you should neither smell nor taste it in the finished drink. That's the kind of smooth Tom Collins or Gin Rickey Americans demand.

Since Americans invented the whole idea of mixed drinks, their judgment should be final. So far as Fleischmann is concerned—it is!

Fleischmann's, the original American gin, has been distilled to mix. It makes friends with all the fixings, blends perfectly with its boon companions to give you a perfect drink.

The flavor formula that makes Fleischmann's Gin such a good mixer is a closely guarded secret, known to only four men and a safe. But an increasingly large number of people know the result . . . the full-bodied smoothness of a Fleischmann drink.

Parley Called By Democrats To Heal Breach

Roosevelt, Advisers to Confer With Legislators 3 Days on Island.

members to Annapolis in the evening.

On the following morning the second group will arrive and Saturday will be largely a repetition of Friday. The third contingent will spend Sunday at the island retreat, after which they and the President will return to the Capital.

Arrangements for the meetings were announced after Senator Joseph T. Robinson, president of the Jefferson Island Club, which maintains the bay retreat, had called at the White House with a group of colleagues to invite the President to spend a week-end at the island.

Robinson was accompanied by Speaker Bankhead, of Alabama; Senator Pittman, Nevada; Senator Tydings, Maryland; Senator Duffy, Wisconsin, and Former Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, all prominent in the formation and operation of the club. Senator Robinson, to reporters, emphasized the social phases of the visits, but Stephen T. Early, one of the presidential secretaries, revealed details of the plans, from which the significance of the undertaking could be evaluated.

Printed charges among Congressional Democrats that the President had held himself aloof from them and not taken them fully into his confidence as to his legislative program, were recalled. It was emphasized that in accepting the invitation, the President was submitting himself to three solid days of conferences with and complaints from the lawmakers, and that the Hill Democrats would be at liberty to bring up any subject on which they sought information or guidance, or on which they felt aggrieved.

Members of the Cabinet, with the exception of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, will be present throughout the meetings, as also will Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, and other heads of independent agencies with Congressional problems. The President's three secretaries, his son James, Marvin McIntyre and Early likewise will be on hand.

Robinson, Senate majority leader, and his advisers, and Speaker Bankhead and his advisers on the House side will remain at the island clubhouse with the President throughout the three days.

The three contingents of House and Senate members will be taken to the island by boat, leaving Annapolis each morning at 9 o'clock and returning in the evening. Press headquarters will be maintained at Annapolis, 18 miles from the island, and reporters will not be able to get closer to the conferences than that point.

The President will make the trip from Annapolis aboard the Potomac, which he must leave 2 miles from the island, completing the trip by small boat.

The island was selected for the conferences, likely to prove historic in the affairs of the Democratic Party, because of the impracticability of holding them here, it was said at the White House. Robinson has divided the 407 eligibles into the three groups of approximately equal size, each group to have one day with Mr. Roosevelt.

Majority Will Attend.

Whether any of those eligible would remain away from the sessions was being speculated on last night. Absence of a considerable number would immediately be surrounded with significance in the minds of many, but there was little indication of such a development. Senators and House members who were questioned regarding their intentions all indicated they would be present.

Senator Burke, of Nebraska, one of the seven Democrats, who signed the sharply worded adverse Judiciary Committee report on the President's court reorganization bill, was quoted as saying he had no "present intention" of going, though he commented also that he couldn't act on any invitation before he received it.

Strictly Stag Affair.

To what extent these differences can be removed or lessened by the harmony sessions in Chesapeake Bay was a matter of speculation last night.

It was indicated yesterday that all of the House and Senate Democrats would not be invited—the five feminine members of the House and one woman Senator being excluded by announcement at the White House that it would be a "stag" affair. On this point, Representative Caroline O'Day told the Associated Press:

"Now I'm confident the President will give the few women involved a chance to talk with him in a private meeting of our own.

"Besides, the men might feel hesitancy about letting down their hair—taking off their coats and perhaps their shirts, I don't know—with us along."

Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, said she would enjoy a day of rest at home.

The exclusive Jefferson Island Club property, playground for leaders of the Democratic Party, has become noted for its food and informal comfort.

The club was organized some eight years ago by prominent Democrats, including Senator Robinson, the present President, Senator Pittman, Senator Tydings and Breckenridge Long, later Ambassador to Italy. Hawes was the first president.

Its membership includes about 100 party stalwarts, each of whom paid a $500 initiation fee and is paying $100 annual dues.

The clubhouse has accommodations for 21 persons, and its rooms include a recently constructed apartment for the President whenever he is a visitor there.

The reputation its cuisine has attained has centered around the oysters, terrapin, crabs and bluefish served, and has been accentuated through Former Senator Hawes, hobby of collecting cook books. For the coming harmony meetings, however, there will be no oysters or terrapin, since they are out of season.

Officials revealed yesterday that the old cook for the club recently quit and a new one is serving.

The clubhouse, dignified and richly furnished, is tucked away among the trees on the island. It has a large general living room with huge stone fireplace, and fitted with leather-covered easy chairs and sofas. There are shelves of books and numerous reading lamps.

A study built for the President, in which he may hold important conferences in complete privacy, is similarly furnished. On one wall is a large picture of the President at his desk, flanked on either side by pictures of Vice President Garner and the late Speaker Rainey. From the windows of the study one can look out over the bay, where many yachts ride at anchor.

The bedroom of the President's apartment, in one corner of the clubhouse, has striking views across the water to the mainland, 2½ miles to the closest shore. The furnishings include a four-poster bed and comfortable chairs with reading lamps.

The barroom is said to be amply stocked with what it takes to keep out the chill while sitting in a duck blind or casting over the side of a boat for fish.

Parley Nearly Ended in Row.

The island itself is one of a group of three, just off Claiborne, Md. They were originally named Wilson, Jackson and Roosevelt islands, but the Maryland Legislature gave the name Jefferson to the entire group. Much of the woodland has been cleared out to give a park-like appearance, but there still is considerable timber.

A skeet shoot is being arranged for the June 25, 26 and 27 visits, and there will be swimming and fishing available as well.

A gathering somewhat similar to the one set for next week, but on a smaller scale, was held there in 1934, when a large number of Democrats were invited, and, on arrival, were told they were being given an opportunity for outspoken, informal discussion of how things were going back in Washington. So outspoken and vigorous was some of the criticism that it was reported the party almost broke up in a row, Senators Robinson and Pittman finally persuading those present to talk about other things.

In 1935 President Roosevelt took members of the Cabinet and a number of other officials to the island for a week-end, at which, it was said, there was little discussion of governmental and political matters.

Government Concludes Case Against Parkers

Newark, N. J., June 16 (AP).—Testimony in the Parker kidnap conspiracy trial, which opened in Federal court April 27, was completed today when the Government rested its case after a brief rebuttal in which it attacked alibi evidence presented for Detective Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis, jr. The trial was adjourned until Tuesday, and it was expected the case would go to the jury Wednesday.

The Parkers are accused of plotting the abduction of Paul H. Wendel, who reputedly was forced through torture to confess falsely that he kidnaped the Lindbergh baby.

Somerville, Mass., June 16 (AP).—A lone gunman today held up the Somerville Co-operative Bank, next door to police headquarters, and escaped with a box containing $2,400 in cash after locking two women employes in a vault.

William P. Connery, Jr.

Representative William P. Connery, jr., of Massachusetts, had not yet reached his forty-ninth birthday and was in the very fullness of his powers when death cut short his promising career as a public servant.

A member of the House since the Sixty-eighth Congress, he had won the affection and esteem of his colleagues and of the public through his sincerity, energy and ability. In these 15 years since he made his first appearance on Capitol Hill the patriotism he had already displayed as a member of the A. E. F. during the war was often manifested. And the impress of his deep social sense and of his earnest efforts in the cause of labor was left on more than one forward-looking measure passed by Congress.

Co-author with Senator Wagner of the labor relations act, he was in the forefront of the move to establish minimum wages and maximum hours in American industry during the last weeks of his life. His untimely death is a real loss to Congress, to his State and to the Nation.

Mrs. Norton's Choice.

The passing of Mr. Connery puts Representative Norton, of New Jersey, in line for the chairmanship of the House Labor Committee. To assume it, she would be forced to relinquish her leadership of the House District Committee. The Labor Committee position offers an increase in prestige but it also imposes an unusually onerous responsibility. Furthermore, Mrs. Norton has become expert in District affairs since she was assigned to her present post in 1932. To leave that position now would involve a considerable rearrangement of her routine and interests.

Citizens of the District, at any rate, hope she will not desert them at this critical juncture. At the time of her appointment, Mrs. Norton was the first woman chairman of a Congressional committee and her capacity for leadership was yet to be proved. Since then, however, she has demonstrated both ability and—almost more important—a conscientiousness that have won for her a high esteem among her foster-constituents. Always approachable, always open to conviction, she has proven herself an invaluable advocate for the Capital City's interests in a body where such considerations are too often given only perfunctory attention. To lose her now would be a serious blow to Washington's uncertain fortunes.

A Civil Service Appeal Board.

Several bills have been introduced in Congress to create, in one form or another, a United States Civil Service Board of Appeals. The Federal Bar Association has recently considered one of the latest of these, which is sponsored by Representative Barry. After considerable study the association has indorsed the principle of the bill, but suggests that it be modified to provide an administrative board entirely independent of the Civil Service Commission.

There is little doubt that a board designed to safeguard the rights of Government employes would be a desirable addition to the Federal personnel machinery. The Civil Service Commission itself has recommended such a board, which would be a court of last resort, to hear appeals from departmental conciliation committees. Already a few such committees, composed of three minor supervisors appointed by the commission and three employes elected by their fellows, are functioning here and with general satisfaction. The creation of a board of appeals, however, will require an act of Congress.

Whether such a board should be within or separate from the Civil Service Commission is the chief point of debate. Arguments against an independent board are that the Government already has a superabundance of personnel agencies; that a board operating in close co-operation with the commission could keep recording and administrative expenses at a minimum; finally, the commission's field office facilities would simplify the handling of cases distant from Washington. In reply, it is declared that a board of appeals operating within the commission would be embarrassed if a complaint from an employe of the Civil Service Commission were received. The board, it is argued, should be entirely independent of all other Government influences.

In view of the pre-eminent success of the British civil service, its experience should throw some light on the issue. England favors a nonindependent board. There the general rule in regard to personnel is that all committees, commissions and other organizations should be amenable to the word of the highest authorities. If our personnel system is modified in line with the Brownlow report, there should be no objection to appointment of a board of appeals by the proposed civil service advisory committee.

The Problem Of Poverty.

President Roosevelt looks forward hopefully to raising the living standards of that submerged third of the population that is ill-clad, inadequately housed and undernourished. In other words, he is studying plans for the elimination of poverty in the United States. That is a goal toward which everybody yearns. In all enlightened countries the chief aim of social and economic reforms is to raise the standard of well-being, however much the methods of approach may differ.

The President's concern over the plight of the underprivileged is, therefore, an expression of humanitarian interest in a universal problem of the ages. One can but marvel, however, at an optimism so great as to believe that a legislative program can be devised to solve this problem within the next few years.

The President has undoubtedly done well in destroying complacent illusions that we as a people are signally well off. It is salutary to be frequently reminded that, despite our comparative wealth, a large proportion of Americans lack the means to live in decent comfort even in prosperous times. Although standards of adequacy are to a large extent matters of individual judgment, the weight of expert opinion supports the President's view that at least one-third of the people are underprivileged.

In fact, the Brookings Institution estimates that in 1929 slightly over 40 per cent of all American families had only a bare subsistence income or less. Yet at that time the national income in terms of goods produced and services rendered was placed at $81,000,000,000, compared with a Department of Commerce estimate of about $64,000,000,000 for 1936.

With nearly three-fourths of all families in the United States receiving less than $2,500 in 1929, it is obvious that a mere redistribution of money income will not suffice to banish poverty. The only way to lift the standard of living for a large proportion of the consuming masses is to increase the output of goods and services.

President Roosevelt has high hopes, it is said, that the pending minimum wage bill and maximum hour bill will carry us toward his goal of increased well-being for all. He himself has warned us, however, against taking a too narrow view of the complicated social and economic problems of the day. That warning applies with special force to a measure designed to raise labor's purchasing power under conditions likely to reduce industrial output.

According to experts of the Brookings Institution, a 40-hour work week combined with an increase of 25 per cent in efficiency and the same level of employment, would be necessary at present to yield as large an output as that attained in 1929, when a large proportion of the people were earning less than subsistence wages. Under these circumstances, it is evident that the length of the working week cannot be drastically reduced without a reduction in the material things that constitute real wealth as contrasted with nominal purchasing power. The overemphasis placed upon the importance of raising wage rates and reducing working hours is due to a failure to see our problems in long-time perspective and to realize that scarcity is not a cure for poverty.

Better distribution of purchasing power and elevation of minimum standards of pay are eminently desirable insofar as they can be achieved. Such conditions help to stabilize demands for basic commodities and reduce those economic inequalities that are politically as well as economically undesirable. But there can be no widespread substantial increase in workers' living standards unless an increase in money wages is accompanied by an expansion of the material products available for use and enjoyment.

Rights In Puerto Rico.

Since 1932 in Puerto Rico, the chief justice of the island's supreme court has been assaulted in his chambers, the chief of insular police and several officers have been slain, two local police chiefs and more officers have been wounded, and the resident commissioner for the island in Washington has been shot at. In addition, numerous bombings and riots have been more or less regularly reported from various sections of the island.

Recently came news that the judge of the Federal district court in Puerto Rico was fired upon by unidentified assailants, fortunately escaping without injury. The outrage occurred on the very day that Nationalist Party leaders, whom he had originally sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for conspiracy to overthrow the United States Government, were beginning their 6-to-10-year terms behind bars.

Similar and more positive implication of the Nationalist Party, which urges independence for Puerto Rico, has been established in most of the earlier incidents. In fact, it was the assassination of Col. Riggs, the insular police chief, that provoked the arrest and conviction of the Nationalist leaders. The judgment against them has been upheld by both a circuit court of appeals and the Supreme Court. It was brought out in their trials that they had urged the islanders to arm themselves against "Yankee imperialism." Albizu Campos, the party chief, was accused of having declared that instead of welcoming President Roosevelt with flowers, they should have received him with bullets.

It was following his conviction, and more particularly following a parade on Palm Sunday in the course of which several police and Nationalists were killed, that charges began to be heard about civil rights being abrogated in the islands. An investigation directed by the Civil Liberties Union in which several Puerto Ricans of high reputation participated indicates that minor officials have on occasion lost their tempers—and with tragic results. It is the responsibility of the island's ranking authorities that there be no repetition of this. A tightening of their own too tolerant attitude toward anarchic influences in the island would seem to be their best first move in the matter.

Getting Out Of Hand.

No progress appears to have been made toward settlement of the steel strike. On the contrary, that dispute is daily becoming more serious and far-reaching in its effects. From many different centers come reports of disorder, lawlessness, fighting among rival labor groups, a tightening of sieges around plants on strike and generally increasing tension. It is quite evident that more drastic measures will have to be taken if peace and public order are to be maintained.

In rejecting the compromise proposed by Gov. Davey of Ohio, the steel companies have taken a thoroughly arbitrary position. From the very beginning of the strike their case has been weak. President Roosevelt voiced the general reaction when he said that companies willing to make oral agreements should also be willing to put them in writing. But the companies' refusal to sign contracts with the C. I. O. is only window-dressing for their unwillingness to make any sort of agreements with that organization.

Of course, the labor relations act does not require an employer to enter into an agreement with his employes. As Senator Wagner has pointed out, Congress has no constitutional power to impose such a requirement. The act merely compels employers to meet with the representatives of their workers and discuss terms on the basis of voluntary agreement. But the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee has not even taken advantage of this provision. Its failure to seek a supervised election to determine whether it is entitled to speak for the employes of the companies on strike is just as unreasonable as the attitude taken by the managements.

In these circumstances, the machinery set up by Congress for the peaceful adjustment of labor disputes remains inoperative. Violence takes the place of negotiations. To a large extent the causes of these disturbances are overshadowed by the increasing threat of widespread disorder, if not anarchy. The immediate problem is one of controlling lawless elements that are inclined to run amuck.

Since both sides appear to be at fault and our national labor policy appears to be entirely inadequate to cope with the situation, it is too much to expect any governmental agency to step in and force a settlement. No doubt attempts to compromise the intricate issues at stake will continue. But in the meantime there is a grave problem of protecting the public, as well as strikers and non-strikers, against rioting and mob attacks.

The appeal of Mayor Shields of Johnstown, Pa., for the President's aid in removing "the murderous element that now infests the city" is an ominous warning that law enforcement may break down in some communities unless immediate steps are taken to restore order. Regardless of what may be the rights of either party engaged in the strike, no group has license to take the law into its own hands. Already the strong-arm methods apparently sanctioned by the C. I. O. have given rise to vigilante groups in several communities. Unless State authorities are ready to take a more vigorous stand against lawlessness the danger of open warfare will become more and more grave.

Certainly it is time for public authority to assert itself. Antagonistic groups cannot be left to fight out their own battles without inviting anarchy. If officials are true to their public trust, they will meet this widespread outburst of violence with drastic enforcement of the law regardless of where its effects may fall.

An Act Of Courage.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Although Americans like to think of themselves as a free people and will denounce any effort on the part of their Government to tell them what they shall think or read or say or attend in the way of entertainment, it is a fact that movements toward official censorship are exceedingly common among us.

It is also a fact that vetoing such extensions of governmental power is one of the hardest things that conscientious public officials have to do. The reason is obvious. Most attempts to fasten a censorship upon us are made under the plea of morality or patriotism or protection of the young, or some other high-sounding motive.

The New York legislature passed a bill giving the New York City authorities enlarged powers of censorship over the theater. The bill had powerful sponsors. But this morning Gov. Lehman finally mustered up courage to veto it.

For this action, which, despite all that may be argued against it, is wholly in accord with the best American tradition, he deserves the thanks of all of us.

Refugee Children.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thousands of children, homeless, orphaned, without any care or protection as a result of the continued merciless destruction of the cities of northern Spain, have been sent to other countries to be cared for until this most savage of wars has ended. It has been proposed to send 500 of the tiny victims of this wanton destruction to America to be cared for. However, the daily press refers to powerful pressure being brought to bear on the immigration service to prevent these tots from finding an asylum here until their country can again care for them.

The population of our nation today was in a large measure begun by those who were forced to flee from Old World countries to escape persecution and in many cases death itself. How can it be that we cannot care for such an insignificant addition as 500 children? Or is the truth of the matter that the publicity which will focus on the children is feared by those who are promoting the war now in progress over there?

It is unthinkable that our traditional policy should be reversed by any clique, however powerful they may consider themselves to be. Congress would do well to invite as many thousand of these children to come to America for the duration of hostilities in their own country. At that time, if they desired or their guardians see fit for them to become naturalized citizens, room can be found for them by deporting a similar number of the undesirables now here.

The Paris Exposition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was greatly amused by the beautiful tale, written by Agnes E. Meyer, in describing the International Exhibition in Paris. The article appeared in The Post of June 12. It seems that the express purpose of the article was to disseminate Fascists' propaganda, else why should it so lavishly extol the Fascists and so viciously damn the Soviets?

Mrs. Meyer forgot to tell us that the very appearance of swastika drew scorn and hatred of nearly all the spectators, while the hammer and sickle in the hand of a victorious worker drew enthusiasm and approval.

Neither did she tell us that the imposing, gigantic statue, glorifying the workers and farmers of the world, was erected immediately with the greatest enthusiasm by the French unionists, while the Fascists were compelled to import their forced labor from their countries, because the French Popular Front refused to erect the Fascist emblem of slavery.

While Mrs. Meyer profusely praised the "beautiful" Fascists' inscription, she could no spare a single word of praise for the most beautiful, as far as the common people of the world are concerned. The most beautiful, so the Frenchmen tell us, was the Soviet's.

Noise In Bethesda.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice in The Post of June 14 "Victim's" letter about the loud noises in Washington. Evidently, "Victim" has never visited Bethesda, for out here we know what real noise is, and Washington by comparison is a vale of peace and quiet. I speak feelingly, for already Bethesda is shooting fire crackers, and this racket will increase daily in violence, until the hated Fourth.

If there is anything in the new medical discovery, that listening to loud noise causes deafness, residents of Bethesda better start lessons now in lip reading.

Subordinate Problems Of Immigration

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your correspondents, Mr. J. D. Mason and Mr. William L. Rau, presenting the fact that 190,000 aliens entered the United States in the fiscal year 1936, and the further fact that more than 1,100,000 entered in the last six years, have gravely misled your readers, I believe. They have neglected to mention that four-fifths of these entrants were not immigrants at all, but were aliens of the nonimmigrant classes.

The truth is that since former President Hoover approved Secretary Stimson's order of September 8, 1930, the alien immigrant influx has been reduced far below the quota figures fixed by the Johnson-Reed act of 1924. This order began to show very substantial results in the fiscal year 1932. It continues in force under the wise administration of Mr. Secretary Hull. In the past five years the average number of immigrant aliens arriving annually has been less than 32,000, and most of these have been persons who established visa eligibility by blood relationship to American citizens or by other special qualifications.

The balance, making up the larger figures given by your correspondents, have been temporary visitors, aliens in transit across our country, aliens returning from temporary visits abroad, officials of foreign governments and other nonimmigrants—altogether 154,570 last year and 884,264 in six years. To refer to these as new settlers coming to take jobs away from American citizens is not only to misrepresent the facts, but also to imply that our consular and other officials have failed to administer the laws faithfully. Such an implication is wholly unwarranted, the fact being that no employes of government have functioned more honorably or conscientiously.

Every student of public affairs knows that the policy of immigrant restriction should have been adopted many years ago. All credit to those (presumably including Mr. Mason and Mr. Rau) who encouraged adoption of that policy. But let us recognize that by its adoption there were created numerous subordinate problems that cannot be solved instantly. It serves no good purpose to blink such problems or to deal with them in harsh and captious spirit. Better by far to seek adjustments that will not impinge upon the principal necessity, namely, the maintenance of the restrictive policy.

Among these subordinate problems is that of the alien whose violation of the law, in most cases before the restrictive machinery began to function with substantial effectiveness, was more technical than villainous. The Kerr-Coolidge bill of the Seventy-fourth Congress was intended to meet this problem. It was not a competent measure. It had several mistaken ideas in it. I have pointed to the deletion of these ideas from the pending Dies bill, and have stated an opinion that the latter, although not perfect, deserves consideration in the Congress.

I have been accused untruthfully of saying there is no alien problem in America. What I have said is that the immigration problem, as we formerly knew it, no longer exists. This is manifest from the record. In less than two decades the open-door policy which subsisted more than a century has been reversed, a competent and orderly plan of immigrant control has been established, and the world has been made cognizant of our determination that America shall not receive the world's surplus population as it formerly did.

No good end can be served by belittling either this achievement or those who have brought it to pass. Nor does it promote the public interest to insist upon harsh and punitive measures directed toward human beings—though they be aliens—who have fallen afoul of technicalities during this period of transition from a loose to a strict immigration policy. I make no apology for representing such persons or for urging consideration of even an imperfect statute which, while relieving some, will most certainly deprive me of other clientele within this category.

PETER F. SNYDER.

Pot And Kettle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Roosevelt's recent scream against tax avoidance is merely another one of his successful attempts to get into the headlines. He is much like a small boy who constantly demands attention. Whenever Mr. Roosevelt finds himself crowded off the center of the national stage, whenever the national spotlight is turned elsewhere, he has a political tantrum. He yells and screams. He blames something (it doesn't matter what), on "the rich," and the newspapers obligingly put him back into the front-page headlines and relegate really important issues to inside pages.

Why not treat such political tantrums as psychologists tell us to treat a small child's tantrums? Ignore them. Put them at the bottom of page 17, under some inconspicuous headline. Must anything a President says be considered "news" even when it is trivial, absurd and an obvious political trick?

According to the best Internal Revenue statistical opinion, not more than $50,000,000 is involved in the present tax avoidance hue and cry. What is $50,000,000 to a New Deal, which has publicly referred to far larger sums as "pin money."

Mr. Roosevelt's tax charges reach a new height of absurdity—even for the New Deal. The President goes into a tantrum over tax avoidance while his Secretary of the Treasury issues new tax-exempt Government bonds! The President talks about the immorality of tax avoidance—and pays no tax, State or Federal, on the large income which he receives in salary and "services."

Why should it be front-page news when the pot calls the kettle black? Must the press continue to dignify these recurrent political tantrums by headlines?

TAXPAYER.
Washington, June 9.

Big Business.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Big business has accumulated its large reserves of capital by underpaying its workmen for their labor and underpaying the farmers for their raw materials. It deprives the Government of legal taxes by slipping through ridiculous loopholes in our laws and passes onto the consumer every penny of taxes which it can escape from paying. It has frozen its capital reserves ever since the depression began and thus inaugurated its "sit-down strike" years before the French taught the C. I. O. the meaning of the term.

How true. Christians and 100 per cent Americans can sympathize with big business (which has no more Christianity nor patriotism than a flea) in its present struggle with labor is past belief. It demonstrates how well it has disseminated its misleading propaganda through press, pulpit and "patriotic" clubs.

Democratic "Mortgage."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent report of the Democratic National Committee shows a loan to it by the United Mine Workers of $50,000. This is probably an answer to those who have wondered why the President has so long and so consistently refused to express an opinion on the sit-down strikes in which Mr. Lewis' union has been so much involved.

It would be interesting to know just how long the union has held this "mortgage" on the committee, when it is due, and how it originated. In other words, it is a club that is being held over the head of the dominant political party.

A New Sewer System.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Truly Washington is reputed to be one of the most beautiful capitals in the world. Rains last week once more sent disease into homes from broken-down sewers which seem doomed to continue until Capitol Hill shrinks to the level of the streets. Then maybe "our" Congressmen will suddenly awaken amid the devastating fumes and see Washington's primary requirement, a modern sewerage system.

Miss Freedom.

NEARLY every time a sightseeing bus discharges passengers at the east front of the Capitol in Washington, some one, gazing at the figure atop the huge structure's dome, asks: "What is that statue up there?" Answers come quickly. "An Indian," some one volunteers without hesitation. "It is the Statue of Liberty," another says with equal confidence. But, no. It is the Goddess of Freedom.

The mistakes are excusable. One reason is that the goddess' elevated position—307½ feet above the street—makes recognition or identification difficult. Even thousands of Washingtonians, among whom the goddess has lived for the allotted three score and ten, call her by the wrong name.

There are reasons other than her lofty position for this mistake in identity. The goddess' bronze complexion and her headdress—a starred helmet decorated with eagle feathers and drooping tobacco leaves—do make her look somewhat like an Indian chief. Her flowing robe, fastened at her breast by a brooch inscribed "U. S.," explains why some persons mistake her for "Liberty."

Miss Freedom, though a very old maid now, has managed to retain her youthful looks—and this despite constant exposure to the elements since that memorable day in December, 1863, when she was firmly bolted to the pedestal from which she has since surveyed her kingdom.

For her exalted position she has three men to thank: Thomas Crawford, American sculptor and father of F. Marion Crawford, novelist; Charles Sumner, who helped to "discover" Thomas Crawford, and Clark Mills, another sculptor, at whose foundry the bronze figure was cast.

The Goddess of Freedom was modeled in 1860 by Thomas Crawford, who also designed the Crawford doors of the Capitol and the pediment of the Senate wing.

In the beginning she was merely a plaster woman, and in that form came from Italy, where Crawford was living at the time he modeled her.

On her first appearance in America she wore a liberty cap and carried a bundle of rods. But, like a woman, she had to have a change. She was assisted in this by Jefferson Davis, then Secretary of War, who objected to the cap on the ground that it was the Greek symbol of an emancipated slave, and to the rods because they suggested a Roman lictor. Crawford recognized the merit of these objections at once. Therefore, he substituted for the cap the starred helmet, and for the rods a sheathed sword and shield.

The goddess reached America in five sections. Under the supervision of Clark Mills and his son she was "made whole," in the Mills' bronze foundry at Bladensburg, Md.—the only bronze foundry in this country at that time.

It was during the Civil War that Miss Freedom was brought to Washington and placed atop the lantern that surmounts the Capitol's dome. As curious crowds watched, the ponderous bronze figure was lifted, section by section, to its commanding position, and bolted to the great structure of which it has since been an inseparable part. Early in December, 1863, the head was hoisted to the broad shoulders and made secure there. Afterward, as the enfolding flag fell from the statue, a national salute was fired from nearby forts.

After the bronze goddess had been elevated and honored, the plaster sister, having played her important but less spectacular role, was left to pine in a lonely, unused corner of Statuary Hall in the Capitol. But even a greater indignity was in store. The space she occupied was needed for the statue of some statesmen, so the plaster woman was dismembered and stored in the Capitol crypt. There, quite by accident, the son of Clark Mills found her and protested so vigorously against such treatment that the crumbling model was removed and placed in friendly hands.

Cared for by a plastic surgeon-sculptor, the goddess' bruised features and body were restored to normal. When restoration had been completed, the model was removed to the prominent position it now occupies in the center corridor of the National Museum.

The bronze Goddess of Freedom weighs 15,000 pounds, a considerable weight even for her height of 19½ feet. Her head, face and hands are highly polished and very smooth. Her generous mantle is of rough bronze. The various sections of her body were so securely bolted that during her long vigil there has been no indication that she might topple from her lofty pinnacle.

There come times when even a goddess needs a bath, and Miss Freedom has not been an exception. Occasionally, Washingtonians and visitors to the city gaze wonderingly at the nimble steeplejacks who crawl out of an aperture in the lantern on which the ponderous bronze figure stands. After building a scaffold about the goddess, these men give her a good going-over—scrubbing, scraping, scouring and polishing until her huge form gleams like a mirror. It has taken as much as a week to bathe and beautify her properly, which is not a reflection, her size considered. Besides, some of that time is devoted to laundry work incident to cleaning her robes.

Evasion And Avoidance.

AS A PRELIMINARY to the Congressional Investigation of Moral and Civil Delinquency on the part of persons who pay no more than their legal dues under the income tax the House of Representatives has turned down a bill which would have imposed a local income tax on the boys themselves.

The District of Columbia faces a deficit of $6,000,000 for the coming fiscal year, and a small income tax was proposed, among other measures, to meet the problem. This bill would have taxed the Congressmen and their secretaries, clerks and political appointees residing in Washington, and indignant cries rang through the historic halls of the sacred heritage on Capitol Hill.

Incidentally, the secretaries and clerks in some cases are more or less needy relatives or political liabilities of the statesmen, who might otherwise require whole or partial support out of the members' own pay of $10,000 a year, plus mileage and perquisities. It is much less burdensome to support a wife, a no-good cousin or an indigent brother-in-law afflicted with chronic fatigue, on Government pay as a secretary or clerk, than to meet the loved one's need direct out of the $10,000 a year, plus mileage and perquisites.

The statesmen get an allowance of 20 cents a mile for their travel, but it is earnestly suggested that no moral or civil delinquent among the tax paying class charge that much in computing his costs of calling on the customers. The Internal Revenue Department would defy him to cite any railroad, plane or omnibus line in the country which charges 20 cents a mile for travel, and might indict him for attempting to rob the deserving poor.

• • • •

THE INTERNAL REVENUE also would look extremely askance at any return which named the wife, no-good cousin or indigent brother-in-law of the taxpayer as his secretary or clerk, and require him to show cause. Members of Congress, however, are not required to prove that their travel costs 20 cents a mile, and there are some who contend that a statesman, driving his own flivver, sleeping in four-bit flops and subsisting on hot dogs along the road, can travel for as little as a nickel a mile, including tips.

As for the employment of wives, no-good cousins and indigent brothers-in-law as secretaries and clerks, custom and the moral and civil conscience of the statesmen long ago provided the color of legality. So the issue is closed.

All the Congressmen and their office employes, including relatives, as well as their political liabilities holding Government jobs, are exempt from the income taxes of their respective States. However, Mr. Dies, a sterling statesman from Texas, who took part in the successful resistance to the outrage, issued a patriotic statement for the Record that he would gladly lay down his State income tax if he were not unfortunately forbidden to do so by several rulings of the Federal Supreme Court.

• • • •

MR. DIES' HEART bled openly in anguish over his constitutional incapacity to share the income-tax burden of his home State of Texas, which has no State income tax, anyway. Nevertheless, on principle, he declared he was not willing to submit to a local income tax to save from bankruptcy the District of Columbia, in which he spends much of his time enjoying the benefits of the police, the fire department and the street-cleaning services.

It will be seen, however, that Patriot Dies was morally and ethically pure and in no degree unfit to sit in judgment on tax dodgers who evade their taxes.

Another patriot who discussed the proposed outrage was Congressman O'Connor, of New York, who once—in the absence of the Rev. Father Charlie Coughlin—threatened to kick him all the way up Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the White House, but later explained that he did not mean that literally.

Congressman O'Connor pays no salary income tax to New York State, being debarred from the spiritual joy of citizenship by the same deplorable aberrations of the Supreme Court that exempt all other Federal employes from the income taxes of 32 States.

But Mr. O'Connor is eligible for a New York State pension on account of his Federal service under a law which was enacted very quietly in Albany several years ago, and so are his secretaries and his Congressional clerks.

• • • •

O'CONNOR'S sentiments were tinged with contempt for the selfish spirit of the Washington people. He called them leeches, but, owing to the regrettable limitations on debate in the House of Representatives, did not explain the difference between a leech and a patriot who pays no State income tax on his salary, but nevertheless enjoys the right to a State pension for Federal service.

With this blast the statesmen of the House of Representatives sounded the moral keynote of the Inquiry into the Iniquitous Evasion and Avoidance of Income Taxes.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

All's Quiet on the Volga.

The scene is the private office of Premier Stalin. Commissars Popolovitch, Karalopfskoff and Orloffsky are in morning conference. Stalin is pacing the room in a high state of nervousness.

Popolovitch—What's troubling you, Comrade? You seem disturbed.

Stalin—I am disturbed. I haven't been able to pin a plot on any of my associates in 72 hours!

• • • •

Karalopfskoff—Maybe there hasn't been a plot in 72 hours, Comrade.

Stalin (derisively)—Don't belittle the new Russia like that!

Orloffsky—That would not be a sign of a weak Russia. In some countries four or five days pass without any plots against the government.

Stalin—Capitalistic countries! Swine countries! Decadent countries! Russia is a revitalized country, a strong country, a new country. It should never let a day pass without a fresh plot. Seventy-two whole hours and not a sign of disloyalty anywhere . . . I don't like the looks of it!

• • • •

Karalopfskoff (trying to be reassuring)—I wouldn't worry, Comrade. Probably a plot will get under way any minute now.

Stalin—But why should there be uncertainty? It shows a lack of system. These plots should be at regular intervals.

Orloffsky—I spoke to some of the boys about this only last week, and they promised to turn out their plots on schedule.

Stalin—Did they seem willing to plot against me?

Orloffsky—Not only willing but ANXIOUS!

• • • •

Stalin—Good! But what's delaying them? (There is an explosion without. He jumps under a desk.) What was that?

Popolovitch (after looking out the window)—It was nothing but an automobile backfiring.

Stalin—So, they're trifling with me, eh! Here I am with my firing squads and my courts all ready for a nice big plot and what do I get? Automobile backfirings! What is Soviet Russia coming to?

Popolovitch—You needn't worry about the courts. The judge has gone on a picnic in the Urals for a couple of days.

Stalin—But suppose I DO discover a plot and arrest some traitors?

Popolovitch—It'll be all right. The judge left the decision he handed down in the last case.

• • • •

Stalin (suddenly looking at the clock)—Look! It is 12 o'clock and not a traitor in the house! I demand some treason immediately. Am I boss around here or not?

Orloffsky—Do you distrust us, Comrade?

Stalin (sorrowfully)—No. That's what makes me so unhappy!

Maybe those corporation heads who bought $12,000 worth of books from the Democratic National Committee used them to ballast their incorporated yachts. If so, it would seem to make everything even in the 1937 Morality Open Tournament.

The "Crown Prince"

Pennsylvania's Gov. Earle Hailed By State Press As Heir Apparent Of National New Deal; Roosevelt Techniques Followed.

By Eugene Pharo.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Philadelphia.

PERHAPS BECAUSE he is being thought of, by those outside as well as inside of Pennsylvania, as "the crown prince of the New Deal," Gov. Earle's accomplishments to date in his administration of the Keystone State are beginning to receive respectful attention even from Pennsylvania newspapers that are opposed to his party. This was illustrated with the adjournment of the Legislature on June 6, when an editorial chorus of praise for most of his achievements was struck up.

The more cynical, on the other hand, might ascribe this noticeable lack of customary partisan venom to the fact that in the more radical features of the program that the Governor outlined for his party last January, he has met with a great deal less than success. In every instance, this failure was in the field of the so-called "vested interests" from whose sway he had declared it to be his intention to free the Commonwealth.

In particular, he had failed to make headway in solving the bootleg coal situation through State action; he had not succeeded in his intention of eliminating "company towns," and a proposal for building up a clean water supply for Philadelphia was defeated because it threatened to put the city into the business of supplying power to communities between the Poconos and the metropolis.

Accomplishments of the administration in the field of labor and the "average man" had, moreover, strung along so exactly in tempo with the national New Deal—though not going in any way beyond it—that any publisher sensitive to popular opinion, especially as demonstrated by last November's vote in Pennsylvania, could not choose otherwise than to give approval.

New Deal Analogies Discerned In Program.

FROM POINT OF VIEW of national politics there are several analogies in the program that the Governor succeeded in putting through the Legislature, at times in face of opposition from members of his own party. His individual actions and expressions, moreover, often coincided with the policies and attitudes unfolded by his acknowledged leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. In the legislation passed in the State there have been included a number of measures whose constitutionality has been promptly challenged, and that are being argued before the State Supreme Court to the accompaniment of charges of political domination of the courts through "ripper" legislation meant to displace Republican judges and office-holders in order to make way for Democrats.

In the field of foreign affairs Gov. Earle has also on more than one occasion seized opportunities for acquainting the State and country with his awareness of European issues, and to express an American attitude toward them; or at any rate, what he considers to be an American attitude. Suppression of motion pictures on the Spanish conflict that he thought might inspire enlistments among the young, previously reported in these columns, made one instance. His recent speech in Washington before the Southern Society, in which he expressed his and President Washington's attitude toward foreign entanglements, was another. His service as Minister to Austria, which preceded his election as Governor of Pennsylvania, has provided him with apt illustrations for the points he has chosen to make.

In the general field of public utterance he has also taken his cue from President Roosevelt, phrasing the issues between classes even more melodramatically—a fact that is comparatively easy of accomplishment as, even if Gov. Earle were at a loss for phrases himself, he has the undoubtedly willing aid of a large number of former newspaper men who are in his official family; one of them, Richard J. Beamish, a member of the newly created Public Utility Commission, having for years been noted for his command of flamboyant sentences.

"Government By Heart" Praised in Legislature.

AS AN EXAMPLE of Gov. Earle's inspired utterance there is the preamble of a talk that he made over the radio following adjournment of the Legislature. In this he summarized the pledges that had been kept, although ignoring the ones that remain to be fulfilled, and summed everything up with the statement, "Government of the heart has been substituted for government by greed." (As yet no captious critic has suggested the peculiar lack in this statement of reference to government of the head.)

He described the task faced by the first completely Democratic Administration in nearly a century as occuring after "a half-century of misrule—misrule which had crippled our commonwealth, plundered its people, oppressed its farmers and workers . . ."

"In going forward," he continued, "to meet the twin evils of depression and misrule, we were all deeply, fervently praying for guidance and inspiration . . . a few dynasts, at the top of the economic pyramid, for generations had dictated the destinies of the toiling masses below, had controlled their Government, had told them how, and when, and under what conditions they should live . . ."

The measures by which Gov. Earle and his administration proceeded to change this state of affairs, with "the guiding beacon in our course . . . the age-old creed 'We are our brothers' keeper,'" included enactment of a "little Wagner act," modeled on the national labor law; centralization of all public relief and assistance in a State Department of Public Assistance (thus eliminating nearly 400 poor boards that had been sources of local patronage, and which elimination produced the first conflict within the party); enactment of minimum wage and maximum hour legislation; a statute permitting control of sweatshops and home labor; an act reducing the rates of interest allowed pawnbrokers; amendments to the workmen's compensation act to bring it up to the level of some of the more advanced States; procuring of Federal funds for use in the rehabilitation of various State hospitals and institutions; abolition of privately engaged deputy sheriffs, and permission for the inhabitants of the State to go fishing on Sunday.

Flood Control Plan Successfully Adopted.

OTHER LEGISLATION that seems to have met with general approval included a plan of flood control, to be co-ordinated with Federal plans; a measure intended to end stream pollution, but which was marred by amendements favoring coal companies, and which carries compartively light penalties; aid to townships in the construction of roads, that gives more centralized control as well as State financial assistance; a measure to be submitted to popular vote this fall, that will, if passed, enable the electorate to vote upon amendments to the State Constitution oftener than every five years; consolidation of the State police and the State Motor Patrol; amendments to the power of the State Liquor Control Board, and a few other statutes of varying importance.

In the field in which politics is clearly recognized as having had more than its fair share of influence, there is a series of acts abolishing commissions, agencies and courts, whose personnel had been appointed under the previous Republican control of the State. These include abolition of Philadelphia's Municipal Court, and the substitution of three other courts, through one of the measures of which the constitutionality is now being tested before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Several lawyers including former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, have expressed the opinion that this measure challenges the independence of judges, and tends toward political destruction of legal and constitutional values.

The measures that failed of enactment, or were not introduced because of conflict of opinion and interest, have been mentioned. The bootleg coal situation, which is still being studied by a State commission, on the basis of which Gov. Earle made no recommendations. The members of the commission had failed to agree on a method of setting the industry on its feet and supplying jobs for the bootleggers. The last heard of the subject was on June 4, when Gov. Earle announced that unless operators in Northumberland and Schuylkill counties, where most of the bootlegging has occured, open sufficient mines to provide legitimate jobs by January 1, he may then sponsor a definite plan for State and Federal intervention.

In the meantime, still in the Roosevelt tempo, Gov. Earle has announced: "We are only beginning. This session has given us the green light to go ahead with those reforms which we promised. We have the laws on the books. Now we must translate them into positive, effective action."

Rep. Connery's Death Saddens Leaders of U. S.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Many Others Express Condolences.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt joined numerous dignitaries yesterday in expressing condolences to the wife of Representative William Connery, 48-year-old chairman of the House Labor Committee, who died Monday of food poisoning.

As the body was en route to Lynn, Mass., last night, chemists were investigating for Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who performed an autopsy, the exact nature of the poisoning.

The House of Representatives met yesterday and adjourned promptly in respect to the memory of the wiry little former song and dance man who became the President's spokesman in the Administration fight to enact minimum wage laws.

"Able Legislator Lost."

The Nation loses an able and conscientious legislator whose service can ill be spared," Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt telegraphed Marie Antoinette Connery at the family home.

Mr. Roosevelt called Connery "a champion of the rights of the underprivileged," and said Connery "literally wore himself out in an effort to find in national legislation a solution for an age-old problem which would be equitable to the rights of labor and capital."

Solemn high requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church in Lynn, at an hour tentatively set at 9 a. m. Military rites, offered by the veterans' organizations, of which he was a member, may accompany the religious rites.

Veterans Escort Body.

Washington members of the Yankee Division and the Irish War Veterans, of which Connery was a member, acted as an escort yesterday when the casket was placed aboard a train. Brig. Gen. Bernard W. Kearney, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said:

"The untimely death of Congressman Connery is a distinct loss to his overseas comrades, in whose welfare he was always effectively interested. His cheerful persistency in improving the lot of the "underdog" endeared him to the hearts of all of us."

At the Capitol ,Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn were visibly affected as the formal announcement of their colleague's death was read to a silent House.

Heart Attack.

Death, Dr. MacDonald said, was caused by a heart attack brought on by a severe gastro-intestinal infection. It could have been caused by food poisoning, the doctor said, but added, "We will not know the exact cause for some time—perhaps for two weeks."

The widow was reported prostrated with grief at Lynn. She received countless telegrams and messages. She released to the press the message from the President, which reads in full:

"Mrs. Roosevelt and I share the grief which has come to you with such sudden and tragic force and hasten to assure you of our heartfelt sympathy.

"In the untimely passing of Congressman Connery the Nation loses an able and conscientious legislator whose service can ill be spared.

"An earnest champion of the rights of the underprivileged as chairman of the House Labor Committee, he literally wore himself out in his effort to find in national legislation a solution for an age-old problem, which would be just and equitable to the rights of capital and labor.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

The American Federation of Government Employes adjourned its meeting the night of Connery's death in respect to him, and adopted the following resolution:

"Be it resolved, We were shocked and deeply regret the passing of a friend of labor and defender of the rights of his fellow men."

Movie Censor Post Vacancy Attracts More Than 20 Bids

Richmond, Va., June 16 (AP).—Virginians, it seems, relish the idea of looking at motion pictures and being paid $3,000 a year to do it.

More than a score of applicants have put in their bids for the vacancy on the State Board of Motion Picture Censors and political leaders from almost every section are waging a battle of indorsements in an effort to capture the place for a favorite.

Attorney General A. P. Staples, who must make the appointment, is seeking to give the various applicants hearings. The attorney general is campaigning for reelection and the appointment, apparently of interest to a large number of vote-swingers, may hold some political importance.

The death of R. C. L. Moncure, of Stafford, caused the vacancy on the board. Edwin Reid, of Pittsylvania, and Mrs. John Chalkley, of Wise, are the present members.

Holt Cites Record In Favor of Labor

Richmond, Va., June 16 (AP).—State Senator Saxon W. Holt, of Newport News, a candidate for the office of Lieutenant Governor, said tonight his labor voting record of more than 30 years showed a 77 per cent vote in favor of labor legislation.

Holt, who is opposing the candidacy of State Senator Robert W. Daniel, of Brandon, for Lieutenant Governor, said he was able to match labor records with any Virginia Legislator of long or short service.

The Newport News candidate said he had tabulated his labor voting record, listing the session year, his vote and the page where the record may be found.

Blum's Victory

By Barnet Nover

Popular Front Weathers Storm.

AT 2 O'CLOCK on Wednesday morning, after the Chamber of Deputies had been in session for 11 strenuous hours, the jig appeared to be up for the Blum government.

Violent dissension had broken out among the parties making up the French Popular Front and it looked as if the partnership between Radical Socialists, Socialists and Communists was about to come to an end. Indeed, so serious was the outlook for the year-old government that one correspondent at that moment cabled his newspaper that only a miracle could save the day for Blum.

By dawn, however, the miracle had occurred. In the vote on the bill to give the cabinet emergency powers to deal with the financial crisis, the government won by 346 to 247. This was a much smaller majority than Blum has heretofore enjoyed. But it was ample. The political crisis was over even if the financial crisis was not.

• • • •

THE FLARE-UP in the Popular Front, momentary though it was, had a double significance. It revealed, in the first place, the increasingly critical attitude being taken by the Radicals toward the government's whole program of social reform which bears a direct relationship to the troublesome financial situation. And, by its culmination, it revealed how much the Communists had become the prisoners of the Popular Front.

In the Fascist press of Europe the point is labored that it is the Communist tail in France that wags the Popular Front dog, that Blum is the reluctant agent of the Kremlin and the Comintern. The absurdity of this theory has already been demonstrated by the Spanish crisis. There are many who feel that Blum's stand on Spain has been short-sighted, weak-kneed and, in the long run, harmful both to French and to world interests. This may and may not be so. But the fact nevertheless remains that Blum's policy has been distinctly distasteful to French Communists among others. The Communists, however, have continued to stick by the Popular Front.

Apparently they still feel it necessary to support the present government even though it has now, on top of its refusal to aid the Valencia regime, refused to adopt the Communist theory on taxation. The French Reds sought to commit the cabinet, as the price of their continued support, to refrain from imposing any new direct levies, i. e. on cigarettes, matches, postal and railway rates, etc. This the government, under pressure from the Radicals refused to do, whereupon the Communists gave signs of deserting the Popular Front.

But, when it finally came to a showdown, the Communists failed to carry out their threat. Nothing is more important in their eyes, even if it means losing face, than the continuance in power of the Popular Front.

BLUM'S VICTORY was not his alone. It was also a victory for the Radical Socialists who, for some time, have been urging the government to pursue a moderate policy now that a good part of the Popular Front's program has been carried out. Yet they, too, were careful in avoiding any step that might smash the present coalition. It remains for them an asset rather than a liability as has been the case from the beginning of the Blum regime.

In any case, the government has been given plenary power to solve the financial problem and to do so by any measures it may see fit to take. During the next month it can issue decrees which will have the force of law. Probably it will resort both to increased direct taxes and to new and increased indirect levies as well as additional borrowing. But whether or not it will be able to cut the Gordian knot of France's financial difficulties is by no means clear.

The financial crisis in France is of long duration. It was not solved by deflation and has not been solved by devaluation. The latter move was belated and much of its possible good effects have already been dissipated. Yet there can be no doubt that it did give a boost to French industry. Because of devaluation and for other reasons, French industry today is in a more prosperous condition than it was a year ago. The curve of production in the building, metal, machinery and other industries in rising. There has been a decline in the number of bankruptcies. Unemployment has been reduced. At the same time French industry has tended during recent years to become more efficient, more capable of turning recovery to advantage. As the London Economist points out:

The profitability of French industry today has not only been restored over the bulk of industry, it has been restored to a higher real extent than a comparsion of indices for, say, 1931 and 1937, would suggest.

YET THERE CAN be no doubt that part, in some instances a large part, of the benefits of devaluation have been offset by rising prices occasioned by increased costs of raw materials which have to be purchased abroad and, in particular, by higher production costs from increased wage scales and reduced working hours.

The government's program has also added to the budgetary difficulties as well as to industry's problems. Thus the increased revenue pouring into the French treasury (tax receipts during the first quarter of this year were 750,000,000 francs higher than for the comparable period of 1936) have not even been enough to cover ordinary expenditures, let alone the extraordinary expenditures for rearmament as well. Thus the budget deficit has grown, confidence in the stability of the franc has waned, the market for government bonds has weakened and the flight of capital from France continues.

Whether, through its contemplated measures the government will be able to bring order out of chaos in the financial situation remains to be seen. Devaluation was, it is clear, not enough. Last spring's loan was also not enough. New taxes are needed and also more loans. But essentially the French problem if serious is not unsolvable.

THE WEAK SPOTS in the picture are four in number. First and foremost and best reflecting the general situation, is the lack of confidence shown by French capitalists in the stability of the franc; their unwillingness, therefore, to repatriate the money they had sent abroad for safekeeping. Finance Minister Auriol was probably correct in saying that if France had back the more than 50,000,000,000 francs ($2,200,000,000) which have been sent abroad, "we would have no worries about our money."

Secondly, there is the tendency of the price level to rise. Between April, 1936, and April, 1937, wholesale prices in France jumped 47 per cent, as against 13 per cent in Great Britain and 7 per cent in the United States. While retail prices have lagged behind this situation may only prove temporary. If the gap is closed, the wage increases won by French workingmen may, in terms of purchasing power, be made nugatory with the result that industrial disturbances may again begin to mount.

Thirdly, the productivity of French labor has not increased sufficiently to offset the reduction in the working day. The evil effect of this situation is now being recognized, even in Popular Front quarters. As M. Spinasse, minister of economy, recently pointed out: "The 40-hour week cannot last unless France produces as much as in the 48-hour week."

And, finally, there is the unbalanced trade situation. Imports have mounted considerably since devaluation, but exports have lagged behind. Recently the government sought to secure a free hand from Parliament to deal with tariff rates. The Senate threw the bill out. Itself decidedly in favor of lowering trade barriers, the Blum government is under pressure to impose increased tariffs to protect French industry. No wonder, then, that Premier Van Zeeland, of Belgium, has the best wishes of Premier Blum in his search for the golden fleece of a general movement for freer trade.

Edward Knows

Commenting upon the alleged fact that Edward wishes to live in Austria while his bride wishes to live in America, the Lynchburg News says that "American newspapers can only hope that the man who abdicated as king of a nation will be king of his family and live where he wishes."

Especially, if he will not wish to live in the United States. With the very kindliest of feeling toward Edward and his mate, we would regard as calamitous a decision on their part to spend any considerable time in this country, unless they should find it possible to discover a community in which to locate where their arrival and stay would create no special stir and where they would not be pestered by snobs and tuft-hunters of both sexes and all ages who in times past have disgraced themselves and their country by the manner in which they have chased after royalty.

Literary Digest Oldest Weekly, Sold to Shaw

Straw Poll Policy for Future Undecided at Present.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 16.—The Literary Digest, weekly news magazine, was sold outright today to the Review of Reviews Corporation, headed by the veteran magazine editor, Albert Shaw.

The sale brings two of the oldest magazines in America under the same ownership. The Review of Reviews was founded in 1891 and the Digest in 1896.

Practically the entire ownership of the Dibest had been in the hands of R. J. Cuddihy, the publisher, and Wilfred J. Funk, who has been editor in chief of the weekly. They will have no further connection with the magazine

Circulation of the Digest fell off during recent years as a result of the springing up of a new type of weekly news magazines.

Policy Change.

The Digest discontinued its old policy of publishing comments and articles from newspapers and entered the new field of direct reporting and interpretation which was started by the other news magazines.

Last fall the Digest suffered a blow when President Roosevelt's victory upset the results of its expensive and elaborate Nation-wide straw poll. The Presidential polls of the Digest in previous years had been remarkably accurate.

One of the editors of the Review of Reviews said it might not be decided for some time whether the Digest presidential polls would be continued under the new management.

Price 'Nominal.'

It was understood that only a nominal sum was paid by the Review of Reviews Corporation.

Albert Shaw, jr., the active editor of the Review of Reviews, conducted negotiations for the sale with Cuddihy and Funk. The Elder Shaw, who will be 80 years old on July 23, was reported to be vacationing in Virginia.

The founder of the magazine was Funk's father, the late Dr. Isaac K. Funk, who also was an original owner of the dictionary and book-publishing firm of Funk & Wagnalls. Wilfred Funk will continue as president of Funk & Wagnalls.

Coal Witnesses Ask Protection Of Government

2 Harlan Men Cite Death Threats in Letters to Senate Investigators

By the Associated Press.

Senators invoked the aid of G-men yesterday to protect two Harlan County, Ky., mountaineers who charged they are in danger of death because they testified recently before the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee.

The committee appealed to the Department of Justice for protection of R. C. Tackett and Lawrence Howard, both of whom had given testimony accusing Harlan coal operators of anti-union terrorism.

Tackett, a shambling, gray-haired mountaineer, wrote committee officials that two former mine guards had "kidnaped" him from his Norton, Va., home and taken him to the Harlan County jail "to be killed."

Howard, a grocery clerk who said he moved from Harlan to Middlesboro, Ky., because of threats against his life, reported he was being followed continually by gunmen in the pay of the coal companies, and that a high official of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association had hired a man to kill him.

Referred to F. B. I.

Both letters were referred to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which already had sent agents into the Kentucky mining community to investigate charges coal operators had violated the natoinal labor relations act by conspiring to throttle union organization through violence and terrorism."

Soon after the committee announced its action, Chief Deputy Sheriff W. L. Ward declared at Harlan the stories of Tackett and Howard were "all lies."

In a penciled letter which the committee made public yesterday, Tackett begged the committee to "have me taken out of Harlan at once before I get killed, as I have my wife and five kids here and nowhere for them to live."

He asserted he had been kidnaped by Lee Fleenor and George Lee, identified during the committee's April hearings as deputy sheriffs in the pay of coal operators.

The letter said it was written from the Harlan County Jail.

Committee officials said an assault on either Tackett or Howard would be a Federal offense, since both are under subpena, as Senate witnesses.

Police Shown As Aggressors In Strike Riot

Defenseless Marchers Were Shot, Clubbed, Suppressed Film Reveals.

ing simultaneously in a heap. The roar of the police pistols lasts perhaps two or three seconds.

Instantly the police charged on the marchers with riot-sticks flying. At the same time tear gas grenades are seen sailing into the mass of demonstrators, and clouds of gas rise over them. Most of the crowd is now in flight. The only discernible case of resistance is that of a marcher with a placard on a stick, which he uses in an attempt to fend off a charging policeman. He is successful for only an instant. Then he goes down under a shower of blows.

Police Club Individuals.

The scenes which follow are among the most harrowing of the picture. Although the ground is strewn with dead and wounded, and the mass of the marchers is in precipitate flight down the dirt road and across the field, a number of individuals have remained behind, caught in the midst of the charging police.

In a manner which is appallingly businesslike, groups of policemen close in on these isolated individuals and go to work on them with their clubs. In several instances, from two to four policemen are seen beating one man. One strikes him horizontally across the face, using his club as he would a baseball bat. Another crashes it down on top of his head, and still another is whipping him across the back.

These men try to protect their heads with their arms, but it is only a matter of a second or two until they go down. In one such scene, directly in the foreground, a policeman gives the fallen man a final smash on the head before moving on to the next job.

In the front line during the parley with the police is a girl, not more than 5 feet tall, who can hardly weigh more than 100 pounds. Under one arm she is carrying a purse and some newspapers. After the first deafening volley of shots she turns to find her path to flight is blocked by a heap of fallen men. She stumbles over them, apparently dazed.

Bleeding From Blows.

The scene shifts for a moment—then she is seen going down under a quick blow from a policeman's club, delivered from behind. She gets up and staggers around. A few moments later she is shown being shoved into a patrol wagon, as blood cascades down her face and over her clothing.

Preceding this episode, however, is a scene which for sheer horror outdoes the rest. A husky, middle-aged, bare-headed man has found himself caught far behind the rear ranks of the fleeing marchers. Between him and the others, policemen are as thick as flies, but he elects to run the gantlet. Astonishingly agile for one of his age and build, he runs like a deer, leaping a ditch, dodging as he goes. Surprised policemen take hasty swings as he passes them. Some get him on the back, some on the back of the head, but he keep his feet and keeps going.

The scene is bursting with a frightful sort of drama. Will he make it? The suspense is almost intolerable to those who watch. It begins to look as if he will get through. But no! The police in front have turned around now and are waiting for him. Still trying desperately, he swing to the right. He has put his hands up, and is holding them high above his head as he runs.

Brains Beaten Out.

It is no use. There are police on the right. He is cornered. He turns, still holding high his hands. Quickly the bluecoats close in, and the night sticks fly—above his head, from the sides, from the rear. His upraised arms fall limply under the flailing blows, and he slumps to the ground in a twisting fall, as the clubs continue to rain on him.

C. I. O. officers report that when one of the victims was delivered at an undertaking establishment, it was found that his brains literally had been beaten out, his skull crushed by blows.

Ensuing scenes are hardly less poignant. A man shot through the back is paralyzed from the waist. Two policemen try to make him stand up, to get into a patrol wagon, but when they let him go his legs crumple, and he falls with his face in the dirt, almost under the rear step of the wagon. He moves his head and arms, but his legs are limp. He raises his head like a turtle, and claws the ground.

A man over whose white shirt-front the blood is spreading is dragged to the side of the road. Two or three policemen bend over and look at him closely. One of them shakes his head and slips a newspaper under the wounded man's head.

"God Almighty!"

There is a plain intimation he is dying. A man in civilian clothing comes up, feels his pulse a moment, then drops the hand and walks away. Another, in a uniform which might be that of a company policeman, stops an instant, looks at the prostrate figure, and continues on his way.

The scene shifts to the patrol wagons in the rear. Men with bloody heads, bloody faces, bloody shirts, are being loaded in. One who apparently has been shot in the leg drags himself painfully into the picture with the aid of two policemen. An elderly man, bent almost double, holding one hand on the back of his head, clambers painfully up the steps and slumps on the seat, burying his face in both hands. The shoulders of his white shirt are drenched with blood.

There is continuous talking, but it is difficult to distingush anything with one exception. Out of the babble there rises this clear and distinct ejaculation:

"God Almighty!"

The camera shifts back to the central scene. Here and there is a body sprawled in what appears to be the grotesque indifference of death. Far off toward the outer corner of the field, whence they had come originally, the routed marchers are still in flight, with an irregular line of policemen in close pursuit. It is impossible to discern, at this distance, whether violence has ended.

Officer Dusts Off Hands.

A policeman, somewhat disheveled, his coat open, a scowl on his face, approaches another who is standing in front of the camera. He is sweaty and tired. He says something indistinguishable. Then his face breaks into a sudden grin, he makes a motion of dusting off his hands, and strides away. The film ends.

A hastily-formed citizens rights committee called a mass meeting at the Chicago Civic Opera House the night of June 8 to protest against the killings. A capacity audience of 4,500 attended. Paul H. Douglas, professor of economics at Chicago University, presided, and during the evening he said:

"We discovered that the Paramount Company had taken a newsreel of the whole affair, but despite its great importance and the great interest in it, had mysteriously decided not to show it in their weekly newsreel. We telegraphed that company, explaining the purpose of this meeting and asking that their film be shown here, so that we all might see what actually happened. We were anxious for the truth."

Afraid of Rioting.

To this request, he continued, A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount News, telegraphed the following reply:

"You ask fair questions, which entitle you to fair and frank answers. Our pictures of the Chicago steel riot are not being released any place in the country, for reasons reached after serious consideration of the several grave factors involved.

"First, please remember that, whereas newspapers reach individuals in the home, we show to a public gathered in groups averaging 1,000 or more, and therefore subject to crowd hysteria when assembled in the theater. Our pictures depict a tense and nerve-racking episode which, in certain sections of the country, might very well incite local riot and perhaps riotous demonstrations in theaters, leading to further casualties.

"For these reasons—the public policy which we consider more important than any profit to ourselves—these pictures are shelved, and, so far as we are concerned, will stay shelved. We act under the editorial right of withdrawing from the screen pictures 'not fit to be seen.'"

Affidavits Studied in Riot.

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—A heavy sheaf of affidavits was studied tonight by investigators for the Senate Civil Liberties Committee conducting an inquiry into the loss of nine lives in the Memorial Day strike riot.

The 132 documents of strikers, sympathizers and observers on the scene of the clash between officers and demonstrators were presented by Earl Houck, attorney for the C. I. O.-affiliated United Mine Workers of America.

Union leaders completed preparation for welcoming their commander in chief, John L. Lewis, who will arrive here tomorrow, confer with strike strategists and address a mass meeting in the 25,000-seat Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Woman U. S. Worker Realizes Ambition to Become Attorney

Mrs. Leafa Trease Wins Law Degree, License in Month.

MRS LEEFA D. TREASE.

Two "graduations"—each of them achieved while she managed an important Government office—is the June record to date of Mrs. Leefa D. Trease, of the insurance division of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Last Friday, Mrs. Trease received a bachelor of laws degree from National University Law School. A few days before she successfully completed bar examinations in her home State of Iowa and was licensed as practicing attorney.

Mrs. Trease's ambition to study law dates back to the time when she was a stenographer for a Des Moines law firm. Her subsequent marriage interrupted study plans and although she returned to work after the death of her husband, it was not until she came to Washington in 1933 that she was able to begin her legal education.

During the Roosevelt campaign of 1932, she was in charge of the Oklahoma City office of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League. After the inauguration she came to the District as assistant to the chief of the HOLC insurance section, where she is now the oldest employe in point of service and is office manager.

She is the mother of a 14-year-old son and would like to be a real practicing attorney eventually.

Free Six Years, Va. 'Jean Valjean' Is Arrested Here

After six years of freedom from a Virginia penal farm during which time he has built a successful paint contracting business, Walter Lee Darnell, 30, 6922 Ninth street northwest, was taken into custody here by police yesterday.

Detective Sergts. Guy Rone and Richard Cox arrested Darnell at the request of Virginia authorities. A communication received here stated the man escaped from the institution June 9, 1931, after having served seven months of a one-year sentence for larceny.

Darnell's whereabouts became known when he wrote to Gov. George Peery asking that the remainder of his sentence be canceled.

Arraigned in Police Court yesterday, Darnell asked for 30 days in which to fight his extradition to the Southern State. Judge Walter J. Casey ordered a $300 bond set in the case and allowed Darnell to go free until July 16.

Darnell said he received the sentence "for breaking into a chicken house."

Fields Must Pay $12,000 to Doctor

Riverside, Calif., June 16 (AP).—W. C. Fields, big-nosed screen comedian, must pay Dr. Jesse Citron, small town physician, $12,000 for medical services, Superior Court Judge O. K. Morton ruled today.

Judge Morton held Dr. Citron's fee of $12,000 for 25 days' treatment when Fields was critically ill in a hospital last year was resonable. The court denied the actor's claim for $25,000 damages on the ground the physician administered a narcotic that impeded recovery.

Riot Agitator to Die.

Brzesc, Poland, June 16 (AP).—An 18-year-old Jew, Weizel Sczczerbowski, was sentenced to death today for the murder of a policeman May 13, an act which led to violent anti-Semitic rioting and started a wave of anti-Jewish outbursts throughout Poland.

Fat Girls Get The Go-By—Slim Girls Win Men

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn coal without forming "clinkers". If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Correct this condition by feeding the little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

Don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

D.C. Committee Post Is Sought By Palmisano

Maryland Legislator After Place if Norton Takes Labor Chairmanship.

The question of what member will pilot the House District Committee still was unsettled last night.

Representative Mary T. Norton, present chairman, still was deliberating as to whether to relinquish the job in favor of the chairmanship of the House Labor Committee, vacated by the death of Representative Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts.

Indications were that she would make no announcement until after the funeral of Connery or at the earliest not until her return to Washington from Jersey City tomorrow.

Ranking Member.

Representative Palmisano, Maryland, ranking member of the commitee, however, lost no time in announcing that he will take the District Committee helm if Mrs. Norton quits it.

Although now chairman of the Education Committee, Palmisano is more interested in District affairs than national education because of the close relation between nearby Maryland and the National Capital.

Even membership on the District Committee gives nearby Maryland members prestige in their home districts. Besides Palmisano, the committee has Representative Kennedy, also of Baltimore.

Dissatisfied With Post.

A native of Italy, Palmisano came to this country with his parents when a child. Prior to entering Congress in the seventieth session, he was active in East Baltimore politics.

Mrs. Norton has several times this session shown dissatisfaction with her job as one of the District's unofficial mayors. Like other members, she has asserted that the job was a "headache" with few compensations and no political value.

Although from a labor district of New Jersey, there was some doubt on Capitol Hill yesterday that she would take charge of a committee so enmeshed in nationally controversial legislation as the wage-and-hour bill at this time.

'Thrill Slayer' Victim's Mother Dies in Chicago

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—Mrs. Flora Gresham Louer, 60, mother of Bobby Franks, the boy victim in 1924 of the "thrill slayers," Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, died last night in her hotel apartment here. She had been ill a year.

Her husband, Jacob Franks, father of Bobby, died several years after the boy's murder. Mrs. Franks and Albert S Louer, retired attorney, were married four years ago.

Realty Replaces Income Tax In Omnibus District Measure

House Leaders Force Committee to Make Change by Threat of Denying Special Rule; Passage Due Today Despite Grumbling.

mittee by the Rules Committee earlier in the day was marked by caustic criticism of the District and the District Committee.

Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, remarked that there is "bitter resentment among members against the attitude of the District toward Congress."

Cites Post Cartoon.

"And it's thoroughly justified," he added.

He then cited a cartoon in The Washington Post as an example of the way in which members were being ridiculed by the local newspapers.

Chairman O'Connor, who on Monday labeled the National Capital "a city of leeches on the Federal Government," left no doubt as to why the committee was against any income tax at all, reardless of whether or not it exempted members of Congress.

He pointed out that newspapers already had charged members with trying to evade the income tax and that adoption of an amendment specifically excluding them would "make us look ridiculous, selfish and small."

"I do believe, however, that the people of the District should pay an income tax," he added.

Suggestions the amendment be broadened to exempt all Federal employes were made by Representatives Harlan, of Ohio, and Lewis, of Colorado, both Democrats, after Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, had threatened another filibuster against the income tax.

Mapes for Income Tax.

The only defender of the income tax was Representative Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, who in 1931 sponsored a similar bill that the House passed without protest. The measure was killed, however, by the Senate District Committee.

Nichols, while explaining he was willing to substitute an increase in the realty tax, pointed out that it would be unfair to impose the levy on one class of District residents and exempt thousands of Federal employes who enjoy the same benefits and have done so for years.

He also remarked that if the exemption were made too broad even the high-paid lobbyists might escape the tax.

"And I know you gentlemen wouldn't want that to happen," he added with a smile.

Kennedy interrupted to note that he knew of one man in the District who has an annual income of $900,000.

"Why should he be protected?" he asked.

Suggestions the District Committee reverse its stand on the income tax were made by Cox and others.

Afternoon Hearing Brief.

Representative Dies (Democrat, of Texas, who was one of the leaders of the House revolt Monday, asked Kennedy why he wouldn't move to reconsider.

The hearing adjourned with an admonition the Rules Committee would take no further action until the District Committee changed its mind.

The afternoon hearing, following the District Committee's reversal, was brief. O'Connor merely asked Kennedy whether the committee would support the amendment on the floor. The sub-committee assured him the majority of the members would, although there would be some dissent.

Incidentally, the District Committee acted yesterday afternoon without a quorum. Although it has 21 members, only 10 were present, and only 9 voted on the change. The question of a quorum, however, was not raised.

Widow Refuses to View Unveiling of Haig Statue

London, June 16 (AP).—Lady Haig, widow of Earl Haig, war-time commander in chief of British forces in France, announced today she would refuse to attend the unveiling of the nation's memorial to him in Whitehall later this year.

"I certainly do not like the statue," Lady Haig said. "The horse is monstrous. Also they have depicted my husband with a scroll in his hand. This is ridiculous. He always carried a map." Controversy has raged about the memorial for years. Two previous designs were scrapped.

Mayor, Murray Seek U. S. Help For Johnstown

Shields Asks Roosevelt to Remove 'Murderous Element.'

neighbor over the head, kicks the postman out of your yard, throws bricks through your parlor window and has alredy broken a contract with the man across the street?"

President Purnell, of Youngstown Sheet & Tube, also invited to attend Gov. Davey's peace conference, sent a similar refusal pleading a "previous engagement."

With millions of dollars in wages already irrecoverably lost—the figure for Republic Steel workers on strike was estimated by President Girdler at more than $3,000,000—an independent union of the Inland Steel Co. employes at Chicago threatened to sue John L. Lewis' C. I. O. for loss of wages during the three-week-old strike.

"There is a possibility," the independent union statement said, "that we may file damage suits against every member of the C. I. O., levying upon their property, if any, or start garnishee suits against their salaries if we obtain judgments."

Charges and countercharges flew in Johnstown.

Mayor Shields asserted kidnaping of nonstrikers had been added to the reign of terror—the outbreaks of rioting, beatings, bomb tossing, and night marauding by roving bands of hoodlums—that has marked the five-day-old strike at the Cambria Works of Bethlehem Steel.

To Mayor Shields' accusation that the strikers were a "murderous element," Clinton S. Golden, subregional director of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, retorted:

"The only murderous element I know of is his (Mayor Shields') citizens army.

"After he arms them with tin hats, they get lists of employes from the steel company. Then they go to their homes and try to get them back to work, telling them they will provide them with protection.

"That's the dangerous, murderous element—Mayor Shields and his tin-horn army."

A brooding quiet hung over the city tonight as 220 steel-helmeted State police, reinforced by 400 volunteers of the citizens' "vigilante army," patrolled the streets.

A dull red glow from the great blast furnaces, enlivened by spurting showers of sparks, told that the production of steel was going ahead.

Outside the plant, on a 7-mile front, hundreds of C. I. O. workers—in shirt sleeves and suspenders in the hot summer night—carefully watched the seven gates of the big works along the winding Conemaugh River.

Shields Cites "Kidnaping."

Mayor Shields' telegram to President Roosevelt declared:

"I earnestly appeal to John L. Lewis through you, as our President, to withdraw the murderous element that now infests the city.

"The situation has grown so bad that the strikers have resorted to the most dastardly crime in our Nation today—that of kidnaping.

"Will you not please save our homes by discouraging Mr. John L. Lewis against such un-Americanism?"

The mayor's assertion of kidnaping was based on the tsory by James M. Hess, a worker, who reported he was seized by six men early today, stripped of his clothing and thrown out of their automobile.

On the other side of the picture, C. I. O. pickets at the Franklin mill of Bethlehem Steel complained to police that workers inside the mill had hurled missiles at them from company property.

An ugly feeling predominated.

Dynamite Set Off.

Earlier, an explosion punctuated the rhythmic beat of machinery and the roar of furnaces at the Gautier plant, in the western end of suburban Woodvale. City Police Captain James Adams said the blast came from dynamite thrown from a speeding automobile.

On the Youngstown front, in Ohio, a spokesman for some 10,000 nonstrikers warned President Purnell, of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, that the men were getting "jumpy and impatient" at being kept from their jobs.

"Serious trouble," the spokesman, Ray L. Thomas, told him, would break out soon unless the mills were reopened.

While Purnell declined to promise an immediate opening, C. I. O. leaders at Youngstown organized "flying squads" of piekets to combat any back-to-work movement.

At Detroit, in the great "battle of steel," C. I. O. leaders began to enact disciplinary measures against unauthorized strikes.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers Union, summoned the U. A. W. executive committee for a meeting tomorrow to plan penalties against unofficial walkouts.

A back-to-work move in Detroit gained impetus, with settlement of a strike that has kept 12,000 employes of the Ternstedt Manufacturing Co. idle since June 7.

Court action on steel company "protective" activities was heralded in Warren, Ohio, where Judge Lynn B. Griffith ordered the Republic Steel Corporation to bring into court all records showing how much has been spent for machine guns, teargas bombs, labor "spies" and company unions.

Tick Fever Danger Here Remote, Experts Assure Anxious Public

Only One Per Cent of Insects Infected, Health Officials Announce; Simple Precautions to Avoid Disease Listed.

Washingtonians have no more cause to become jittery over the possibility of contracting Rocky Mountain spotted fever than over the prospects of being struck by lightning, a public health official said yesterday.

Many persons have telephoned District and Federal health authorities, anxiously requesting information about spotted fever, during the last few days as the result of three deaths in Washington and suburbs since June 1.

For one thing, it was explained, probably 1 per cent or less of all ticks are infected. Even if one of the insects capable of transmitting the disease becomes attached to the body, it must remain in position from 2 to 48 hours before any harm is done.

Such simple precautions as the following will, if exercised, keep one from falling victim to the dangerous fever, the official asserted:

After returning from a picnic, hike in the woods or any other type of excursion where undergrowth is encountered, carefully examine the body for ticks. Generally they come to rest at the back of the neck, where the hair offers protection.

Finding one of the insects, lift it off with care, guarding against mashing it against the body or fingers.

When small children come in from play, look them over for presence of the insect.

In removing ticks from dogs, take care not to crush them in the hands.

An average of only 100 cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever is reported each season along the Eastern seaboard, the public health official stated, which makes the disease one of relative unimportance.

The third victim of the dread disease died in Garfield Hospital Tuesday. She was Augusta Stuermann, of 609 Jefferson street northwest.

Dr. D. L. Seckinger, assistant District health officer, warned that the insects can be present in gardens within the District boundaries as well as in heavily wooded country. When a bite was manifest or feared, he said, a physician should be called at once.

Within the past five years there have been 15 deaths from the fever. There have been 47 cases reported in that time.

H. L. CLEELAND, D. C., Aspinwall, Pa.

"My new Chrysler is delightful to drive . . . quickly responsive . . . easy to steer and park. The riding qualities are superb . . . jolts and jars just seem to dissolve beneath the car. The chair-high seats and the adjustment feature are especially attractive."

J. C. McCHESNEY, Chicago, Ill.

"Two things stand out in my mind about my new Chrysler Royal. First, its great driving comfort . . . both in room and easy handling. Second, its great reliability . . . which incidentally has been a characteristic of every Chrysler car I've owned."

Swasey Dies; Invented U. S. Range Finder

Scientist Specialized in Making Astronomical Instruments.

Ambrose Swasey, scientist and inventor of the Swasey range and position finder adopted by the United States Government, died Tuesday at his home in Exeter, N. H. He was 90 years old.

Mr. Swasey's firm, The Warner & Swasey Co., was begun in 1880 when he entered into partnership with W. R. Warner. Specialists in astronomical instruments, they had supplied telescopes to several foreign governments including Canada and the Argentine, and had built the 26-inch telescope for the Naval Observatory here.

A new and exceptionally accurate dividing engine (a machine for graduating circles and bars or for spacing off and cutting teeth in wheels) was also among the firm's accomplishments.

Born in Exeter, December 19, 1846, the son of Nathaniel and Abigail Chesley Swasey, Mr. Swasey was educated in schools there, and in 1905 received a doctor of engineering degree from the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio.

Won Honorary Degrees.

He received honorary doctor of science degrees from Denison University in 1910, from the University of Pennsylvania in 1924, and from Brown University in 1930.

He received honorary doctor of letters degrees from the University of California in 1924, from the University of Rochester in 1925, and from the University of New Hampshire in 1930.

During his life he was awarded many honors. Among them were the John Fritz fold medal, 1924; the Cleveland medal for public service, 1930; the Franklin Gold Medal, 1932; the American Society of Mechanical Engineers medal, 1933; the Washington award, 1935, and the Hoover Gold Medal of the same society, 1936. He was made an officer of the French Legion of Honor in 1921.

In 1871 Mr. Swasey married Lavinia Marston, of Hampton, N. H. She died in January, 1913.

Fond of travel, he had journeyed often to the Orient, where his interests in the advancement of scientific education led to gifts of a Christian association building to Canton Christian College (now Lingnan University), and a science building to the University of Nanking, of which he was a trustee.

Gave Money for Research.

He was also in part responsible for the German government's return to China of famous astronomical instruments taken from the Great Wall to Potsdam during the Boxer Rebellion.

Mr. Swasey's largest gifts to the field of scientific research, however, were to the Engineering Foundation, which was established in 1914, and to which he had contributed more than $750,000.

Mr. Swasey was president in 1894 of the Cleveland Engineering Society, and in 1904 of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He had been a member of the Society of of the Cincinnati, the American Society of Electrical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the British Astronomical Association, the American Philosophical Society, the National Research Council, the National Academy of Sciences and the Royal Astronomical Society.

He had belonged to the Cosmos Club here, the Union League Club, the Union Club of Cleveland and the Grolier Club of New York City.

He had written several scientific works.

Funeral services will be in Cleveland, Friday, and in Exeter, Saturday.

Roosevelt Pays Surprise Visit to Archives Building

President Roosevelt late yesterday paid an unannounced visit to the $10,000,000 Archives Building and for more than an hour browsed through the rooms and departments where priceless Government records are preserved.

Arriving shortly after 5:30 p. m., the President was greeted by National Archivist Robert D. W. Connor, who conducted him through the building, its workshops, preservation rooms and the "shrine room" where the archivist hopes ecentually to keep the originals of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

It was the President's first visit to the plant. As Assistant Secretary of the Navy he had made numerous efforts to bring about a better method of preserving historic Navy documents.

Joseph Kelly, Attorney, Dies At Home Here

Prominent in 'Diploma Mill' Cases; Mass Set Tomorrow.

Joseph D. Kelly, 37, prominent Washington attorney, died yesterday after a long illness at his home, 2947 Tilden street northwest. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's Catholic Church tomorrow morning, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

A native of Washington and a graduate of Georgetown Preparatory School and Georgetown University Law School, he practiced law here with his brothers, E. Russell Kelly and William J. Kelly. He retired from active practice in September because of failing health.

Mr. Kelly attained prominence eight years ago, representing the co-defendant in the diploma mill cases which revealed the fraudulent selling of college degrees by a fake university here. He was defense counsel in a number of criminal cases in Washington and also defended a number of policemen in cases before the Police Trial Board.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rose Kelly; twin daughters, Rose Marie and Mary Ann Kelly; four brothers, his two partners and John B. Kelly, of New York City, and Robert E. Kelly, of Washington, and a sister, Mary J. Kelly, a law student at Goergetown.

J. F. Kelly Estate Goes to Widow, Son

Naming his son, John S. Kelly, and his widow, Mrs. Margaret E. Kelly, as the principal beneficiaries, the will of J. Frank Kelly, prominent lumber dealer, was filed for probate in District Court yesterday. The estate was valued at $301,432.

According to the schedule of assets, Mr. Kelly left real estate worth $148,994 and personal property with an assessed valuation of $152,438 of which $147,500 was made up of stock in the lumber firm which he controlled.

The son was given 90 shares of stock in the company and the rest was left to the widow for life. The National Metropolitan Bank is to act as trustee. One additional proviso was that Mrs. Sally Combs, a relative, should have an income not to exceed $1,800 annually. Upon the death of Mrs. Kelly the estate is to be given to the son, providing he has reached the age of 35. It is to be held for him until that age has been attained if his mother should die meantime. Attorney J. T. Sherier represented the estate.

Lieut. Col. John Cleves Short, 60, an officer in the Army reserves and a descendant of America's most distinguished pioneer families, died yesterday morning at Emergency Hospital after an illness of more than six weeks. A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, he had moved here only recently, to be with his brother, Charles W. Short, of 2002 P street northwest.

Included among his ancestors were settlers of Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio. His great-greataunt was the wife of President Harrison, and on his mother's side he was descended from Dr. Benjamin Dudley, world-famous brain surgeon of Kentucky, who introduced horse racing into that State.

One ancestor, William Short, was among the first American diplomats to be appointed by President Washington, serving at Napoleon's court. Another ancestor, John Cleves Symmes, once owned what is now most of Ohio, until the Government confiscated the land when floods delayed his personally delivering taxes on the huge tracts.

Col. Short was a graduate of Cornell, where he was a popular figure in football. After a short time as head of a soap company, he joined the Army, serving through the Mexican War and the principal engagements of the World War. Following the World War, he retired from the active Army, but was active in the reserves.

Survivors include his brother and three nephews. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery on Saturday morning, with funeral services at the grave.

Marion H. Eustace Funeral in Idaho

Marion H. Eustace, 51, special assistant to Attorney General Cummings and former Assistant Attorney General of Idaho, will be buried in Coldwell, Idaho, next week. Mr. Eustace died Tuesday at his home, 4620 Morgan drive, Chevy Chase, Md., after a six-week illness.

A native of Nevada, Mo., he came to Washington three years ago to enter the Department of Justice and later was appointed assistant head of the District Court section of the tax division. He had been connected with several important cases during his stay here. A graduate of the University of Missouri, he practiced law in Idaho for 18 years.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Jame M. Eustace; two sons, Marion H. Eustace, jr., and Romaine E. Eustace, and his father, James Heath Eustace, of Ellensburg, Wash. His mother was Lyda Howell Eustace.

Madam President Forecast Some Day By Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, June 16 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt expressed a conviction tonight that "there will be a woman President some day, but that day is not yet here."

The First Lady, in response to a question by a young woman high school graduate, said "We women have still to prove ourselves" and at present she did not believe the country as a whole would have enough confidence in a woman President.

"And without that confidence and co-operation she could not do a good job," she added.

She was interviewed by Miss Constance Eberhardt, 17, during a broadcast addressed to graduating classes throughout the country.

Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow For Champion

Veteran of Indian Wars to Be Buried in Soldiers' Home Cemetery.

Funeral services for William Champion, 83, Indian Wars veteran and reputed to have been the last survivor of the four men who put the finishing touches on the Washington Monument, will be tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in the Soldiers' Home chapel. Burial will be in the Soldiers' Home National Cemetery.

Mr. Champion died Tuesday at the home.

Following his discharge from the Army in 1881, the son of a British soldier who fell at the Battle of Balaclava, Mr. Champion was employed on work on the Monument. He was the stonecutter who shaped the last stone placed in the Monument, a 2-foot block marking completion of the shaft. He would describe how that stone was the only one in the foundation that bears none of the weight of the structure.

Mr. Champion was the father of Maj. William B. Champion, chief inspector of the District highway department, who lives in Alexandria. Survivors also include Miss Jane B. Champion, a daughter.

Ralph Mateer, company manager, announced the company granted 50 per cent of the operators' wage increase demands, retroactive to June 1.

Bob Burns Says:

I guess Hollywood has the right to the name of "The Land of Make Believe." It is true not only in pictures but in every-day life.

My Aunt Sofie Ledbedder visited me out here just two weeks, and darn if she didn't get the Hollywood influence. The first morning she was back home Uncle Beany was out mendin' the hog pen and Aunt Sofie came out to the back porch and hollered in a loud voice: "Come in to breakfast, dear, we have chilled grapefruit, broiled squab-on toast, French lamb chops, crisp bacon, marmalade and coffee."

Uncle Beany rushed wild-eyed into the house and there wasn't anything to eat but corn-meal mush. He said "Did you say that just to fool me?" And she said "No, I just said that to fool the neighbors!"

Young Man

The young man of Congress, Jerry J. O'Connell (Democrat), of Montana, will speak on "Fair Deal for Temporary Employes" at a meeting of the Association of Non-Classified Federal Employes at 8 o'clock this evening in the Bamboo Room of the Willard Hotel.

A word about the speaker. Many messages of congratulation came to his office this week as he turned 28 years old. Everybody seemed impressed except the Congressman himself. He hasn't even looked into the records to find out if he is the youngest person ever to be a Congressman. And for such modesty we hand the Young Man a bouquet of commendation.

Consider his unusual record: He was born in Butte, Mont., on June 14, 1909, and while attending Carroll College (formerly Mount St. Charles College) was elected to represent Silver Bow County, which includes the city of Butte, in the State House of Representatives.

When 24 years of age he was elected to the Railway and Public Service Commission. And then his friends got him to run for Congress, and he was elected by the largest majority ever given a Democrat in the Montana First District. In this crowded career, he has found time to get two degrees, A. M. and M. A. To top it all, he is a first-rate speaker.

In every issue of Consumers' Guide, semi-monthly publication of the Consumers' Counsel, AAA, is a list of questions which for months have confounded, bamboozled and left us out on a limb. In the current issue they ask, for example: "What is the 'ultimate' unit of weight against which scales and weights used in business are measured for accuracy?" As usual, this column didn't know, but we looked it up and the answer is so interesting it's passed on, quoted from another section of the magazine:

"Late this month (May), a man, bearing a meticulously wrapped package containing an object which was brought to this country in 1892, is going to board a transatlantic vessel. He will carry his parcel to a certain building in Paris. There the package will be opened and the contents examined. If the object is found to be in perfect condition it will be wrapped up again and carried by the same man back to the United States.

"If not in perfect condition, it will be made perfect and then released for its return voyage.

"More precious than all the jewels in the country, the contents of this mysterious package is a cylinder of equal diameter and height, 90 per cent of which is platinum and 10 per cent iridium. Its metal value is infinitesimal compared with its use value.

"It is one of two copies, owned by the United States Government, of the ultimate kilogram, safely kept in an underground vault in Paris, which is recognized by 30 countries, our own included, as the perfect standard of weight. Its counterparts in this country are the official gage of accuracy for all standards of weight used in buying commodities. They repose in the National Bureau of Standards at Washington, and once in a long time one of these copies must be carried back to Paris to be weighed and tested against the international standard kilogram. An official of the Bureau carries it over and back."

Big Times: Two first-rate parties are scheduled—one for tonight—that should interest many Government people. Tonight the National Democratic Club of South Carolina—all South Carolinians living in the National Capital—will hold its June ball, from 10 to 1, at the Almas Shrine Temple, 1315 K Street northwest. As this is the club's last big affair of the season, it is expected to bring together a large crowd of South Carolinians. A number are expected from out of town. Tom Wright is the general chairman.

Then, on Saturday, the Massachusetts Society of Washington will hold its annual Bunker Hill Day celebration with an outing, dinner and dance at Brooke John's Old Barn in Olney, Md. Field sports and bridge playing will feature the afternoon. At 6 o'clock a chicken dinner will be served. Mrs. Leon Chagnon is secretary of the society and will issue reservations at 2500 K Street. All former residents of the Bay State and their friends are invited.

Gonzaga High Graduates 50 At Ceremonies

Diplomas Are Presented By Mgr. Corrigan of Catholic U.

At exercises over which Mgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, presided, the 1937 class of Gonzaga High School was graduated last night.

The college theater was the scene of the event in which 50 young men brought their high school careers to a close. Twenty-four of the group received diplomas for completing work in the classical course; 28 for fulfilling requirements of the science course.

George A. King, '68, the school's second oldest graduate, in the commencement address urged graduates to "be true to the religious faith you have learned here."

King, who attended Gonzaga when it was located next to the old Masonic Temple on F street between Ninth and Tenth, recalled among other events of his school days, a reading of "Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens. The reading was interrupted, King said, by a patriotic American who shouted that Dickens had defamed this country's people. Peace was made, however, and the reading continued.

In closing King quoted from Robert Browning's "Rabbi Ben Ezra:"

"Roll along with me, the best is yet to come,
"It is the last of life for which the first is made . . .
"Trust God, see all, nor be afraid."

John S. White delivered the valedictory and William A. Wilson the salutatory.

William F. Troy and Thomas A. Rover were announced as winners of scholarships to Georgetown University and Catholic University, respectively.

The pigeon, which was not injured, was released and flew away.

Traffic Deaths Decrease 50% In D. C. in June

Van Duzer Studies Auto Safety Report Received From London.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Traffic fatalities in the District decreased more than 50 per cent during the first half of this month, as compared to the same period during May.

And at the same time, yesterday, in an effort to find a workable plan of traffic control, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer compared local problems with a highway safety report received recently from London, England.

British authorities, it was shown, are faced with a similar task of saving lives. An appalling death toll in London has prompted Sir Philip Gane, commissioner of police, to introduce a vigorous program of motoring safety, the report stated.

A rigid training course for traffic policemen—as recently proposed for Washington—has already been adopted in London. Increased efficiency of police motor patrols in dealing with cases of dangerous and careless driving has resulted, Commissioner Gane reported.

Accidents Increase.

With local officials steadily hammering at highway safety questions during the last few weeks, the first half of June brought the District only 3 motoring fatalities. This was against 7 during the same period last month. Accidents, however, increased from 533 in the first half of May to 584 thus far this month.

Pedestrians have numbered heavily among the injured. The London report laid direct blame on the pedestrians in 76 per cent of the accidents in which they were involved during 1936.

Road Users' Aid Asked.

Traffic Director Van Duzer and other city officials have repeatedly appealed for public support in their battle against highway recklessness. Stressing the importance of this factor, Commissioner Gane declared:

"To whatever extent road engineering may improve, and however effective legislation and its enforcement may be, the reduction of accidents is mainly in the hands of the road users themselves. Without their willing and intelligent support there is little hope of any large-scale improvement."

Schools Seek To Eliminate Auto Hazards

Officers Fear Accidents, Request Adequate Protection.

Survey Reveals Danger Exists at Numerous Buildings.

School officers of 123 Washington public schools, attended by more than 50,000 boys and girls, told the Board of Education yesterday they believed traffic hazards exist in the vicinity of their buildings.

In a report presented the board by Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, the officers favored the installation of lights and traffic signs in many locations, and the stationing of traffic officers in others.

The board voted to forward the information to the traffic division for action.

Survey Made.

Reporting that a survey had been taken throughout the city, Dr. Ballou said he did not intend to dictate to traffic officials how hazards should be eliminated.

"The (school) officers at headquarters have not investigated the situations in the field, and hence are in no position to approve or disapprove the suggestions of the field officers as to the steps which should be taken by the Traffic Bureau to reduce traffic hazards," said the superintendent.

Seventy-seven schools asked for traffic lights at intersections near their buildings. Seventy-two schools registered requests for police officers. Forty-two want traffic signs cautioning motorists, and several asked for traffic lights and signs, and officers as well.

Highs Ask Protection.

High schools asking for more adequate traffic protection are McKinley, Roosevelt, Central, Armstrong, Cardozo and Central.

Police officers supervise all school boy patrols at schools, but are not stationed at all times, it was said, at all buildings.

The board approved the continuation of several experiments conducted in the schools.

Upon the recommendation of school administrators and Miss Bertie Backus, principal, the "lengthened period" program at Alice Deal Junior High School will be extended through next year. Continued use of a new form of report card at Eliot Junior High also was authorized, as was the revised form of accumulative record card now in use at Taft Junior High.

The health, physical education and safety program adopted a year ago for the central part of the city, was voted "amplified, improved and extended" for another year.

The magazine, Opportunity, used in several colored schools, was restored to its former place on the periodical approved list.

Members of the board paid tributes to two of their colleagues, who, retiring June 30, were attending their last board meeting. Dr. J. Hayden Johnson leaves the board after serving 21 years. George M. Whitwell, a member for the last six years, also is retiring.

Traffic Director William A. VanDuzer issued a warning to motorists to drive carefully to safeguard the lives of school children who will be released for vacations.

VanDuzer also requested that parents and teachers "do their part in impressing upon the children the importance of playing safe as well as picking a safe place to play."

Gas Co. Allowed To Sell 20,000 Shares of Stock

Issue Planned to Dissolve 'Foreign Control' of Organization.

In a move which may eventually dissolve "foreign control" of the Washington Gas Light Co., the Public Utilities Commission yesterday gave the company permission to issue $1,900,000 in preferred stock and split outstanding common stock three for one.

The "foreign" ownership of the gas company has been widely fought by organized Washington citizenry. Company officials say their plan to sell 20,000 shares of preferred stock, through local traders, may finally make for home control. The preferred stock is expected to sell at approximately $95 a share.

The Washington and Suburban Companies, controlled by the Chase National Bank Syndicate, at present owns 109,000 of the 130,000 common shares outstanding.

The company plans to use about $450,000 of the money obtained from the sale of the 20,000 preferred stock shares to pay off bank loans, it is understood.

The commission order, however, provided that the company use the rest of the money to buy new property and to improve its existing equipment.

Ultimately, the company will increase its outstanding stock shares to 1,000,000. The commission gave it authority to do so in its order.

The order came after the company had entered a plea to alter its financial structure. When the bond market showed itself unfavorable, the company withdrew a request to issue a total of $10,000,000 in refunding bonds and decided on the plan approved by the commission yesterday.

Mrs. Ida Nelson Dies.

Mrs. Ida Nelson, mother of Miss Gordie Lee Nelson, 2115 O street and of Mrs. George C. Schaffer, South Arlington Ridge road, Alexandria, Va., died yesterday in Miami, where she had made her home since 1890. Mrs. Schaffer is now in Miami, where the funeral and burial will take place.

Witness Fights Co.'s Estimates On Higher Fare

Assessor Cuts Capital Transit's Land and Right-of-Way Figures.

A wide discrepancy between land and right-of-way values as set by Capital Transit Co. officials and by Public Utility Commission experts appeared yesterday as hearings on the transit company's application for higher fares continued before the commission.

As the commission pressed its efforts to evaluate the company as of April 30, 1937, Harold Scantlin, assistant assessor and P. U. C. witness, testified the company's land and right of way within the District were worth $1,975,489.

Testimony of H. E. Doyle, Washington real estate man and company witness, had set the property value at $2,810,310.

The hearing now going on before the Public Utilities Commission is on the transit company's application to raise the price of street car and bus tokens from four for 30 cents to four for 35 cents—or from 7½ to 8¾ cents per ride.

The petition is being vigorously opposed by citizen organizations—particularly by the Federation of Citizens Associations. The chairman of the federation public utilities committee, William McK. Clayton, is leading the fight against the proposed increase and plans to introduce a motion that the company adopt a 5-cent fare for a six-month trial period.

Preparation Foe of War, V.F.W. Hears

World Conflict Ended Europe Militarism, Rep. Martin Says.

D. C. Department Has First Session of 18th Convention.

Preparedness for a possible future war will provide America's strongest chance of staying out of such a conflict, Representative John A. Martin (Democrat), of Colorado, told the first session of the Eighteenth Annual Convention of the Department of the District of Columbia, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night in the auditorium of the old Interior Building.

Preparedness, he continued, would have kept us out of the World War. Speaking on "The Place of the American Soldier in War and Peace," he added that he was convinced that America's entry into the war was for a just cause. "We fought that war," he asserted, "to make the world safe for America." He said the World War ended militarism in Europe, adding that he, personally, is convinced that European regimes are "only passing brainstorms."

He closed by saying that the soldier holds first place among the forces that developed the United States. He also repeated his personal belief in veterans' preference and liberal Government care of veterans.

Other speakers on the evening's program included Senator Ed C. Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, who referred to the encampment of the V. F. W. held last year in Denver. Wallach A. McCathran, department commander, acted as chairman.

Mrs. Roberta Fawcett, president of the ladies' auxiliary, spoke briefly, as did Dr. Aubrey C. Gilmore, chaplain at a veterans' hospital; Horace W. Lineburg, district commander of the American Legion, and Joe Chittenden, legislative representative of the V. F. W. Howard E. Snyder, department chaplain, pronounced the invocation, and Mrs. John R. Kettle and Chief John R. Kettle of the Sioux Indians gave several Indian songs.

The Washington post of the local department was awarded the David B. Herman Merit Cup at the close of the ceremonies. The cup is awarded to the post which has done the most outstanding work during the past year.

Woman Hit by Car.

Anna McHugh, 28, of 1631 Euclid street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations after being struck by an automobile at Fifteenth street and Vermont avenue northwest. Police said the car was operated by Richard C. Marrington, 713 F street southwest.

BELL.

The 1937-38 line-up of releases will represent the output of Goldwyn, Selznick, Chaplin and Walter Wanger studios in Hollywood, in addition to the London film productions sponsored by Alexander Korda. The total expenditures for the new program will reach $26,000,000, Schaefer stated.

Samuel Goldwyn will present the following eight features: "Dead End," the $165,000 stage success, under the direction of William Wyler, with Sylvia Sidney, Joel McCrea, Humphrey Bogart, Wendy Barrie, Claire Trevor and Allen Jenkins; "Stella Dallas," directed by King Vider, with Barbara Stanwyck, John Boles, Ann Shirley and Alan Hale—already in the cutting room; "The Hurricane," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty," under the direction of John Ford; "The Adventures of Marco Polo," with Gary Cooper and Sigrid Gurie playing the leads, scheduled to reach the cameras the latter part of this month.

Goldwyn also will produce "The Goldwyn Follies," a Technicolor extravaganza, with music and lyrics by George and Ira Gershwin, slated for early July production, with a cast of stars including Helen Jepson, the Ritz Brothers, Phil Baker, Bobby Clark, Virginia Verrill and Charles Kullmann, in addition to the famous Balanchine Ballet and Zorina, dancing sensation of the London stage; "The Cowboy and the Lady," costarring Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon, in Technicolor, from a screen play by Frederic Lonsdale; "You Can Be Beautiful," from a story by Katharine Brush, with Merle Oberon starred, and "South of Manila," also in Technicolor, with a cast to be announced at a later date.

The Selznick releases will embrace "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Nothing Sacred," in Technicolor, with Carole Lombard and Frederick March; "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and two other productions as yet untitled.

Charlie Chaplin, as usual, will make one picture. It will star Paulette Goddard.

The Korda London Film releases, many of which are already completed and ready for release, are too numerous to be detailed here, but include such titles as "Knight Without Armor," "Four Feathers," "The Tempest Within" and the like.

The Walter Wanger roster also is a long one, with such titles emblazoning it as "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938," "Fifty-second Street," "Summer Lightning," "Stand-In," "A Kiss in Paris," and so on.

This is a pretentious and, apparently, a Grade A program of proposed releases. It is possible, as always, that some of the projected subjects will not materialize, but if a majority come through that should be good enough.

Mr. Schaefer struck a slightly ominous note for the ticket buyers when, at the United Artists sales convention in New York, he said: A general increase in admission prices must come about to take care of mounting production and theater operating costs. A sympathetic understanding and study by Washington would go a long way to help solve this problem. Good pictures must be played by every theater to the point of exhaustion, regardless of the number of pictures under contract. Too many good pictures play for only a minimum number of days so as to make room for other current releases. In this way picture values are being dissipated, preventing the producer from getting satisfactory rental on his ever-increasing negative costs. It would be much better to take full advantage of each picture and build up a reserve for the lean weeks. Sooner or later this problem must be solved if the exhibitor is to have an assurance of a steady flow of good product from Hollywood."

Well, yes and no. Hollywood seems to have done pretty well for itself so far—and where did that $26,000,000 for production come from?

During the run of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Captains Courageous," opening today on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, a novelty will be introduced whereby patrons of the theater may have their voices recorded and later heard over a local radio broadcasting station.

Beginning today, there will be installed in the Palace lobby a complete "recording laboratory," presided over by James Moran, of the U. S. Recording Studios. Any person wishing to speak into the microphone is invited to do so and on the following morning a group of these recordings will be "played back" by Gordon Hittenmark over his WRC "Question Mark" period between 7 and 8:30 o'clock.

Recordings will be made without charge each day and played over the air each subsequent morning, thus affording an opportunity for those who never have heard their own voices as other hear them to do so.

We are willing to lay as high as 11 to 10 that when you hear your own voice you will swear it was not you!

La Nelle Avery, Washington "home town girl," is featured with Jack Denny and His Orchestra in "The New Professor," a musical short subject which is part of the local program at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater. Miss Avery was featured in various local revues before she got her New York "break." She presents a special dance number in the short subject, shown in conjunction with "Kid Galahad."

Jane Wyman, who suffered a nervous breakdown after seeing herself in her first leading role on the screen, comes to the Earle Theater in shadow form tomorrow in "Slim," in which she plays a supporting part that won her leading lady honors in "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air."

Washingtonians who saw "The King and the Chorus Girl," will recall Miss Wymann as Luis Alberni's girl friend with the terr-eef-ic French accent; those who saw "Smart Blonde" will remember her as the hat-check girl, who woke up one morning with a hangover and a St. Bernard dog.

Miss Wyman is regarded as one of the Warner Brothers most promising younger players.

Victor Moore, whose coy features appear above, is costarred with Helen Broderick in "Meet the Missus," which opened on the screen at RKO-Keith's yesterday. That Mr. Moore is one of the cinema's most versatile actors is demonstrated by the contrast between his work in this whimsical comedy and in "Make Way for Tomorrow," a heart-throb drama.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

A Difficult Slam.

When a player has two suits available for the final trump, he should gnerally choose the more solid one. If the weak suit is not trump, the actual trump may be of value in stablishing it; failing that, discards may be available; finally, a throw-in may eventuate. These resources are not available when the werk suit is trump. These considerations influenced South in his choice of slam contracts in the hand below.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's rebid of four hearts was the result of careful thought. To bid less than game would be risking a pass by North; and, as between game in notrump and game in hearts, the latter seemed preferable because of the doubleton in clubs. After so strong a bid North naturally wanted to make some gesture toward a slam. He could do no better than his bid of five diamonds, and South, with his three Aces, accepted the challenge by bidding six in the more solid suit.

West opened a low club, South winning with the Ace. Reducing the problem to essentials, South saw that he had to avoid the loss of more than one heart trick.

His first step was to draw two rounds of trumps. He then cashed the Queen of clubs, and the high spades. A low spade was next ruffed in the dummy, and the King of clubs cashed. The discards on the black Kings had reduced the heart holding to three in the North hand and three in the South hand. A low trump to the ten-spot gave South entry for a heart lead. The seven of hearts was ducked around to East, who had to win with the Queen. Any lead by East would now give South his slam.

South's play was the best available since it would win whenever West held the ten of hearts, and even if East held the ten of hearts provided it were a singleton.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, June 16.

Settin' Around (Twentieth Century-Fox): To most folks in the Outlands, Darryl Zanuck is just another name on the screen credit titles, a disembodied someone who "presents" your movies. But to Hollywood he is the original ring-tailed gallywampus, a man who says "presto!" and creates a new star—or goes "pouf!" and blows one into oblivion. To wield such power, he should be a chesty colossus. As a matter of fact, he is a slightly bald, rather unimpressive looking lightweight somewhere in his thirties.

JANE WITHERS.

He is a Horatio Alger character. Came to Hollywood a nobody, landed a job as a studio writer and quickly moved up the ladder, rung by rung, until now he has become such a big somebody that $5,000-a-week stars swoon with joy when he smiles upon them.

He is a human dynamo—works all day and then holds his most important conferences in the wee, small hours of the morning. He personally selects the stories for Twentieth Century pictures, personally determines the policies and procedure for every department in this gigantic film factory. To keep in condition, he "works out" in a private gymnasium that is connected with his office by a private elevator. He also plays polo, hunts, fishes and golfs. Once a week, he plays cut-throat poker with other studio big-wigs, and Hollywood "Ahs" at the stories which are told about his $10,000 and $15,000 bets. He is married and has three children.

Thought you might be interested in this glimpse of one of Hollywood's most important men behind the scenes. This is an age of dictators—and Darryl Zanuck is the dictator who determines the fortunes of many of your favorite stars.

Met Tommy Beck, who is going great guns in Twentieth Century-Fox pictures these days. He was standing in front of a new stage that is being erected on the lot, apparently enjoying the staccato clatter of the riveting machines. "Sure, I like to listen to them," he told me. "A rivet gave me my start as an actor. I was working on a steel construction job in Baltimore when a riveter missed his catch on a top floor. That chunk of steel fell 150 feet and went through my shirt without touching me. Instead of thanking God for a lucky escape, I demanded a new shirt. The contractor wouldn't give it to me, so I quit—and went on the stage."

Watched about 50 boys and girls practicing difficult skating routines on the huge ice rink constructed for "Thin Ice." After seeing them execute pin-wheel spins, corkscrew jumps, and Russian ballet feats, I was amazed to discover that only a few knew one end of a skate from the other before starting work on this picture. Seems the studio first recruited an ice-skating chorus from the ranks of experienced hockey players. But that didn't satisfy, because the hockey experts lacked a sense of rhythm. In desperation, studio heads selected a bevy of screen chorus girls and boys and taught them to skate. They have been practicing for seven weeks—and I think you will applaud the result.

Visited Jane Withers, who is starring in an opus entitled "Wild and Woolly," and found her a very disgusted young lady. When she heard she was to do a "Western," she took riding lessons, mastered the rudiments of trick roping, and lived in anticipation. But while she labored to qualify as an "old cowhand," the heartless studio scenarists modernized the story and substituted automobiles for bucking broncos. And now Jane can't display her skill.

"Imagine a 'Western' without a horse!" she snorted indignantly when I tried to console her. Just to soothe her resentment, a horseback riding sequence is to be written into her next picture. "Forty-Five Fathers," which is not a "Western" at all.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

By HOWARD BARNES

"Captains Courageous"—Astor

"CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS," a screen drama adapted from Rudyard Kipling's novel of the same name by John Lee Mahin, Marc Connelly and Dale Van Every, directed by Victor Fleming and presented at the Astor Theater by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with the following cast:

Harvey ..... Freddie Bartholomew
Manuel ..... Spencer Tracy
Disko ..... Lionel Barrymore
Mr. Cheyne ..... Melvyn Douglas
Uncle Salters ..... Charley Grapewin
Dan ..... Mickey Rooney
"Long Jack" ..... John Carradine
Cushman ..... Oscar O'Shea
Priest ..... Jack La Rue
Dr. Finley ..... Walter Kingsford
Tyler ..... Donald Briggs
"Doc" ..... Sam McDaniels
Charles ..... Billie Burrud

"CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS" belongs with the screen's few masterpieces. In a season of spectacular and notable film offerings it stands pre-eminent. The Kipling classic has been shaped to a photoplay with such eloquence, authority and beauty that it is certain to become a classic in its new medium. Composed in fluent images, acted with sustained brilliance and freighted with an emotional intensity that becomes almost intolerable, the tale of a spoiled boy and a Portuguese fisherman has an epic sweep and power that is irresistible.

So surely has the novel been translated that it falls immutably into a motion-picture mold. The debt to its original may be great, but the film has completely pre-empted that source material in a work of art that begs no comparisons. The simple themes of Harvey's love and hero-worship for Manuel has been restated with supreme simplicity and dignity. It is neither a director's nor an actor's picture, but a perfect melding of all the screen's functions, resulting in a heart-shaking and memorable offering.

Courage went into its making. If you fall under the film's spell as I did, you will probably not be aware until it is over that there are no women in the cast. For that matter there is no need of romance or violence. From the moment that the pampered Harvey tumbles off a liner and is hauled into a dory by Manuel, the screen drama reaches to the heart of living and holds you rapt by its instancy. The opening and particularly the concluding sequence might have been foreshortened, I believe, but that is a matter of little import.

It would be easy to ascribe the enormous compulsion of the production to the consummate portrayals of Harvey and Manuel by Freddie Bartholomew and Spencer Tracy. In them the millionaire's son and the mystical, courageous fisherman come to such pulsing life that the tragedy of Manuel's death is transcending. At the same time they have had invaluable assistance. Victor Fleming has framed their actions in stirring sea passages and a commanding rhythm of sequences. Marc Connelly, John Lee Mahin and Dale Van Every have given them evocative and haunting speech.

Mr. Fleming's direction is masterly. He has pinioned the personal narrative firmly against vivid backgrounds. The early atmosphere of ostentatious wealth that made Harvey a little bounder is executed in bold strokes. Life on a Gloucester fishing schooner off the Grand Banks is full of salt spray, straining sails, fish and boat tackle, and even the memorial services of the anticlimax are real and moving.

The performance of Freddie Bartholomew dominates the production from start to finish as only a very great piece of acting can. With extraordinary assurance he gets inside the husk of his characterization, making the transition of Harvey from a mean brat to a gallant little fisherman's apprentice utterly persuasive. The manner in which he sustains the aching poignancy of the scenes after Manuel has been swept from the top rigging of the We're Here into the sea, and dies, smilingly refusing to let the lad know he has been crushed below the waist, is superb. He takes his place with the most distinguished of his elders as a superlative screen actor.

You may find Spencer Tracy's Portuguese accent a trifle startling at first, but once he takes the little chap he fished out of the sea in hand, he gives an impersonation that can only be called perfect. His Manuel is by turns grave, gay, volatile, serene and dauntless. Certainly there could have been no better choice for the role. Lionel Barrymore, as the wise old skipper of the We're Here, is splendidly restrained, and Melvyn Douglas, who has the difficult part of Harvey's too wealthy father, is a good foil for Bartholomew in the first and last sections. The other players have small parts, but it is an index to the quality of "Captains Courageous" that they enact them with complete conviction.

America's Heartbreaker No. 1 FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW is stealing more hearts than many of the screen's great romantic idols.

Great Actor! Everybody's cheering SPENCER TRACY as a devil-may-care fighting, laughing, loving adventurer...

Kipling Story In Film Form Tops New Bills

"Captains Courageous" Is Exceptional Picture; Other Programs.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's incomparably fine picturization of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous," a picture of genuine "road-show" caliber, opens today on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater at the regular scale of prices. The principal roles are played by Spencer Tracy, Freddie Bartholomew and Lionel Barrymore. They are supported, of course, by a long and distinguished cast, comprised principally of male players—as was the case in "Mutiny on the Bounty." The story is a thrilling and deeply appealing one of the Grand Banks. A complete review of this subject will appear here tomorrow.

Pat O'Brien, Henry Fonda, Margaret Lindsay and Stuart Erwin are the principal players in the Warner Brothers production of "Slim," which opens on the screen at the Earle Theater tomorrow. The story is one of the intrepid linesmen who dabble with high tension wires at the top of transmission towers and is said to bring new subject matter to the screen. On the stage, the entertainment will be supplied by Henry Busse and His Orchestra. For ten years first trumpeter with the Paul Whiteman band, Busse has had his own organization for about five years and has leaped to the first ranks of popularity. He brings a group of specialists with him.

Hal Roach's feature production for M.-G.-M., "Pick a Star," will constitute the chief screen feature at Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The major roles in this musicalized story of a girl's quest of fame in Hollywood are played by Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Mische Auer, Rosina Lawrence, and a host of others. The stage portion of the program for the new week will be provided by one of the most popular musical organizations on the boards — Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra, with a considerable list of of specialty artists in tow, led by Shirley Lloyd, the Robbins Family, Clyde Hager and others.

For the week beginning tomorrow the Trans-Lux Theater announces a new grist of newsreels covering world events, a short subject bearing the title of "Trailing the Sea Horse," a short study of the life of Mark Twain, "The Wiley Weasel," and a long list of other "shorts" and cartoon comedies.

"Night Must Fall," costarring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, will return to the downtown screen at Loew's Columbia tomorrow as foremost feature of the screen bill. This is a character study of a genial murderer, who finally was hoist by his own petard. Dame May Whitty, Merle Tottenham, Matthew Boulton and Kathleen Harrison lead the supporting cast.

"Gallant Lady," which many hold to be Ann Harding's best picture, will be revived at the Rialto Theater for the week beginning Sunday. The story is of an unwed mother who is befriended by Clive Brook, in the role of a once-famous physician. An auxiliary feature will be "Roman Scandals," in which Eddie Cantor is the star and at the top of his comedy form.

Merle Oberon, Herbert Marshall and Fredric March will be seen in the costellar roles of "The Dark Angel," which is being revived for the week beginning Sunday at the Little Theater. The story is one of the Great War and its disastrous consequences in the lives of a trio of friends. Janet Beecher, John Halliday and Henrietta Crosman head the supporting cast.

The Roadside Theater, according to past custom, will continue the run of "The Wizard of the Waves" through a second week in the "old red barn," beginning next Monday. The running time of the play has been appreciably reduced since its opening last Monday night.

With the temperatures soaring, Glen Echo Park is at its midsummer peak. The Crystal Pool is popular both day and night and all of the rides are heavily patronized. The Spanish Garden ballroom remains one of the most popular of the park's 50-odd amusement devices.

A top deck beer garden has been added to the Steamer Potomac as the latest extra feature to be installed on this river excursion boat that makes night cruises down the Potomac. Every Sunday the S. S. Potomac makes an all-day trip to Colonial Beach.

The Wilson Line's Steamer City of Washington is "playing to capacity" on its night cruises down the Potomac. It also makes daily trips to Mount Vernon and includes Marshall Hall on its river route. Music for dancing, of course.

Metropolitan

The melodramatic and fast-moving film play of the prize fight racket, if that is what it is, "Kid Galahad," moved onto the screen of the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater yesterday to amplify its downtown popularity.

"Kid Galahad" is a picture that embodies many elements of appeal and while it deals primarily with fight managers, their "boys" and a lusty band of racketeers, there is enough romance in the story to engage the interest of feminine audiences as well, as was so heartily attested during the run of the film at the Earle.

The fable deals primarily with the career of a young bell-hop in a Florida hotel, who knocks the world's heavyweight champion stiffer than a ramrod with one punch. He is immediately grabbed up by a smart little manager who is at feud with one of the toughest hombres unhung. From then on, the action becomes more and more hectic, with a double-barreled love story running through its length and ring battles punctuating its developments at regular intervals. These fights have all of the earmarks of the real thing. So has the romance that springs up between the manager's protege and his kid sister just out of a convent.

Boasts Strong Cast.

The principal roles are played by a noble band of cinema celebrities, headed by Edward G. Robinson and Bette Davis, abetted by Humphrey Bogart, Soledad Jiminez and a long list of others. Robinson and Bogart, as has been proved in earlier productions, make as fine a pair of warriors as ever were tossed into the pit together. Miss Davis is cast as "Fluff," the "gangster's moll," who loses the boy she loves to the kid sister of her overlord.

But the sensation of "Kid Galahad" is young Wayne Morris, a newcomer, who appears in the title role. This handsome youth seems to have everything it takes for eventual stardom. His fight scenes are executed with the bouncing skill of a real professional scrapper and his gentler moments are no less effective.

"The New Professor," a new Jack Denny musical, with La Nelle Avery, and other short-reel subjects, plus a full newsreel, add to the enjoyment of a bill that may be conservatively rated as 100 per cent entertainment. N. B. B.

Comedian Must Pay the Doctor

Copyright by the Associated Press.

W. C. Fields, bulbous-nosed comic, was involved in trial of a suit with Dr. Jesse Citron over treatment during his serious illness of a year ago. Dr. Citron asked $12,000 for services, and Fields asked $25,000 on grounds treatment retarded recovery. A jury yesterday decided that Fields, shown above during rehearsal, must pay the doctor.

A. C. BLUMENTHAL and Ruth Chatterton went backstage in London to visit Hildegarde, the singer. "You're marvelous," Blumenthal assured, "you've just got to be in a Broadway show" . . . Hildegarde smiled and answered: "I said that same thing to you in New York" . . . "Really?" Blumenthal asked, "When was that?" . . . "Five years ago," she reminded, "when you were a producer."

CHARLES LAUGHTON, despite his film success, confesses that he has saved no money. The only tangible evidence of his triumphs is the Renoir masterpiece which hangs in his living room. The portrait depicts four nudes studying a collection of fruit . . . When Mervyn LeRoy came to England, Laughton invited him to his home and prepared to show him this immortal art treasure, which represents all of the star's possessions. LeRoy walked into the room, spied the portrait and said: "Hey, Charlie—where'd you get the dames?"

CHARLES B. COCHRANE, the British producer, visited the Cotton Club last week and enthused over the sepia revue. Fifteen years ago he saw his first Harlem show at the Plantation Club. He proposed to Sam Salvin, the proprietor, that each invest $50,000 to bring the show to London where colored revues were novelties. The contracts were signed, money deposited and then came the hitch. The 50 members of the cast rightfully demanded first-class accommodations on the boat, and Salvin envisioned his money lost . . . A few days later, however, he agreed to their demands and showed them their tickets—calling for first-class accommodations aboard the S. S. Albania.

THIS WAS TO BE the last voyage of the Albania, which practically was a ferry-boat. Salvin tendered a party the night before the sailing—a party at which libations were poured freely. He then placed them all aboard, and three days after the Albania departed, carrying only these 50 passengers, Salvin sailed. On the first day out, his ship passed the Albania! . . . Thirty days later the distressed passengers arrived in England. Their ship was so small that it sailed right up the Thames and docked in London. So rough had been their voyage that 22 of those passengers still are in London—afraid to set foot aboard any ship again!

Contest Craze Is Burlesqued In Screen Play

Moore and Broderick Are Well Cast in New Hit "Meet the Missus,"

By Nelson B. Bell.

"MEET THE MISSUS." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Jack Goodman and Albert Rice, adapted to the screen by Jack Townley, Bert Granet and Joel Sayre, costarring Victor Moore and Helen Broderick, with Anne Shirley, Alan Bruce, William Brisbane, Frank M. Thomas, Jack Norton, Edward H. Robbins, Ada Leonard, Ray Mayer and Virginia Sale. Directed by Joseph Santley. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon at RKO-Keith's.

This amusing, light summer entertainment abounds in amusing situations and ought to "catch on" as one of the hot weather's more enlivening diversions.

"Meet the Missus" is a cleverly contrived travesty on the activities of the small-town family transplanted from its native heath and the contest mania that lures so many housewives from their appointed tasks. The principals in this adventure are Mr. and Mrs. Otis Foster and their daughter, Louise. Mr. Foster is the foremost barber in Fosterboro. Mrs. Foster is a contest and puzzle fiend, who finds no time for her domestic duties while submerged in the intricacies of the many competitions which she blithely enters. So Otis has to be both barber and domestic drudge—he does the cooking, the sewing, the cleaning and all of the other things that normally would have fallen to the lot of his dubious helpmeet.

But finally Mrs. Foster gets into the finals of a $10,000 prize contest conducted by Happy Noodles and the family is taken to Atlantic City by the manufacturing company for the awards. Here the wives are put through the final tests, which consist of dressmaking, interior decorating and whatnot to determine which really is the world's best housewife. Needless to say, Otis makes the dress that wins the award in that division. Then the husbands rebel.

Having been kicked around and shoved into the background as a band of representatives of the lowest form of animal life, they conspire to turn the contest into a complete and fatal burlesque. Alarmed by this turn of events, the sponsors hurry the thing to a conclusion and award Mrs. Foster the $10,000 first prize, just to get the gang out of town. Along with this is a mild little romance between Louise and Steve Walton, one of the Happy Noodle executives. That will give you a rough idea.

This sort of charade is particularly well adapted to the distinctive talents of Victor Moore and Helen Broderick. Mr. Moore, as the henpecked husband, to coin a phrase, is at his droll best and Miss Broderick is both humorous and domineering as his wife. Their talents and methods are in striking contrast and make for high-pitched comedy of the first rank in the farcical field. Mr. Moore is no less than devastating as a cook and seamstress. Anne Shirley, as their daughter, is an ingenue of charm, if no great dramatic weight.

Among the supporting players, Alan Bruce turns in an easy-going portrayal of the young man who decides to remain for dinner after one glimpse of Louise; Frank M. Thomas is a passable "menace" and Ada Leonard appears advantageously in the role of the fan dancer that gets Otis into a little difficulty during the Atlantic City trip. Ray Mayer and Virginia Sale appear as a battling married couple, Miss Sale assuming a Southern accent you could cut with a knife. Joseph Santley's direction reveals many unusual comedy touches and keeps the action moving at a reasonably fast pace.

The supplementary features of the new bill are more numerous than usual. Two of them are outstanding—"Fifty Years Later" and "Old Man Sampson." The former is the picturized story of the history of the purchase of the Danish West Indies, now our Virgin Islands, dating back to the time of Lincoln when $5,000,000 was offered for the group; the latter, a Biblical tale with music by the Hall Johnson Choir, executed in the manner of "The Green Pastures."

In addition to these are "Uncle Tom's Bungalow," a Merrie Melodie cartoon-comedy in color that parodies "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and the Pathe News to augment the appeal of a feature that is all on the side of comedy.

Montgomery Ward Co. Charged With Coercion

Kansas City, June 16 (AP). A complaint against Montgomery Ward & Co. was issued today by the National Labor Relations Board, charging the mail-order house sought to coerce its employes by threatening to cease operations unless they joined a company-sponsored union.

The Montgomery Ward plant here has been closed several weeks by a strike. Employes belonging to an independent union affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization filed charges alleging unfair labor practices. More than 2,000 employes were affected.

Sir Josiah, who is chairman of the London, Midland & Scottish Railways, sailed on the French liner Normandie. He has been in the United States for the last three weeks surveying conditions.

THERE'S a lot more in this picture than meets the eye, though the eye has plenty to sparkle about in the stunning style of this spirited Buick car.

What you don't see here is the lift that's yours when you touch off the flashing power of Buick's valve-in-head straight-eight engine and go streaming off across the map.

What you don't see is the solid, steady feel of Buick—the firm stability that holds you on the line without weave or sway or wander on straightaways or on the curves.

What you don't see is the assurance you'll know once you step on Buick's tiptoe brakes and see how surely and safely they make you master of its power.

We can't picture here the security that's yours in a body of steel-fused-to-steel — with floor, roof, side panels, cowl all welded into one stout unit of protective metal.

And only time can tell you how big is your money's worth in Buick—all steel and two yards wide, a big package that's your one best bet of the field when you add the superb action that gives its metals life.

All we can do is show you how a Buick looks—and handsome as this gallant traveler is, remind you that its good looks are literally the least of what it has to offer.

There's still time to make this a summer long to be happily remembered—if you'll go try a Buick now.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Is Mother Justified in Beating 20-Year-Old Daughter With Hairbrush for Sly Disobedience?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 20-year-old girl with a nice personality and pleasant disposition—easy to get along with. I have a girl friend who lives just across the street. She is a very nice girl and she introduced me to her brother. We fell in love at first sight and we plan to get married as soon as he saves enough money. But my mother is very different from other mothers. Everyone says she is too strict with me.

• • • •

Recently this young man planned a little evening party for his sister and me. I was supposed to have a date with the dentist at 5:45, but my mother went down town and I waited until 6:30 and, as she hadn't returned, I crossed the street, joined my girl friend and we went to her brother's house. Other friends came in and we stayed until after 10 o'clock. It was exactly 11 o'clock when I got home. Mother met me at the door and told me to come upstairs, as we had company downstairs. She beat me all over with a hair brush until I was so bruised I couldn't walk the next day. After beating me, she said she was going to tell my girl friend never to put foot in our house or come near me again. She told me I had better not be seen talking with her again.

• • • •

Was my mother right in doing this? I have several other friends and she won't even let me take a walk with them. She despises my boy friend and all his family. When he comes to see me she won't let me go out of the house. I simply can't tell him the truth. One night she asked him all sorts of personal questions about his business, and after he left she said he was stupid and had no sense. She and my sister say everything to turn me against him but I love him more and more.

• • • •

I have talked with my girl friend over the telephone at her place of work several times since the party, but we couldn't say much. Please tell me what you think I should do.

UNHAPPY.

Degrading Punishment.

DEAR UNHAPPY: I believe a parent is degrading both himself and his offspring when he uses physical force in discipling a nearly-grown son or daughter. Such punishment never does any good. It results, as a rule, either in open defiance, sly disobedience (as in your case), or in a spiritless, animal-like subjugation piteous to behold. The same holds true of too-stric regulations governing the child's social life.

• • • •

By precept and example, parents should strive to instill in their children such ideals and standards concerning conduct and persons as will automatically prevent their straying too far off the beaten path. When the children are nearly grown, the best role the parent can play is that of sympathetic understanding, yet essentially conservative-minded friend. Their "thou shalts" and "thou shalt nots" cannot be expected to carry much weight as the children emerge from adolescence. However, their preferences may continue to carry weight if a bond of real friendship has been developed, so that the child has faith in the parent's sincere good will, and grateful respect for the parent's worldly wisdom and sound judgment.

• • • •

Young persons are highly egoistic; they are, for the time being and in their own minds, the central axis about which the universe turns. Everything else is of relative unimportance, significant only as it affects themselves, their happiness and their present or future. They love to talk about themselves and their problems; to debate the merit of their acquaintances, friends and romances. Wise is the parent who adopts a sympathetically listening attitude, and becomes a casual guide or mentor in helping his offspring make sound decisions. Lamentably misguided is the parent who pooh-poohs the younger generation's problems as ridiculous, imaginary or unimportant; and doubly misguided is he who attempts to impose his own decisions by force.

• • • •

However, the child whose parent is tyrant rather than friend must do what he can to avoid wrecking his own life as a result of an unfortunate domestic setup. He has to be very sensible indeed if he isn't to find himself eventually out of the frying pan into the fire. Therefore, don't permit your mother's and your sister's objections to your beau to drive you recklessly into his arms, so to speak. That's the trouble with family opposition to an undesirable romance—it usually adds fuel to the flame.

• • • •

After all, you are only 20; and your letter indicates neither great intelligence nor much education, though it reads more coherently now than before I blue-penciled it. Before thinking of marrying, I believe you should prove your ability to hold a job and support yourself. (There is nothing in your letter to suggest that you are employed.) Then you will be better fitted to take a firm stand against your mother, if her attitude is cruelly unreasonable; and in the event of a mistaken marriage, you will have something to lean on which nobody can take from you.

• • • •

Since your mother and sister stand shoulder-to-shoulder in this matter, it is not unlikely that both of them have reason for believing you are lacking in good sense and good judgment. They may be doing the best they can, though in a regrettably blundering way, to save you from the consequences of impetuous folly. If such is not the case, it is up to you to prove your clear-headed ability to manage your own life wisely by supporting yourself and, if necessary, going elsewhere to live—where your innocent friendships will not be maliciously obstructed.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Frozen Grapefruit Juice Gives Drinks More Zest

Chilly cubes for your best beverages are made by freezing canned grapefruit juice in the cube tray of your refrigirator. Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Vitamin D Sources.

VITAMIN D is the substance which is formed in our bodies by the action of sunlight. In nature it occurs in fish oils, and especially in the liver of fishes. It occurs in milk and eggs, provided the animal sources of these products have been properly exposed to sunlight. It can also be manufactured artificially by exposing certain vegetable oils to ultraviolet light. The oil usually used is ergosterol from corn. The product is known as "viosterol."

There are probably several forms of Vitamin D, not all of which are utilized by a man. The strength of these substances is measured by a test on lower animals. The one most frequently used is the rat. If a rat is kept in the dark and kept away from Vitamin D containing foods, the ends of the bones in the legs stop developing. When an animal which has been deprived in this way for some time is fed a Vitamin D containing substance, the bones begin to develop, and the rate at which they develop is the measurement of the amount of Vitamin D.

Now it has been found that irradiated ergosterol will not have any effect on chickens, but will have an effect on rats. Chickens, on the contrary, respond rapidly to cod liver oil. Human beings, apparently respond in the same way as rats. It is, therefore, the rat unit which is used to test potency of substances used on man.

All of the fish liver oils—cod liver oil, salmon liver oil, halibut liver oil, and several others which could be used—contain two or three kinds of Vitamin D. It was thought that because ergosterol is a vegetable oil and fish liver oils are animal, that it would be possible to classify Vitamin D into two forms—animal and vegetable—but such a simple classification does not seem to be warranted by further investigation.

Adults apparently manufacture all the Vitamin D that they themselves need, irrespective of whether they get it in the food or not, nor do adults appear to require so much of it per pound. Of all the vitamins it appears to be the one least likely to be present in ordinary food, at least in a form which can be utilized by man. And since it is so necessary for children, it is generally advised by nutritional experts that it be furnished to them in good quantities of fish oils or similar substances.

Slack Suits Popular For Amateur Gardeners

Overalls, smocks and dresses picturesque enough to put rustic backgrounds in the shade are winning new recruits to the growing army of amateur gardeners. Culotte costumes continue to swell the ranks of bicycle addicts. Slack suits are inducing hordes of women to follow in the footsteps of Isaak Walton, while golf clothes, tennis togs and riding habits are responsible for the ever-increasing traffic on fairways, courts and bridal paths.

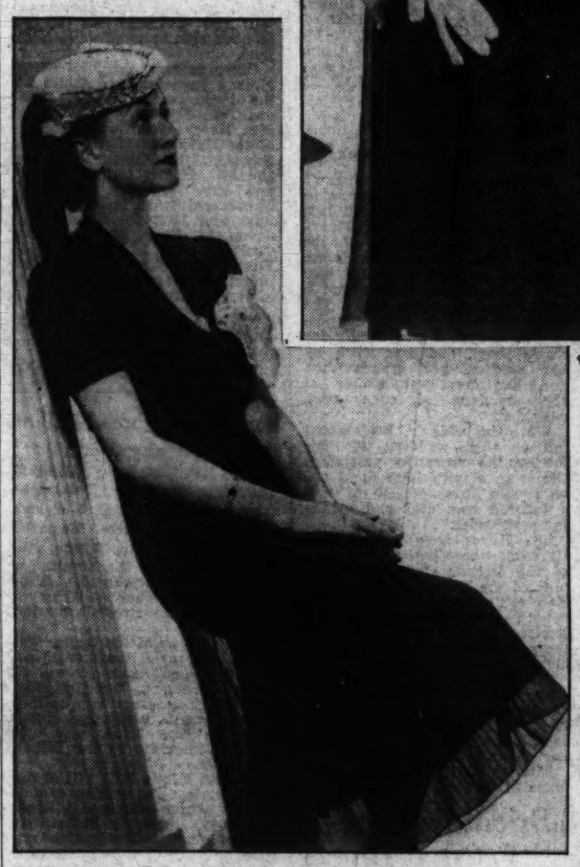
At right, black sheer with white organdie, is interpreted in a frock with full-length sleeveless coat. Multi-colored anemonies trim the white straw hat which is bound with green grosgrain ribbon.



A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, June 16.

AT THIS SEASON, when colleges are easing their starry-eyed graduates into the wicked world and putting up the shutters for the summer, Columbia University, our great learning - foundry, on Morningside Heights, is preparing for its famous summer session, which draws lady students from all over the Nation. And what the girls don't learn—if they try!

ALICE HUGHES

Although the six-week grind does not begin until early next month, the faculty has been hand-picked and all plans laid for the vigorous cramming of thousands of eager studes. Over 200 lady professors, gathered from all parts, including overseas, will stuff the learners with information valuable to our sex, I hope.

Prof. Ruth Tregenza, for example, will hold forth on house design and decoration. Not only will she lecture on original design—she will also teach her pupils how to rearrange rooms already furnished. I hope she will include at least one spiel on how to keep daddy from hollering murder when his pet chair is moved.

Prof. Belle Boas will busy herself with students who want to design silks and other fabrics, while the specialty of Prof. Elise Ruffini will be the science of color, with especial stress laid on its psychological implications. This means, I suppose, that her clients will learn why one color will cause the boy friend to roll over and purr, and another will set him to screaming with pain. This, I feel, will be very practical, indeed.

The Columbia campus is a great sight during the summer, filled with eager students of mature years rather than pretty, raddled coeds. You see we're not entirely frivolous here during the silly season.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Our little friend with the town's best nickname, "Gadget" Gage, whose square label is Marjorie Jane, has become the prettiest pint-sized bride of the season, having married George da Silva Prado, son of a former mayor of Rio de Janeiro. "Gadget," up to now, has devoted her time to flying a plane, taking screen tests and being cute, but now she's on a European honeymoon, and several local bucks are weeping into their Tom Collinses. Drat these South Americans, say they between sobs! . . .

One of our society gossipers is running a one-man attack on these short evening dresses, and has just roundly denounced a woman in her late forties who was waltzing around the St. Regis roof the other night in a pea-green net creation reaching far above her ankles. He thought it was a horrid sight, and makes a ringing appeal to husbands not to pay for dresses that make their women look silly. The scribbler evidently thinks it a waste of ink to appeal to our better natures, if any! . . .

The most interesting gay child now visible on local stages—Mitzie Green, now 16, who was a kid star in films only a few years ago. Mitz, the daughter of vaudeville troupers, is a great little trouper herself, and in addition is sporting the loveliest blonde page boy bob I ever did see. Wonder who ran it up. The youngster is in the charming Rogers and Hart musical show, "Babes in Arms," which I liked no end.

Speaking of second-generation generation wonder-kids, Laurette Taylor, of "Peg o'My Heart" fame, tells me that her daughter, Marguerite, is now knocking out a novel called "Hello, Angel." And if she has some of the talent of her Mom and Pop it will be a choice chunk of wordage.

The popularity of flowers on hats—even live ones—shows no sign of abatement. The Avenue is filled with perambulating head-nosegays these sunny afternoons. The prettiest I've seen is one tossed off by young Eric Moller, made of plain white felt, shaped like an inverted bowl, and trimmed on each side with very realistic dandelions. It's a honey of a topper when worn with white sports clothes, and proves that the humble dandelion is useful for something besides greens.

Hats, Heels to Match Popular for Sports

Matching headdresses and heels are providing a gala touch to simple summer outfits worn by attractive young spectators at smart Midwestern country clubs. Dusty pink frocks combined with beige turbans and ostrich skin pumps with beige-colored built-up heels are a popular combination. On many of the smartest white ensembles, effective accents are furnished by paisley print headbands and heels.

Dark Wardrobe, Dull Fabrics Leading Field

Full Skirts, Low Necks, Sheer Materials All Prove Popular.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

EVERYTHING has gone black this summer. Not only black, but dull. In other words, black, in both sheer and sturdy fabrics, has taken over the mid-season color array. Dull black with a mat-like surface is considered more chic than shiny materials—principally because it looks cooler. All-black ensembles are also taking precedence over black accented with bright spots of color or white—authorities claiming the witchery of all-black is the epitome of smartness.

Thin black and cool transparency being synonymous in the language of style, sheers are going to business, dining and dancing. This applies to both town and country costume. If the materials are dull as to surface interest, they certainly are not dull as to styling. Full skirts, lowered V necklines, short sleeves with new shoulder detail, one-piece frocks topped with full-length sleeveless coats or abbreviated jackets of self material, are some of the highlights of the mid-season interpreted in sheer black.

Black Summer Wardrobe.

If you are contemplating a black wardrobe, a trio which should be included ranges in importance like this: a sheer for general wear (equally appropriate for business and social affairs); linen for country, spectator sports and casual town occasions; silk crepe, jersey or novelty silk. Regardless of the chosen material, black should be kept light and airy from head to feet. This can be easily accomplished this season, with crownless hats of black linen, straw or sheer fabrics, and toeless, backless shoes in black.

For the person who believes that all-black is distinctly unbecoming, there is the inevitable and always smart touch of frosty white. A new Parisian idea is black accented with medium blue; black with accessories or burnt straw or chamois yellow is a smart American plan which is steadily gaining impetus. If you are the sophisticated type, there is the rococo touch which in the interpretation of 1937 means black frocks with dull gold jewelry — bracelets and leaf-patterned clips. A costume of this sort should be accented with black hat and black gloves—the newest are made of mesh.

Black Suits for Chic.

Black suits of linen silk or the synthetic materials are extremely chic for either town wear or traveling. You can plan your accessories to suit your own taste, as either all-black or a dash of color is considered equally swank in this realm. However, white, burnt straw or exotic prints are exceptionally effective in blouses for a black summer suit, allowing this to be the only spot of color contrast for the entire costume. Black blouse with a black suit are also chic; in this event costume jewelry is a clever method of introducing a bit of color contrast and interest. Pearls, the antique gold or silver jewelry, brilliant necklaces and bracelets following the Pan-American influence, are popular as an accent for all-black, as sponsored by ultra-smart American and Parisian style authorities.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE VERY THOUGHT of dark damask and homespun positively runs up our temperature during the days of June and roses. Because now we yearn to see through our windows! So we've yielded to that uncontrollable urge to swish away all our winter draperies and let our windows "breathe." And we've been gleaning ideas for this very process, ideas to make summer windows perk up and let in the sun and balmy fresh air.

For the inveterate gardener, fresh flowers as a part of a window decoration are effective—a changing floral pattern with the changing blooms of the garden. Fresh, crisp white organdy curtains for the bedroom maybe, then just at the point of the tie-backs glass flower holders—the sort we used to see in quaint old ladies' limousines and "electrics." The holders could be kept filled with painted daisies, or the heavenly blue corn flowers, or droopingly elegant petunias. Fresh flowers have a way of fitting in so many places, so for summer we needn't worry too much about colors to match if it would be handy.

Colored and figured window shades are another answer to the question of bringing color into summer rooms, and if the shades are of a dependable fine fabric they're decorative assets to sheer curtains. A lovely larkspur blue in window shades will do a lot for a room when winter draperies have been hung away in the attic. Shades made of gingham for the kitchen (which we could make ourself) would eliminate summer laundrings and will give cool, crisp look to a workroom.

Modern Picnic Dishes Show Advance From Basket Lunch

Prize Winners in Post's Contest Include Novel Salads and Meat Dishes; Mrs. Albert Day Gets First Award.

By Rebekah Blake.

FOOD makes the picnic. With so many interesting and tempting recipes as were entered in The Post recipe contest for picnic dishes, there should be an endless number of successful picnics this season. In the contest there were recipes submitted for fruit punch, cakes, cookies, sandwich spreads, meat dishes and salads and other good things that make a picnic complete.

The first prize, $3, was won by Mrs. Albert Day, Bethesda, Md., for her recipe for Potato Salad in Tomato Aspic.

The second prize, $2, was won by Mrs. L. A. Gibbons, of 3839 Beecher street northwest, for her recipe for veal with tuna and anchovies; the third prize, $1, went to Mrs. B. M. Hayward, of 2028 Lee highway, Arlington, Va., for her recipe for Turkish Shiskebabs, and the fourth prize, also $1, was awarded Mrs. James A. Bennett, Leonardtown, Md., for her recipe for picnic meat mold supreme. The fifth prize, $1, went to Mrs. H. W. Jackson, of 406 Park street, Charlottesville, Va., for her recipe for stuffed cucumber salad.

Here is Mrs. Day's recipe:

Potato Salad in Tomato Aspic.

4 cups cold cooked potatoes, diced
½ cup mayonnaise
½ tablespoon minced green pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons salt
3 stalks celery, diced
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped chives

Mix the potatoes and celery and add the dressing made of the rest of the ingredients. Make the aspic as follows:

Tomato Aspic.

1 quart cooked tomatoes
1 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup raw carrot, diced
1 sprig parsley
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup celery, diced
¼ cup cold water
1 onion, sliced
3 cloves
1 small blade mace
Few grains cayenne
1 green pepper, cut small

Cook all ingredients except gelatine and cold water together for 30 minutes. Strain. Pour over the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water and stir until the gelatine is dissolved. Cover the bottom of a loaf pan with some of the aspic, add the potato salad and then the rest of the aspic. Cool and set in the refrigerator to harden. Serve with lettuce and mayonnaise if desired.

Mrs. Gibbons' recipe:

Veal With Tuna and Anchovies.

4 anchovies
2 sliced carrots
1 small onion
2 cloves
1 chopped celery stalk
1 bay leaf
4 ounces tuna in oil, canned
2 tablespoons chopped capers
2 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and pepper

Cut 2 anchovies into 8 strips. Lard veal with them. Roll veal and tie with string. In a saucepan put enough water to cover meat; add onion stuck with cloves, carrots, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil; put in veal and simmer 1½ hours. Remove meat, drain and carve in thin slices. Pack closely in casserole and cover with the following sauce:

Bone and chop 2 anchovies and tuna. Add oil, lemon juice and capers. Leave in a cold place several hours. Garnish with lemon slices.

Mrs. Hayward's recipe follows:

Turkish Shiskebabs.

Take to the picnic grounds the makings of various shiskebabs. You should have some pointed sticks, about two feet long. Let the imagination run riot and string the sticks with the makings. Broil over embers.

Use the following combinations:

1. Alternating cubes of ham, marshmallows, and pineapple wedges.
2. Slices of Bermuda onion alternating with raw steak cubes spread with horseradish mustard.
3. Precooked veal cubes, grapefruit sections and squares of bacon alternated.
4. Cocktail sausages, sliced apple, alternated.
5. Bacon squares, tomato halves, cubes of raw steak or cured ham.
6. Mushroom caps, buttered, bacon squares and cubes of calves liver.

Here is Mrs. Bennett's recipe:

Picnic Meat Mold Supreme.

1 pound chopped veal
½ pound chopped pork
1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup cooked or canned tomatoes
3 hard-cooked eggs, peeled
2 eggs
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper (well drained)
3 slices bacon.

Mix meat, crumbs and tomatoes. Add slightly beaten eggs, salt and pepper, and mix well.

Put half of the mixture into a loaf pan and lay the hard-cooked eggs on top of it end to end. Put in the remainder of the meat mixture and press down firmly around and over the eggs. Turn out into a baking pan and lay thin slices of bacon over top.

Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) about one hour, basting frequently. Put a little boiling water in the pan if needed.

To serve cut in slices.

Mrs. Jackson's recipe:

Stuffed Cucumber Salad.

Chill and peel a desired number of medium-sized cucumbers. Scoop out pulp and mix with finely chopped tomatoes, peeled, cottage cheese, celery and small onions if liked. Add French dressing. Stuff hollow cucumbers with the mixture. Trim with Bar-le-duc. Arrange on salad plates with Romaine.

Irish Girl And Author Will Marry

Miss Power-O'Malley, James Warner Bellah Are Principals.

Ceremony to Be Soon in New York, Says Announcement.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

With wedding bells ringing all around the Capital, engagement announcements—particularly the bulk of those out of town—have slight chance of seizing the spotlight around here these days. But one came to my desk yesterday that may be of special interest to Washington and the surrounding territory.

Bearing a Dublin date line, the report ran as follows: "Mr. Michael Power-O'Malley, of County Waterford, Ireland, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Ruth Yeaton Power-O'Malley, to Mr. James Warner Bellah, son of Mrs. Harriette Johnson Bellah and the late James Warner Bellah, of Wilmington, Del."

Bride-to-Be Belongs To Noted Virginia Family.

Miss Power-O'Malley, who is the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Stuart, of Bermuda, has a long line of distinguisheed ancestors who are noted figures in Virginia history. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ruth Wise Stuart, of Alexandria, Va., and Bermuda, and the late Judge Charles E. Stuart, one-time Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates. She is also a descendant of Gabriel duVal, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court under Thomas Jefferson and the first Comptroller of the Currency. Others on her list of noted ancestors include Col. George de Neale, attorney for George Washington; Charles Chauncey, outstanding leader in the history of early New Hampshire, and Gen. Lomax, of Warrenton, Va.

The bride-to-be is a writer, with a number of published essays and feature stories to her credit. Her finance is widely known as the author of a number of novels, as well as short stories appearing regularly in nationally-known magazines. He was educated at Wesleyan College, Conn., and Columbia University, where he is now a member of the faculty.

He can boast as distinguished a list of ancestors as Miss Power-O'Malley. He is a direct descendant of Capt. James Bellah, of Caesar Rodney's Battalion of Delaware Foot in the Revolution, and he is a great-great-grandson of Joseph Tatnall, of Wilmington. Furthermore, he is a grandnephew of Edward Tatnall Bellah, member of the Delaware State Legislature. On his maternal side, Mr. Bellah is a descendant of the Carr and Greene families, first settlers of the colony of Rhode Island.

Will Be Third Marriage for Bellah.

His marriage to Miss Power-O'Malley will be Mr. Bellah's third. He was divorced from his second wife, the former Gruzilla M. Taylor, a year ago. A number of Washington residents will remember that in the spring of 1935 he and his second wife came to Washington to talk at a writers' luncheon, and at that time both remarked they felt particularly at home in and around the Capital because they were married in Elkton, Md., only two years before.

Slight of stature, blonde and unusually attractive, the woman who was then Mrs. James Warner Bellah was a writer, particularly concerned then with getting published a play she had just finished.

Mr Bellah's list of club memberships is almort as long as his list of notable ancestors. He belongs to the Columbia University Club the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the American Revolution, and the Amateur Fencers' League of America.

The wedding is scheduled to take place some time soon, probably in New York. After a trip abroad the couple will live on Long Island.

Catherine Ashley, D. W. Martin Wed

Couple to Visit New York on Wedding Journey.

St. Gabriel's Church yesterday morning at 9 o'clock was the scene of the wedding of Miss Catherine Elizabeth Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn W. Ashley, of Washington, to Mr. Daniel Walter Martin, son of Mrs. Hattie Martin.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a high neck and yoke of lace, long sleeves and a train. She carried a bouquet of rosebuds. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret Ashley, maid of honor. Mr. William Hayes acted as best man, and ushers were Mr. John McMorrow and Mr. Joseph Oyler.

Boy Scouts from St. Gabriel and St. Aloysius Churches formed a guard of honor in the middle aisle of the church. Mr. Martin is Scoutmaster from St. Aloysius Church.

The couple left immediately after the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, for a wedding trip to New York.

Senate Ladies Enjoy Picnic on Jefferson Isle

Motor to Annapolis, Cruise on Wenoka and Test Fishing Luck.

LADIES OF THE SENATE and other guests who attended the picnic on Jefferson Island yesterday believe they've found the answer to having a gay time even in sweltering June weather. Returning from their jaunt down Chesapeake Bay late yesterday afternoon, the entire party seemed to agree it was the end of a perfect day.

From first to last, the planned program went according to schedule. Guests motored down and met at the Naval Academy in Annapolis at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and then boarded a Department of Commerce boat to cruise leisurely down the Chesapeake to the Jefferson Islands (there are three). Shortly before noon, the 18 members of the party arrived at their destination and spent some time strolling through the club grounds, and along the wide verandas, or lounging in comfortable deck chairs until luncheon was served at tables-for-four on the inclosed porch.

Hostesses for the event were Ladies of the Senate whose husbands are members of the Jefferson Island Club. Their guests included other "Senate wives," a "Senate sister," the wife of a former President, and three wives of Cabinet members.

Fishing was a featured entertainment of the picnic, but it took second place in popularity with lounging in comfortable deck chairs beneath the trees both before and after luncheon.

Sports costumes were, of course, the order of the day. Gayly colored linen and white ensembles seemed to be the favored type of frock for both the hostesses and the guests, and small knobby hats and low-heeled shoes for comfort were also in evidence.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson were among the honored guests to enjoy the day's outing. Mrs. Hugo S. Black, wife of the Senator from Alabama, and Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida, were among those who found the fishing particularly entertaining.

In the absence of Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson presided at the party, assisted by Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, Mrs. Millard Tydings and Mrs. Key Pittman. Among others who also enjoyed the party, either in the role of guests or hostesses, were Mrs Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., Miss Jane Holt and Mrs. Morris Sheppard.

Even Capt. L. G. Irvin, of the yacht Wenoka, which took the Ladies of the Senate and their guests to and from Jefferson Island, can attest to the fact that the picnic was a huge success. "I just hope there's another one next year," said one guest, who declared, last evening "It was the best time I've had since summer began."

Visiting in New York.

Miss Ann LaRocco, of 2117 Hawthorne street northwest, is a guest at the Beekman Tower Hotel, New York City, where she expects to spend several days.

Francis Keyes, Son of Ex-Senator, Weds Miss Louise B. McNeil

Two Old New England Families United in Ceremonies in Massachusetts; Sister of Bride Maid of Honor; Reception Follows.

TWO DISTINGUISHED New England families were joined yesterday when Miss Louise Burleigh McNeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McNeil, of Chestnut Hill, Mass., became the bride of Francis Keyes, son of the former Senator from New Hampshire and Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, of Washington and North Haverhill, N. H.

The ceremony took place in the Church of the Redeemer in Chestnut Hill yesterday afternoon, with the Rev. John Moses officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight satin, fashioned on princess lines, and trimmed with rose point and duchess lace. She carried a bouquet of bouvardia of orchids.

Mrs. Edwin H. B. Pratt, the former Miss Aileen Kelly, of Cambridge, Mass., was matron of honor. Her frock was of eggshell taffeta made on bouffant lines, and she wore a garland of daisies in her hair.

Sister Serves As Maid of Honor.

Miss Virginia McNeil, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing an ensemble similar to that of the matron of honor. Other attendants were Miss Janet McNeil and Miss Nancy McNeil—sisters of the bride—Miss Betty Marshall, Miss Gertrude Peabody, Miss Anne Weeks, Miss Frances Seaver, Miss Charlotte Denny and Mrs. Martin Donahoe. They wore costumes of blue taffeta and blue garlands in their hair, and their bouquets were of peach gladioli and brick-colored African daisies.

Mr. Henry Wilder Keyes, jr., was his brother's best man, and another brother, John Keyes, served as head usher. Other ushers were Mr. Timothy Fuller, Mr. Carl Lyman, Mr. Edward Mottley, Mr. Curtis Prout, Mr. William Prout, Mr. Roscoe Alsop, Mr. Stanton Deland, Mr. Joseph Proctor, Mr. Edwin H. B. Pratt and Mr. Shawn Kelley, jr.

Bridegroom's Mother Wears "Heirloom Lace."

At the reception, the mother of the bride received the guests in an ensemble of dusty pink lace and pink accessories. Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, mother of the bridegroom, assisted. She wore a gown of black chantilly lace over flesh-colored taffeta, and a wide-brimmed black hat. The dress has been a treasured possession in Mrs. Keyes' family for many years, and was worn by her mother, her grandmother, and her great-grandmother at the marriage of each one's daughter.

When the bride and bridegroom left on their wedding trip following the reception yesterday, she wore a navy blue dress cut on simple lines and set off with a tailored rose coat and blending accessories.

Mr. Keyes is a graduate of Harvard, where he was president of the Delthic Club and treasurer of the Hasty Pudding Club. He also attended one of the most noted preparatory schools in New England, Milton Academy. For the past year, he has been teaching in Ridgefield, Conn.

The bride attended the Warrenton School, Miss Mary's School in Boston, and was graduated from Le Petit Ecole Florentine in Florence, Italy. She made her debut in Boston in 1933.

Soroptimists Addressed On Traffic Problems

Washington Club Hears W. L. Cleveland Urge Survey for D. C.; Action Planned; Mrs. La Fond in Charge of Program.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

THE WASHINGTON SOROPTIMIST CLUB, at its luncheon yesterday, at the Willard Hotel, turned its attention to the city's traffic problems. Its guest of honor and speaker was Mr. Washington L. Cleveland, manager of the District A. A. A. Club, who has spoken before various men's organizations this season, but had not addressed a women's group previously.

As a result of his visit to the club, the members will take action at their next session on a resolution urging a comprehensive ttraffic survey for the District, such as is being made in 41 States.

Following discussion of the general phases of the traffic situation, Mr. Cleveland brought it down to individual responsibility. He listed 14 points contributing to safety: Observance of traffic regulations; of highway courtesy; sizing up the situation at all times; signaling correctly; using the rear-view mirror; regular inspection of the car; slowing up at potential danger points; getting out on the correct side of the car; keeping in the line of traffic; using the horn only when necessary; putting the car in gear when parking on a hill; using the hand-brake in parking; starting on time for appointments and never taking a chance.

The Washington A. A. A. lub is urging a law providing compulsory inspection of motor vehicles at stations owned and operated by the District. At present, said Mr. Cleveland, because of lack of such a law and appropriations to enforce it, there are 117 persons deputized to make inspections, many of which are valueless. He told of the A. A. A. Club's having bought a $20 car, which was inspected and approved by one of the deputies. Later, at the Bureau of Standards, it was found to have defective brakes, defective steering gear, no bar on the windshield wiper, dim headlights, leaking exhaust and other defects which constituted hazards.

Washington, he said, with an automobile for every 2.03 persons, has an acute traffic problem and an equally serious parking situation. With parking space for only 16,000 cars available, the rest of the 130,000 in the city must keep on the move, looking for a place to stop.

Mrs. Charlotte La Fond was in charge of the program for the occasion, which also included a group of songs by Mrs. Jewell Downs, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret May.

Mrs. Emily Snow, who recently has been made a member of the club, made her bow as a Soroptimist at the luncheon. Mrs. Lucille Miller, past president of the Montgomery County Soroptimist Club, was a guest, and Mrs. Edith Martin entertained as her guest Ruth Porter, of Washington.

Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, South Atlantic regional director of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, announced a new region had been formed in Canada, and that the new regional officers would be installed June 26. It was announced also that a new Soroptimist club had been formed in Salem County, near Camden, N. J.

Club songs were sung under the leadership og Gene Bearmore, accompanied by Mrs. Betsy Fisher, pianist for the Washington Soroptimists.

Several Hundred Attend Affair at Ingleside Mansion Here.

INGLESIDE MANSION, now the Presbyterian Home for the Aged, was the scene yesterday of the annual garden party given by the Board of Lady Managers. Several hundred guests gathered for the event, which was in charge of Miss Cornelia Cotton, with Mrs. W. Hall Trigg as vice chairman.

The home, which was established in 1906, was first located in a house at 1420 M street. In 1916 the present site at 1818 Newton street, formerly part of the Walbridge estate, was purchased from Mr. Frank B. Noyes. There are now 32 residents, both men and women.

Mrs. Edith Galt Mish is president of the board, the third in the more than 30 years since the home was started. The first president was the late Mrs. A. R. Quaffe, who held office for 19 years and was followed by Mrs. Brainard H. Warner, president for 9 years.

All of the churches in the Washington Presbytery co-operate in the maintenance of the institution. Its affairs are governed by the board, composed of 12 members from each church, with Miss Ann Patterson as the matron.

Yesterday's party was for the purpose of raising funds to aid in the current running expenses, as endowments cover the cost of repairs and upkeep of the property. Tea was served in the garden, and there were booths where flowers, cake, candy and gifts were sold.

Those assisting on committees included Mrs. C. W. Harris, Mrs. Carl Schoenhals, Mrs. George C. Thompson, Mrs. George Rawlson, Mrs. Will B. Davis, Mrs. E. D. Morgan, Mrs. Martha J. Vaughan, Miss Katherine L. Harvey, Mrs. J. Bartley Reeside, Mrs. Mary Benjamin, Mrs. R. E. Copes, Miss Julia Chase, Mrs. Stitt, Miss Lottie Mayfield, Mrs. Carrie Smith, Mrs. A. N. Carnahan and Mrs. Mary E. Prender.

Mr. Franklin Munroe Baggett served as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Joseph V. Ashford and Mr. Ralph Krouse.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother followed the ceremoney. Mrs. Munroe wore a pink and gray print chiffon and the mother of the bridegroom chose blue lace over satin. After a wedding trip to Norfolk, Va., and the Shenandoah Valley, Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. McPherson will live at 9108 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. HARRY A. DODDERIDGE, president of the Democratic Women's National Council, has returned from Kansas where she attended the graduation of her older son, William Harris Dodderidge, from Kansas University. After receiving his degree in political science, he followed Horace Greeley's advice to "go West, young man" and went to Utah, where he will spend part of the summer with Mr. Oliver Grimes, formerly of Washington, who was an executive assistant to the late Secretary of War George H. Dern.

When Mrs. Dodderidge lived in Kansas and her sons were growing up, she did feature writing for the newspapers and served as treasurer of the Kansas Woman's Press Club. When the boys were in high school she felt the urge to do some studying, too, and went to the Kansas State Agricultural College in Manhattan to brush up in journalism.

Her son, Bob, is at West Point, finishing his plebe year and next week-end she expects to visit him there. He attended Washingtan and Lee last year, following his graduation from Western High School, where he was prominent in athletics.

AN ARTISTS' TEA was given yesterday afternoon at the Women's City Club by a group which painted with Lester Stevens during his three weeks' stay in the Capital. The "tea" was orange punch, thanks to the efforts of several of the women artists who are as adept at squeezing oranges as tubes of paint—and dainty little cakes were served with it.

However, the pictures were the real reason for the party. Under Mr. Stevens, after whose name belongs an "A. N. A.," more than 20 Washington painters have been working, making trips to Rock Creek Park, Fletcher's Boat Landing, River Road, Key Bridge, Great Falls, Mount Vernon and other adjacent beauty spots. Sometimes they stayed all day, taking their luncheons with them.

• • • •

In the group were many well-known artists of the Capital. They included Mrs. Fred Keplinger, Miss Clara Saunders, Mrs. Edwin H. Etz, Miss Dorothy Barnes, Mrs. Paul R. Greever, wife of Representative Greever, who expects to paint some of Wyoming's majestic landscapes when she goes home in August; Mrs. F. H. Hawley, Mrs. Frederick Parks, Mrs. R. E. Morgan, Dr. Florence Everhart, Mr. Roger Ritasse, Mrs. Jo Kenealy Byrne, Mrs. Ruth Degges, William S. Walter, Dr. Wilson, Mrs. Cara Kimberly, Mrs. Mildred Taggart and Mrs. Martha Bache.

The artists and their friends were there to view the exhibition which was of interest, not only from the standpoint of the beauty of the pictures, but also because most of the scenes were in the immediate vicinity of Washington.

Mr. Stevens, whose home is in Rockport, Mass., was not present as he has returned there and will leave shortly for Quebec, where he will spend the summer.

The Martha Washington Seminary will be the scene of a real Martha Washington party tomorrow, when the D. A. R. Chapter House entertains with Mrs. Roosevelt as a patroness. (It is not just for members, by the way, but open to the public). In addition to Martha Washington and Mary Ball Washington, who will be there—in costume, if not in person—Children of the American Revolution will be in colonial dress and even the doorman in a costume of the period. The fountain court in the seminary garden, will be the setting for the entertainment, including music and dancing, and colored singers will stroll about the grounds, singing spirituals and songs of the old South.

• • • •

Dr. Edward W. Thompson has loaned the grounds and building as a setting for the party in memory of his mother, who was an active member of the D. A. R. chapter at her home in Pennsylvania. A picture of Martha Washington by the noted portrait artist, William Steene, who was recently in the Capital, hangs in the hallway of the seminary and was the inspiration for the colonial theme of tomorrow's party.

Winnie Beers Becomes Bride

The marriage of Miss Winnie M. Beers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wellington Beers, of Forest Glen, Md., to Mr. M. Edgar Allen took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Harry W. Burgan officiated at the ceremony, which was performed in a setting of palms, oak leaves and vases of white peonies and gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown trimmed with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Florence M. Leitzel was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Ethel D. Stickels and Mrs. Irving E. Strobel. Mrs. Leitzel wore peach lace, Miss Stickles orchid chiffon, and Mrs. Strobel aquamarine marquisette. All three wore leghorn hats trimmed with velvet to match their gowns. Mr. John E. Higgs was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Edwin D. Harrington and Mr. Irving E. Strobel.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left for a wedding tour of New England.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. May Webber, Mrs. Lee Blanchard and Mr. and Mrs. Kellar Vincent, of Franklin, Pa.; Miss Myrtle Mohagen, of Champaign, Ill., and the Misses Bessie and Emily Higgs, of Baltimore.

Poole-Gram Wedding Held

Couple Will Reside in Chevy Chase, Md., After Tour.

In a setting of palms, ferns and spring flowers, Miss Edith-Marie Gram was married at 8 o'clock last evening to Mr. Charles Wright Poole, of Silver Spring. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Gram, of Washington.

The Fourth Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding, at which the Rev. James H. Miers officiated, assisted by the Rev. John J. Queally. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with a long fish-tail train and a Mary of Scotland veil trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bridal spray of white roses, lilies of the valley and babies' breath, and wore at her throat a gold cross inlaid with diamonds.

Miss Flora Edith Waldman, the maid of honor, wore blue chiffon trimmed with peach velvet, and a halo net hat with a shoulder veil.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Eleanor Quirk, Fredericka Waldman, Muriel James, Barbara Poole, Dorothy Hobbs nad Tillie Roose. They wore frocks in pastel shades of orchid, apple green and peach, and carried bouquets of roses in contrasting shades.

Mr. James Brown, of Washington, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Jesse C. Gram, Mr. George D. Gram, Mr. Harvey B. Gram, jr., Mr. Bererton Poole, Mr. Leroy Poole, jr., Mr. Jack Poole and Mr. Thomas Herbert, all of Washington, and Mr. Robert T. Reid, of Baltimore.

The home of the bride's parents was decorated with palms, ferns, roses and other flowers, for the reception which followed the ceremony. After a motor trip through New England and Canada, the couple will reside in Chevy Chase, Md. The bride chose as her going-away costume a natural linen frock and a green wool coat with a wolf collar.

The club has met monthly since January and included in its social activities a luncheon honoring Mrs. Roosevelt and a dinner in compliment to the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Bankhead. Yesterday there was no program at the luncheon but at others through the season, speakers have addressed the members. Lewis Charged With Violating Coal Contracts

Cannot Forbid Loadings, Western Pennsylvania Operators Assert.

Western Pennsylvania coal operators last night told John L. Lewis that under terms of their contract with the United Mine Workers Lewis cannot forbid loading of coal from their mines for the Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Bethlehem Steel companies.

The operators "will hold you and your organization to the full measure of responsibility for the faithful performance of your contract with this association and its members," said a telegram to Lewis signed by Byron H. Canon, secretary of the operators' association, made public here by Harry B. Hunt, their representative.

In a communication given to the association by district presidents of the Mine Workers, the association said Lewis had declared that if captive mines of the two companies "undertake to transfer the production of their coal tonnage from captive to commercial operations, the United Mine Workers reserve the right to withdraw its membership from coal production in such properties."

"Incitement" Charged.

The association did not challenge Lewis' right to call out workmen at captive mines. It quoted from its contract with the U. M. W., asserted Lewis' call is a violation and concluded that "spontaneous" refusal of members of the U. M. W. to load coal for these companies would be impossible in view of the "incitement" to such action Lewis' words in the press had carried.

Canon also said:

"If such action should develop 'spontaneously' by members of your organization locally at coal mines, such action will be conclusive proof that you and your officials, after 40 years' existence of the United Mine Workers, have no effective control of its membership in carrying out your agreements, and that, therefore, a contract with the United Mine Workers of America is futile and worthless.

"But there is good reason in this instance to believe that such action on the part of your members would not be 'spontaneous.' Here is a telegram from you, as president . . . suggesting a violation of contract obviously intended by attendant publicity in the newspapers to incite your membership to disregard the provisions of your agreement with our association."

Philip Murray, head of the Lewis Steel Workers Organizing Committee, yesterday disputed statements made in the appeal to President Roosevelt yesterday by Mayor Daniel J. Shields, of Johnstown, Pa., urging that Lewis be required to withdraw a "murderous element" from that section. Murray declared the appeal was "ridiculous," asserting the Lewis organization had sent no outsiders to Johnstown.

"Strike . . . by Citizens."

"The strike," he said, "is being conducted by residents of Jonhstown and Cambria County—citizens and taxpayers."

Lewis, meanwhile, was on his way to address a labor mass meeting at Chicago today. It was considered possible that he might make a tour of the steel strike region.

The House Postoffice Committee yesterday shelved a resolution for another investigation into charges of mail interference in connection with the strike.

Assistant Postmaster General W. W. Howes wrote the committee that "normal mail service" has been maintained in strike-bound plants. He added that "there were a few instances where the mails were delayed."

Class 1 Rails Seek Freight Rate Boost

Class 1 railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for an increase in the general freight rate structure because operating expenses are increasing "by leaps and bounds."

The request was made when the commission opened final hearing on the petition of the carriers for a rate to replace surcharges which were terminated last December.

Appearing were R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the Association of American Railroads, and E. A. Smith, railroad attorney representing all carriers and specifically the Western district.

"Give us a chance," asked Smith. "The fact that times are getting better doesn't make any difference. We need the increases to enable us to realize a fair return."

Pan American Board Studies Parley Topics

The governing board of the Pan American Union held a special session yesterday to consider a report of the sub-committee appointed to draft a list of topics for possible inclusion in the program of the Eight International Conference of American States. The conference is scheduled to meet in Lima, Peru, possibly in 1938.

The list of topics included the organization of peace, including the creation of an Inter-American Court of International Justice and the creation of a League or Association of American Nations.

Young Ensign Ousted by Navy For Marriage

Academy's colorful exercises on June 3, standing ninth academically in a class of 319. A prominent member of the first class, he was given a brief leave after commissioning before taking his station on the cruiser U. S. S. Salt Lake City.

Without disclosing who had informed them of Nash's marriage, the Navy said it had learned of it since the graduation. No stigma is attached to the revoking of the commission, it was emphasized. All commissions are revokable for a brief period; occasionally a few are revoked for various reasons.

Marriages Watched.

Marriages at West Point and Annapolis have long been a source of interest. Both academies prohibit marriage during the four years as a cadet or midshipman. The Army, however, allows second lieutenants to marry the moment they are commissioned. The chapel at West Point is crowded for three days each year following graduation, as newly commissioned Army officers are married. This year, about 50 weddings occurred directly after commencement last Saturday.

The Navy prohibits ensigns from marrying for two years. Each year a few midshipmen and cadets resign because of being married, although there have been few weddings among West Point cadets recently. Only last Christmas two midshipmen were married over the holiday, one of them to a Washington girl. After returning to Annapolis, they notified the superintendent, Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, and promptly resigned from the service.

Tax Receipts Rise In Second Quarter

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury reported late yesterday it reaped $378,831,649 from second-quarter income tax collections yesterday, bringing receipts for the first 15 days of this month to $469,841,709. June 15 was the dead line for second-quarter collections.

The 15-day total, computed on the basis of preliminary reports, indicated that income tax revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30 will top President Roosevelt's revised budget forecast of $2,105,000,000 by from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Collections for the first half of June were 69 per cent above those for the same period last year. This was the same rate of gain recorded by first-quarter collections in March.

Thus far this fiscal year, collections have totaled $2,070,000,000—only $35,000,000 short of the estimate for the entire period.

Man's Neck Broken In Taxicab Accident

Dick Richardson, colored, 28, the 700 block of Fourth street northeast, was in Freedmen's Hospital last night in a serious condition, with a broken neck received in an automobile accident yesterday.

Police said Richardson was a passenger in a taxicab operated by Richard Thomas, colored, of 2303 Flagler place northwest. The cab, they said, collided with a car operated by James H. Johnson, also colored, of 723 Kenyon street northwest, at the intersection of Tenth and O streets northwest. Johnson and Thomas were both held at the Second Precinct Station for investigation.

NATS, BEHIND FERRELL, DOWN TIGERS, 2-1, IN 12th

The Washington Post Sports

* X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1937 21

This Morning

2-1 Odds on Louis Unpustifiable.

This department can think of far better investments than a wager on Joe Louis at the current 2-1 odds and the 50 per cent it would fetch if Louis beats James J. Braddock next Tuesday evening out there on the infield at Comiskey Park, Chicago.

A bet on Louis at those figures is a bad gamble, methinks. Off their records, he is a better fighter than Braddock, but he is no 1-to-2 shot to beat the champion of the world.

POVICH.

In Braddock, the Detroit brown boy will be meeting up with the best boxer he has ever faced. Only one of the guys that Louis has knocked over is to be mentioned in the same inhalation with Braddock as a boxer. That fellow was Jack Sharkey, who forgot how to box that night against Louis because his knees were knocking together so loudly he couldn't hear himself think—or something.

If you pooled the boxing skill of the rest of 'em that Louis turned upside down—Baer, Carnera, Levinsky, Schmeling—the composite figure would still be something of a bumblebum. Schmeling beat Louis, 'tis true, but he beat him with one of the greatest right hands in the business—not by outboxing him.

Because if Schmeling were a boxer he would never have been hit with that thing that Max Baer knocked him out with—a roundhouse right swing that Baer pulled around from deep right field and deposited on Schmeling's chin in the twelfth round at Yankee Stadium. Schmeling had no license to be hit with such a punch and his reuptation as a boxer will remain forever clouded.

This fellow Braddock is ring-wise. He knows the important little tricks of keeping a guy off balance, of feinting him into an opening, of clinching and riding with a punch. Louis will be meeting up with something entirely new when he crawls through the ropes at Chicago. And there is serious doubt that the brown boy has the native smartness or the reflexes to readjust himself to the occasion.

Between rounds up there in New York, he couldn't even remember to hold his left high and went back out there helpless against those right-hand slugs Schmeling was firing. His chief second, Jack Blackburne, literally shouted in Louis' ear that he was lowering his left hand and exposing his chin, but Louis either couldn't hear or he couldn't understand.

But to a guy who would run from him, Louis was plain murder. He proved that when he tipped over that long list of heavyweights whose one thought was to keep their distance. Louis, with his native speed, could catch up with those kind. And there never was any doubt about his punch. He had that.

Like a fellow named Jack Dempsey, Louis boasts as his best weapon a devastating left hook. But unlike Dempsey, Louis leaves himself open when he throws that Sunday punch. Dempsey used to start that hook from a crouch, with his head usually buried in the other guy's stomach. But Louis is something of a stand-up fighter and when that left goes, there are wide-open spaces in the vicinity of his jaw.

• • • •

If there is one thing certain about this fight, it is that Braddock won't run from Louis. And you remember that the first guy who wasn't afraid of Louis—Max Schmeling—was the first guy who beat him, and without much trouble.

If I seem to be building up a case for Braddock, I mean only that Louis is no 1-to-2 bet. For my money, a 1-to-2 shot has got to have an undisputed stout ticker and a lot of stuff on the ball. And he can't be a sucker for a right-hand punch.

There is no evidence that Louis is not a game sort of a guy and he may have learned how to keep that chin under his shoulder where it belongs, but I wouldn't want to lay 2 to 1 on that possibility. At those odds, I would be forced to take Braddock.

But at even money—ah, that's another thing. I'd have to string along with the puncher and he, in this case, happens to be Louis. And I'd be willing to gamble at those odds that he would catch up with Braddock some time during the 15 rounds and tag him. But excuse me, if it's 2-to-1 odds that you want.

Braddock and Louis Agree to Waive Foul

Referee Can Stop Battle At Discretion

Precautions Are Taken Against Repetition of 'Long Count.'

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 16.—The world's heavyweight championship fight between James J. Braddock, the titleholder, and Joe Louis at Comisky Park next Tuesday will not be won or lost on a foul.

This was decided today when the Illinois State Athletic Commission waived two of its most important rules and modified others in determining regulations under which the contest will be fought. The rules were agreed upon at a conference attended by Joe Gould, manager of Braddock; Julian Black and John Roxborough, co-managers of the colored challenger; Joe Foley and Mike Jacobs, the promoters, and attorneys for the two principals.

The meeting was presided over by Joseph Triner, chairman of the commission.

"It was most harmonious," he said. "Even Joe Gould had nothing to protest about, believe it or not."

Waiving of the foul rule was the most important development. Each boxer will be required to wear protective cups, and will be obliged to protect themselves at all times. If either boxer is fouled, he will be given sufficient rest in order to continue. If he refuses, his opponent will be declared the winner on a technical knockout.

"We positively will not recognize a foul," declared Triner.

The second important rule waived concerned stopping the fight because of injuries to either fighter. The Illinois rule specifies that if a bout is stopped to save a contestant from further injury, his opponent is awarded the decision. This was changed for the championship fight so that such an ending will be called a technical knockout. The referee will be empowered to stop the fight at his discretion, if he is of the opinion that the disabled boxer no longer has a sporting chance to continue.

"Our referees have a wide latitude in the matter of stopping bouts," Chairman Triner said. "We have now agreed that a chief second shall be the judge as to whether his boxer is able to continue. We would rather have the seconds decide this, rather than take it upon ourselves. However, if those in the

Nicky Jerome Signs to Meet Joe Archibald

By Bob Garrison.

Nicky Jerome, 22-year-old Italian featherweight from Brooklyn, N. Y., was signed yesterday by Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn to meet Joey Archibald in the 10-round feature of the boxing show at Griffith Stadium Monday night, it was announced last night.

Forced to find a first rate substitute for the injured Lou Gevinson, who was scheduled to meet Archibald last night, Ahearn chose Jerome on the basis of his three-year professional career in which he has met the best of the feather and bantamweight fighters.

Jerome, who has a two-round knockout victory over Johnny Pena, whom Gevinson flattened in seven rounds, holds victories over such first rate boxers as Al Reid, Henry Hook and Indian Quintana. Both Jerome and Archibald have dropped decisions to Sixto Escobar, bantam ruler.

Although Archibald and Jerome have long been Madison Square Garden performers, they have never met in the same ring. It will be Jerome's first visit to Washington.

Promoter Joe Turner announced that tickets for last night's postponed 40-round show will be honored Monday night. The remainder of the scheduled card will remain intact, he said.

At the same time, it was announced that John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, has been signed to appear in a Washington ring for the first itme.

All-Star Tilt To Be Opened By Roosevelt

By the Associated Press.

A right-hander who broke into the majors 20 years ago, but who didn't become famous as a hurler until 1933 will be the starting pitcher in baseball's all-star game here July 7. He is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Owner Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, said he had made a "deal" with President Roosevelt to pitch the first ball.

The major league deadline on trading ended last midnight, but Griffith explained he had "signed" the President beforehand and that Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Landis wouldn't have to rule on any violation.

"The President told me he was looking forward to attending the game," Griffith said.

He's already getting his arm limbered up. I told him he'd have to be in top shape, for he'll face better batters than he's ever tackled before."

This is the first time in five years of baseball's all-star games that the President has taken part.

Mr. Roosevelt made his debut in the majors in 1917 when, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, he raised the flag at opening day games here.

Soon after he became President he tossed the first ball at Washington's inaugural contest in 1933 and has repeated in every succeeding opener.

The managers of the league champions, Joe McCarthy, of the Yankees, and Bill Terry, of the Giants, will name the teams June 28, after thumbing over the nominations of the other major league pilots. The only break McCarthy and Terry got in their tough assignment came when Commissioner K. M. Landis

War Department Beats Cavalry, 8-4

Six well earned goals, added to a two goal handicap, gave the War Department Blues an 8-4 victory over the Third Cavalry of Fort Myer, yesterday afternoon, on the Polo Field in Potomac Park. Five hundred persons saw the Department four avenge the defeat suffered at the hands of the Cavalry, Sunday.

Failing to work together, the Cavalry saw the two goals they gave away to the Blues mount to three before they were able to find the goal. After they had scored twice in the first chukker, the Cavalry was never in the game as the Blues took a 6-2 lead at the half.

Capt. Hank Reed, who led the winners' attack, was injured in the fifth period when a ball hit by Lieut. Grunert, of the Cavalry, hit him in the pit of the stomach, but he remained in the game.

Chisox Bow To Newsom In 3-2 Duel

Red Sox First to Down Whitehead; Rally in 4th Sews Game.

Boston, June 16 (AP).—Buck Newsom muffled the Chicago White Sox with 5 hits and fanned 8 batters today to pitch the Red Sox to a 3-to-2 victory, their second straight over the Chicagoans.

Although he walked 10 batters, Newsom fanned 8 and did not give up any extra base hits as he hurled his second win since coming to the Red Sox from Washington.

He bested Johnny Whitehead in a flinging duel, handing that pitcher his first defeat of the season after four straight victories.

A 3-run rally in the fourth inning sewed up the game for the Bostons. A walk to Pinky Higgins with the bases loaded sent one run in, and Gene Desautels' double drove the other two across.

The Sox, putting on late rallies, scored one each in the seventh and eighth, but fell down with the tying run on base in the ninth.

Rookie Wade Loses Duel on Wild Pitch

Rivals Allow 8 Hits Each; Freak Safeties Factor in Ending Struggle; Rick Ferrell Scores Deciding Run With Bases Loaded.

Out of the same hand that for eleven innings had whipped them into a batting stupor a wild pitch fluttered into the dirt yesterday and the Nats beat the Tigers, 2 to 1.

They won the game in the twelfth—a tragic twelfth for young Jake Wade and the Tigers, who had been locked in a futile 1-1 pitching duel with Washington's Wes Ferrell.

WES FERRELL.

Young Wade had been unyielding since the sixth inning when Washington took a 1-0 lead. And the veteran Ferrell permitted few liberties after the Tigers tied the score in the eighth. Then the pair—veteran and rookie—found themselves in a tense, extra-inning struggle.

Tragic for Wade.

For Wade it was a cruel as well as tragic twelfth inning. Two of the three Washington hits which filled the bases reeked with cheapness. Rick Ferrell's crisp single to center was the only legitimate blow. But with two out Wade began to get a series of shameful breaks.

Hank Greenberg messed up Buddy Lewis' grounder which was scored as a hit and Ferrell moved to second, Bill Rogell's attempt for a force play at second base on Kuhel's grounder toward shortstop failed and the bases were full.

Then Wade turned his attention to Johnny Stone at the plate. The frail left hander failed to get his first two pitches across. Then something in his delicate control snapped under the strain—the ball literally slithered off his fingers, took an eccentric dip toward the ground, struck the hard rubber at home plate and scooted far out of the reach of Catcher George Tebbetts.

Rick Ferrell dashed home from third with the winning run.

For Ferrell it was a magnificent triumph, added proof of salubrious effects of the recent trade with Boston which brought him to the Nats. The big right-hander whom Washington fans were seeing for the first time in a Washington uniform, silenced the big guns of the Tigers—Gehringer, Greenberg and Walker—with two hits.

Eight hits was the allotment of each team, with Ferrell in possession of a 6-hit game, until the twelfth and young Wade pitching 5-hit ball until that fateful inning.

Back in the sixth the Nats third hit off the Tiger southpaw—Hill's sharp single to center—was converted into a run when Wade lapsed to the extent of issuing two walks behind Hill. Hill crossed the plate when Al Simmons hit into a force play at second base, the Tigers' failing in a run-killing double play attempt because Johnny Stone cut down Charley Gehringer with a vicious rolling block.

That 1-0 lead endured until the eighth, when Bill Rogell commenced the inning with a brisk two-bagger past Kuhel, went to third on an in-

Mrs. Betty Meckley Defeats Mrs. Stokes, 7 and 5, in Women's Play

Mrs. L. Pray Wins Match At 19th Hole

Helen Dettweiler, Elizabeth Houghton Also Advance.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

A quartet of Washington's leading clubs sent their respective stars in the semifinal rounds of the District Women's Amateur at Chevy Chase today as Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring, faces Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, and Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of the host club, meets Miss Helen Dettweiler, Congressional.

Yesterday's results found the three favorites winning by various margins and the toss-up match between Mrs. Pray and Ellen Kincaid proving to be just that as the Manor star eked out a nineteenth hole win, after trailing on the seventeenth tee.

Mrs. Walter Stokes, the dark-horse contender, was no match for the defending champion, Mrs. Meckley, losing the first five holes and finally bowing, 7 and 5, while Helen Dettweiler's consistently good golf proved to be five holes better than the medalist, Mrs. Bishop Hill.

Leads at Turn.

Miss Houghton rallied on the back nine with a 39 to overcome a one-hole lead her youthful opponent, Marion Brown, held at the turn, and win by a two-hole margin. The Maryland State finalist scored 83 for the route.

Mrs. Meckley played the finest golf she has exhibited in the tourney yesterday, and looked as though she was really out to defend her crown. She was 3 under women's par for the first four holes, but required 6 strokes on the sixth hole and finished the nine in 41, holding a 5-up lead.

The match ended on the thirteenth hole with Mrs. Meckley even par for the route. She lost but two holes, the sixth and seventh, when Mrs. Stokes rallied briefly, and scored a 2 on the fourth with a 10-foot putt.

Helen Dettweiler's victory was scored in much the same manner over Mrs. Hill. The Maryland State titleholder was 3 up at the fifth hole, retained it through the ninth after scoring a 42, and closed the match on the fourteenth after her second shot bounced out of the creek bordering the green.

See-Saw Match.

The Pray-Kincaid encounter was of the see-saw variety. The eventual winner led 1-up at the turn by winning the ninth hole and increased her margin to 2-up on the eleventh. Ellen cut the margin to one on the twelfth and squared the issue by chipping into the cup on the fifteenth hole.

For the first time in the match Mrs. Pray was down, Ellen winning the sixteenth hole and the Congressional Miss had an opportunity to win the hole and match on the seventeenth but missed two approach shots and Mrs. Pray, a finalist in this event three years ago, evened the match.

First Catch of Rockfish

Rock and Blues—Big Fish News

By Bill Ackerman.

With the weather—when it rains, it pours. With fishing, it generally works out likewise. News of bluefish caught on the Middles is more than enough for any one day, but when a catch of over 30 rockfish are reported at the same time—it is just too much—a pull on any fisherman's heart.

Capt. L. M. Springs, who fishes two fine party boats from Point Lookout, decided late Tuesday afternoon to go on a hunting expedition for the big stripers. With Mrs. Springs and their 4-year-old son, they headed for Piney Point. Finding them was no trouble at all, for they were on the surface and just hunting for action, which the Spriggs family supplied, and which netted them, in addition to two hours of hilarious sport, thirty-odd stripers that pushed, within ounces, the 15-pound limit. Even the youngster was pulling them up to the boat for his daddy to land.

This is the first catch of stripers to be made in this section. Post Notes recommendation for this week-end is to call Capt. Spriggs, at Great Mills 9-F-15, and get yourself some of this fishing. If he is engaged, there are other boats that he can get for you.

Milton Gordon, of Atlas Sport Store, has been religiously haunting the Middles, trying to be the first in on that small shoal of blues that have been hanging out there for the past several weeks.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in company with Harold Vermeule and Fred Shafterd, he connected. Four strikes and two fish, weighing about 4 pounds each. After that, the hardheads took possession of the chum slick and it was impossible to catch anything else. This ordinarily would have been classed fine fishing, as the few small ones weighed nearly 3 pounds, while the large ones pushed 5 pounds very close. The anglers were the first to call enough, for they left for home with the hardheads still holding the Middles.

4 Americans Surviving in London Play

Budge, Grant, Sabin and Surface in Quarter-Finals of Queen Club Tourney

By the Associated Press.

London, June 16.—America placed four men in the quarter-finals of the Queens Club tennis tournament today and furnished an almost certain finalist in red-headed Don Budge.

The California sorrel-top, who had won his match yesterday in 18 minutes, cut four minutes off that time schedule today as he trounced R. O. Williams, of Great Britain, with the loss of only one game, 6—0, 6—1.

Budge is favored to meet Great Britain's Davis Cup ace, Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, in the finals. Austin, making his first appearance in the tournament, disposed of A. W. R. Caws, 6—1, 6—1, and R. A. Shayes, 6—2, 6—0, to enter the round of eight.

Tomorrow the British star will play Hal Surface, of Kansas City, who advanced at the expense of his fellow-American, Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6—2, 3—6, 6—1.

Completing the American survivors were Bryan M. Grant, tiny Atlantan, and Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Fla., both members of the American Davis Cup team.

Grant Beats Mako.

Grant, giving the gallery a series of thrills with his spectacular recoveries, romped to a 6—3, 6—2, triumph over Gene Mako, his fellow Davis Cup teammate, while Sabin overcame stubborn opposition from R. J. Ritchie, of England, to win, 6—3, 9—7.

Surface and Harris teamed up to score a second round doubles victory over Frank Parker, of Milwaukee, and Larry Hall, of San Jose, Calif., 6—2, 6—2.

America lost both her representatives in women's singles as Katherine Winthrop, of Boston, bowed to Joan Saunders, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2, and Dorothy Anrus, of Stamford, Conn., and New York, to Kay Stammers, 6—1, 6—3.

Mrs. Andrus and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, eliminated Miss D. M. Royall and Joan Physick, 6—1, 6—0, in women's doubles.

Beaver Dam Links Open for State Junior Play

The Beaver Dam course will be open for practice rounds today and tomorrow for participants in the Maryland State junior championship, scheduled next Monday over the Landover layout.

Entries close Saturday at noon with Emmet Gary, 16 McClellan place, Baltimore, Md., accompanied by a 75-cent entrance fee. Billy Shea and Bobby Brownell, of Congressional and Manor, respectively, finished one-two in this event last year.

Quashed Ascot Favorite.

BASEBALL'S BIG SIX

Beau Bell, the Browns' sophomore outfielder, climbed back into second place in the American League batting race, behind Leader Lou Gehrig, yesterday, by getting three hits in four chances to boost his average seven points to .371. Ducky Medwick, of the Cardinals, leading the National League, hit three-for-four and raised his mark to .411.

increased the player limit from 21 to 23.

Take McCarthy's job—you can have it—of deciding between Lou Gehrig and Hank Greenberg for first base. And he mustn't forget that Henry Bonura is banging the ball hard and that an all-star game without Jimmy Foxx would seem strange.

U. S. Ryder Cup Team on Seas, England Bound

Guldahl, Shute, Snead in Group Hopeful of Retaining Honors.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 16.—America's hand-picked squad of 10 professional golfers sailed for England today aboard the liner Manhattan, with high hopes of retaining the International Trophy won in 1935, when they clash with the British pros at Southport, June 29 and 30.

The team, which will be joined in England by nonplaying Capt. Walter Hagen, included the two national champions, Ralph Guldahl, who won the open at Birmingham, Mich., with a record score last Saturday, and Denny Shute, who successfully defended his P. G. A. crown at Pittsburgh in May.

In addition there were Sam Snead, the brilliant young West Virginia rookie who, in his first open, took second place with the third-lowest score ever recorded in the championship; Byron Nelson, Ed Dudley, veteran sensation of the winter circuit; Tony Manero, U. S. Open champion in 1936; Johnny Revolta, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, and Gene Sarazen, who, like Hagen, has played on every cup team since the first in 1927.

Junior, Boys' Net Tourneys Begin Today

Forty-three junior and 29 boys, all aspiring to the city championship, will enter the first round of the City of Washington championships this afternoon on the Sixteenth Street Reservoir courts.

With the junior list exceeding by one the greatest previous number ever to enroll and the boys' entry more than doubling that of last year's tournament, it will be the largest juvenile tennis tournament ever held in the District.

A new potential threat to the junior division, which has previously been closed to local boys, has been discovered by pre-tournament selectors in the person of Reginald Cooper. However, he is seeded behind such players as Harry Heffner, No. 1; Harry March, No. 2; and five others: Billy Turner, David Johnsen and Dewitt Smith, jr., seeded in that order.

Because three ranking boy players have moved into the junior circle, only one boy entrant has been seeded on past records. Tom Wadden, seeded fourth at the end of last season, has been given the honor.

Taylor Chewning, unranked in '36, but a member of the runner-up doubles team of last year, has been seeded second, and John Titus and Maurice Cowan, third and fourth, respectively.

That winners of the two championships in the finals to be held next Wednesday will represent the District in the sectional competition was announced by the Evening Star, sponsor of the tournament, when arrangements were made to end the classic promptly so that titlists may be present at the Middle Atlantic starting in Norfolk, June 25.

Entries Close Tonight.

Entries for the pewee, insect and midget sections of the Columbian Athletic League will close tonight. Any teams wishing to enter may do so by calling CO. 2817 or through the league headquarters at 610 Irving street northwest, Apartment 1.

Amateur Net Play Devoid Of Surprises

Mitchell, Latona and Lynch Advance at Edgemoor Courts.

By Jack Munhall.

From a maze of important fourth-round matches in the men's singles yesterday at Edgemoor, five contestants joined two others in the quarter-finals of the Grand National Amateur tennis tournament.

Those victorious yesterday were Dooly Mitchell, Hugh Lynch, Tony Latona, Harry Heffner, among the seeded locals, and Frank Goeltz, rated first among the visitors and the only foreign player now surviving.

The three who gained the quarter-finals through victories Tuesday include two unseeded players and one seeded. They are Tom Mangan, not seeded at his own requenst, who defeated Art Simmons; Billy Contreras, who conquered Hy Ritzenberg, and Yelverton Garnett, rated behind Mitchell as the favorite. Garnett beat the troublesome Billy Turner to reach this round.

Goeltz Rallies to Win.

In the most grueling and dramatic match yesterday, Goeltz, hindered by a bad knee, rallied to best Dunklin, 1—6, 7—5, 6—2. Dunklin was at set point in the second set when halted by the inspired play of the Wilkes-Barre star, who fought his way to deuce and won that set and then followed by taking the deciding one.

Mitchell defeated Deanne Judd, seeded 13, 6—0, 7—5. Mitchell hit his stride early and swept the initial set with great ease, but was extended by the hard-fighting veteran in the final.

Harry Heffner, the ninth-ranking junior player in the country off last year's performances, scored an impressive and surprisingly easy triumph over Tom Moorhead, seeded sixth, 6—3, 6—0.

Lynch disposed of Don Garber, unseeded, who on Tuesday had upset Hy Ritzenberg to reach the quarter-finals, 6—3, 6—3.

Brown's Low Blows Cost Boston Bout

Boston, June 16 (AP).—Al McCoy, 182, Boston, won a split ten-round decision over Natie Brown, 199, the wild Washington whirlwind, tonight at Fenway Park. Brown's body attack, which included several low punches, was impressive, but officials penalized him severely for his poor marksmanship.

The burly Washington battler, durable enough to go ten rounds with Joe Louis, was a baffling problem to the lighter and speedier McCoy, who set the pace from start to finish.

McCoy concentrated on Brown's head and kept it rocking in almost every round with his accurate left and right hooks, none of which caused any great damage. Brown refused to lead and was content to charge in with bull-like force after McCoy gave his face and head a stylish shellacking.

Spencer and Barnett Meet Cox, MacKenzie

Washington golf fans will be treated to a strictly local exhibition match on Sunday at Beaver Dam, when Whiffy Cox and Roland MacKenzie, of Kenwood and Congressional, respectively, meet Bob Barnett, the Chevy Chase pro, and host mentor Cliff Spencer.

The match will start at 3 p. m. Cox, Barnett and Spencer will leave for Philadelphia next Monday to tune up for the True Temper Open, scheduled at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, June 24 to 26. Al Treder and Leo Walper are other local pros expected to play in the Quaker City event.

7-Year-Old Small Change Wins Feature

Leads Edith Walker by Full Length in Wayne Purse at Charles Town.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town Race Track, W. Va., June 16.—Claude Feltner's Small Change, winner of ten races last year, scored his second success of 1937 today in the running of the Wayne Purse, midweek feature at this mountain race track. The 7-year-old gelding was given an intelligent ride by Jockey L. Machado and defeated Edith Walker by a length. Five lengths farther back came Bromide, to take third money in the field of seven.

Small Change, operating in the role of a $5.60 favorite, hung up the time of 1:16 4-5—three-fifths of a second over the track record for the Charles Town course of slightly more than 6 furlongs.

The eight-race program was conducted in a cooling breeze and before a crowd of 4,500. Both the favorite and the long-shot players had their innings.

—Despite the fact that he broke Small Change on top of the field, Machado wisely did not attempt to match the fast pace of Bromide and Edith Walker. Instead, he took a grip on the son of Aromatic and awaited the final drive. Edith Walker, under the hustling of Sammy Palumbo, shook off Bromide to open a clear lead, but Machado finally went to work on Small Change and the veteran gelding responded to rush on to the wire in a manner that Edith Walker could not match.

—Those who played the "six-three" combination in the daily double were those who cashed a $28.80 mutuel. Can Bloom, under Garrett's handling, won the second race and Miss Troy completed the transaction with Root in the saddle, in the third race.

—Garrett had begun the program by winning with Roquepine, a $24.40 shot, that interfered with horses and barely missed disqualification.

Stepping In, owned by G. P. Sherman, made it two victories in as many days by winning the fourth race at the rather surprising price of $8.40. Jockey Manny Berg brought the gelding from off the pace of the favored Pageantry to win going away. Tell It was third.

Palumbo scored his first success of the day aboard Halloo, a $5.80 shot, in the fifth race5. The little Italian-American rider turned in a perfect saddle performance to save every inch of ground and then held the filly together long enough to stave off a closing rush of Lady Dunlin.

Porphyry, a badly beaten last in his most recent starts, turned in a vastly different performance in winning the sixth race today. The big gelding, shifting from Palumbo to Jockey J. R. Hill, ran his real race and downed, among others, Canynge and Miss Adeline. He paid a $6.20 mutuel.

Kepi, ancient son of Mad Hatter, knocked the talent in the day's finale by winning after a front running effort. He paid an $87 mutuel and was capably handled by Jockey Joe Sherry.

KEPI, showing startling improvement and well handled, was sent to the front at once, shook off challenges of BENGAY while being rated and withstood drive to stave off closing bid of HUPPY. The latter, forwardly placed, came through on rail entering stretch and closed gamely. LUCKY TURN, blocked while making bid at far turn, closed gamely on outside in final sixteenth. GOLDEN PLAY, well placed from beginning, faltered after moving up menacingly. BENGAY stopped after pressing the pace. McDONALD H. had early speed.

Dear Al:

Glenn Frey, of Laurel, who has charge of the Stevens concessions here, was a visitor to the press box this afternoon with an explanation of the "No water" incident that was contained in a letter from Benningite Brown. Frey said that on the holiday, several of the stands did not have running water and Brown probably asked at one of these. Since then water has been piped to all stands. H. C. Allnutt, Maryland sportsman, was a visitor at the track today with his bride. He said that his mare, Fair Sun, was in foal to Balko. Fair Sun has raced here at recent meetings. Jockey No Boy Jacobs was telling about the time he fell through a cellar door and almost broke his legs. "They took a picture of my legs here and they took a picture over here. They they moved the X-ray machine and took another picture on the slant," explained Jacobs, "by the time that guy was through with me, you'd thought he was taking a photo of my finish."

Jockey Leon Garrett will have five days of inactivity, the stewards having dealt him a suspension for that period as the result of failing to keep his mount straight in the stretch in the first race. Garrett has

Business Good, Sentiment Bad, Col. Ayres Says

Banker Calls 2d Quarter Period of Pessimistic Prosperity.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 16.—Characterizing the second quarter of 1937 as a period of "pessimistic prosperity," Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., points to the disagreement between business sentiment and business statistics.

In the Cleveland Trust Co. bulletin, Col. Ayres cites the fact that production has increased in volume, employment has advanced, wages have risen and profits have been larger, but despite this there has been talk of an expected recession.

Reason for the gloom is attributed to action of the security markets, which the banker says "never fails to produce gloom among business men even though their own affairs may be entirely unaffected by the price declines." This phenomenon is to be noted in the attitude of farmers, he continues, who are always deeply concerned about the price of wheat, even though they may not themselves raise a bushel of it.

In actual statistical terms, he says, business is running at levels about 18 per cent higher than a year ago. This figure was arrived at by taking an average of the changes from a year ago as shown by ten business indicators. Latest figures on steel production reflect decreases resulting from the strike, and there have been signs of lessened output of textiles, he explains, but with these exceptions almost all data of business are making favorable showings.

Home Building Gains.

Discussing home building, the Cleveland banker says that the volume of new residence construction now appears to be rapidly increasing after a long period of lagging activity. He attributes this to the fact house rents have risen to the point that new houses appear much more attractive investments than formerly. Though the costs of building have been increasing rapidly also, rents have gone forward even more rapidly, he declares.

In another section of the bulletin, Col. Ayres says that corporations have recorded in the last quarter the largest increases in earnings of the entire recovery period. He computed the earnings of 25 corporations, including such leaders as Telephone, General Motors, General Electric, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad and U. S. Steel.

"Their earnings this year may not bear out the prospects shown by the returns of the first quarter, but if they do they will nearly equal the high record of 1929 if that happens it is probable that dividend payments will exceed those of 1929," he concludes.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

Wheat Prices Decline After Early Advance

Receipts of Newly Harvested Crops Are in Liberal Volume.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 16.—Late setbacks of wheat prices today more than wiped out earlier gains that resulted from confirmation of immense crop damage by drought in Saskatchewan, Canada.

Predictions of showers likely to help Canadian wheat areas where drought has not been destructive were largely responsible for price reactions, and so, too, was smallness of export business in Canadian wheat, 500,000 bushels today. Meanwhile receipts of newly harvested domestic wheat Southwest were of liberal volume.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ¾@1¼ cents under yesterday's finish; July, 1.10⅛@1.10¾; September, 1.09½@1.09⅝; December, 1.18⅛@1.18¾; corn, 2½ cents off to ⅜ up; July, 1.11⅞@1.12⅛; September, 99¼@99½; December, 74¾@74⅞; oats, ⅛@¾ down; September, 35⅝, and rye showing ⅜@⅝ decline; September, 78⅞. Provisions closed 2 cents to 37 cents lower.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Close Irregularly Lower in Less Active Trading; U. S. Bonds Firm.

New York, June 16.—High-grade bonds did somewhat better, but the others followed stocks, which sold off a little at the close, after early firmness. Commodities were mixed. September wheat fell a cent to 109⅝ cents a bushel.

On the intangible side, the news of the day was about a standoff. The market was plainly disappointed at the President's stand with Lewis, although it might have been expected, but in spite of the numerous strikes, bombings and riotings now going on, the feeling seemed to have sprung up here and there that matters were nearing a climax, that the time for excesses was drawing near a close. However, the strikes are accentuating the seasonal recession in business, even though the full effects may not be felt right away.

Any tendency toward a relief that business might have felt from the progress of industrial labor troubles was held in check by the fresh reminder of the President that higher—much higher—taxes are in the offing for business. The Chief Executive reasserted his intention to redistribute the wealth and the incomes. It is far from clear how the national income is to be lifted by legislation or schemes if the Administration, except in so far as the pursuit of sound business policies, a balancing of the budget and correct monetary policy will help to restore confidence.

National Income.

National income can rise with an increase in production, but there will be some disagreement how that can be brought about with continual shortening of working hours, lifting of wages and living costs, and higher taxes bearing down on capitalistic interprise. The alternative will be to allow inflation to take its course, for that probably would give business a boom, if only for a while, with an aftermath of depression. Is the President hinting that instead of taking any deflationary steps he intends to hold an inflationary course?

As for redistribution of income, it may be that in spite of the disappointing tax collections this year, the Administration regards the undistributed profits tax as a means to that end. The theory is that business profits are paid out in toto to stockholders (who are supposed to be rich persons) and the Government takes much of it away from them on income tax and distributes it by relief and other projects. Presumably also it is planned to work for wage systems whereby the worker will get directly a large share of business profits. The outlook, however it may appear from a sociological point of view, is not exactly stimulating to business enterprise. It is equally dubious that the Administration can, as it again promises, hold the public debt at about its present level if it does anything to curtail corporation profits from which it derives so much of its revenues.

Trade News.

Midweek trade news moderately good. The Iron Age points out that no immediate adverse effects on steel mills will be produced either by interference with ore shipments or shutting down of coal mines, inasmuch as the steel companies concerned have ample supplies on hand. Steel scrap prices are declining and it is evident that strikes or no strikes the industry has passed its peak for this year.

Freight traffic last week improved after dropping below a year ago for the first time in the previous week. The Sun estimates that total carloadings were 10.6 per cent better than the preceding week and continued 11.5 per cent higher than the corresponding period of last year. The gain generally expected by most observers was quite remarkable inasmuch as the industrial unrest throughout the country has reached a point where ore and other traffic has been curtailed. In spite of this unrest the outlook is better than the first of the large grain movements near at hand.

New York Steam.

Somebody apparently had an inkling of new terms that Consolidated Edison is preparing to offer New York Steam preferred stockholders, or else general optimism prevailed. At any rate, both Steam preferreds advanced considerably. This time it can only be hoped the Public Service Commission will give the company some hint as to what might be approved before the terms are announced. Another break in Steam stocks on a possible refusal of the commission to permit an exchange would be a trifle too much.

British Humor.

Sir Josiah Stamp, just before his steamer shoved off for home, touched on a few of our economic problems. Saying he believed France would not withdraw from the three-party currency and gold agreement, he suggested that "the United States and Great Britain cannot carry France along with its budget position so far out of line."

Sir Josiah loves to maneuver his tongue in the side of his mouth, but he probably has too much delicacy to suggest that Great Britain cannot take care of two countries with budget deficits. He did lighten his habitual gravity sufficiently to observe that "at present, the whole world is willing to trust you (the United States) with their gold." As the only purchaser of gold and paying a price of $35 an ounce, Uncle Sam enjoys a trust that is little short of sublime.

Paramount.

Paramount broke the monotony of uneventful corporation stockholders' meetings this spring and summer by holding a lively session yesterday afternoon. Since a report on management was made last year, the Paramount stocks enjoyed a sharp rise, but ran into heavy liquidation some little distance above present prices. Presumably the improvement in earnings either had not come up to the expectations of the stock market, a fresh drain on them had set in, or an extensive market operation had taken place—or all three. At the meeting earnings were reported to have been holding up well, but the stockholders approved a bonus and salary compensation for one or two key figures in the management that will take care of a portion of the profits. Paramount sold lower today.

Margin Effect.

One of the street's astute traders says that there hasn't been a real shake-up of the market, which in the "old days" would come before another upward surge. This is chiefly because of the high margin requirement. More accounts are restricted with each drop of a point and margin calls have been more numerous, but there remain large sums waiting for the proper time. It is this enormous amount of willing money that has acted as a brake on prices, he believes.

Francs.

Spot francs were weak and sterling declined, but buying demand developed for franc futures. Possibly the speculative interests in the franc have taken fright at the plenary powers granted the French government to deal with the situation and feared a squeeze. That is what usually happens in the early stages of a fight to hold a sinking currency.

Home in the Courts.

The President says he sees one-third of the Nation ill-housed. His Home Owners Loan Corporation is foreclosing on homes of about half those to whom it lent money, and in many instances is asking for deficiency judgments

New York Now Trades In Pepper Futures

New York, June 16 (AP).—For the first time in the history of the New York Produce Exchange, a futures market was opened today for trading in black peper. Heretofore, the principal trading center for black pepper has been Mincing lane, in London. But now the center of the pepper. Heretofore, the principal York—at least, so the New York pepper brokers maintain.

The market opened active and upward. The first sale—after much ceremony and speech-making—was a September contract at 5.78 cents. Price changes are in units of 1-100th of a cent a pound. September futures rose quickly to 5.82. A contract calls for delivery of 33,600 pounds of Lampong black pepper.

Brokers Seek Raise in Rate Of Commission

Report From Special Exchange Committee Expected Shortly.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 16.—Reports in Wall street today said the New York Stock Exchange would consider shortly a proposal for a boost in commissions on stock transactions.

A special committee of Exchange members headed by E. A. Pierce has been studying the advisability of increasing brokers' fees, and informed quarters understood that its report, to be presented within the next week or two, would recommend upward revision of rates.

Brokers' complaints about profits have become more numerous since stock market activity worked into the doldrums several weeks ago. But even before the slump in trading volume from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 shares daily to a recent average of 500,000 to 600,000 shares, many Exchange members who execute orders for the public were said to feel the increasing costs of doing business justified a boost in commissions.

Operating expenses, it was contended, were not as easy to control as formerly because of labor and time involved in preparation of special statements and reports for the Exchange and Securities and Exchange Commission under the code of regulation.

Store Sales in May 8% Above Year Ago

Sales in retail stores during May totaled $3,600,000,000, an increase of 8 per cent over the sales volume of May, 1936, according to calculations made public yesterday by the American Retail Federation. Total retail sales during the first five months of this year were estimated at $16,000,000,000, an increase of $1,500,000,000 or about 10 per cent over the same period last year.

Sales in rural regions have made better gains than in urban sections. The rural retail sales index of the Department of Commerce indicates that dollar sales in rural regions have averaged about 12½ per cent above last year for the first five months, while department store sales, representative of urban business, have averaged about 11 per cent.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, June 16 (AP).—(United States Department of Agriculture).—Scattered sales of small to moderate volume were closed today on the Boston wool market. Prices were steady to firm, though wools were not taken freely. Good 12-month Texas wool was sold at 95@96 cents scoured basis. Some purchases were reported in the country on orders from buyers and the costs delivered to buyers in the East were figured slightly below current quotations on spot wools in Boston. Delivery of contracted Western wools sold some time ago continued to fill a large part of the needs of users of these wools.

Bailey Seeks Senate Watch On WPA Outlay

Proviso for Localities to Share Cost Meets Wall of Opposition.

machine, not to God in Heaven. And I do not intend to worship before the altars behind which they minister as high priests."

Earlier, both Bailey and Byrnes had tangled with Wagner on their claims that New York was getting more than its share of relief funds. Bailey said that out of $2,774,000,000 of relief funds, New York had received a total of $506,000,000 and that New York and Pennsylvania together had received $800,000,000, or more than 25 per cent of the total.

Wagner arose to dispute hotly figures cited by Byrnes.

"This problem should not be handled in a provincial way," said Wagner. "It is a national problem, and the question is: 'Where does the need exist?'"

Byrnes Denies Criticism.

While Bailey attacked Hopkins, and charged "there has been padding of unemployment rolls to get projects," Byrnes said he had no criticism to make of relief administration. He said he thought Hopkins had done a "fine" job. He replied with heat to McKellar's contention that advocates of the Byrnes proposal were not putting proper "trust" in the President.

"I believe my record during the past four years makes certain there could be no distrust on my part of the President," Byrnes said.

"The emergency which caused us to give a lump sum to the President, without ever seeking to provide how it should be expended, has passed," he continued. Pointing to the $35,000,000,000 Treasury indebtedness, "thanks to the generosity of the Government," he added:

"The situation certainly is one that demands our attention, for it does not require any higher mathematics to see that a drop of five points in the bonds held by the banks of the country would cause a loss to the banks of approximately $1,000,000,000."

Both Byrnes and Bailey argued that city and State budgets were balanced, but the Federal budget would continue out of line until the relief problem is solved.

McNary Suggests 25 Per Cent.

A suggested compromise on the Byrnes 40 per cent amendment came from Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary. McNary thought 40 per cent too high a figure. But he favored high local contributions and said he would vote for 25 per cent.

La Follette told the Senate $1,500,000,000 was "totally inadequate" to meet relief requirements. He denied "recovery" had returned to the bulk of the population, and said relief needs were higher than indicated by unemployment figures.

The Wisconsin Progressive said he had been informed that relief rolls would be slashed 427,359 by July 15 if the $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation is approved. He said rolls stood at 2,043,696 on May 8, but a quota of 1,665,477 has been fixed for July 15.

La Follette's figures showed District rolls at 6,787 on May 8, and destined to be further cut to 6,095 by July 15. Maryland, with 12,160 on relief rolls May 8, and Virginia, with 21,930, would be reduced 2,055 and 2,820, respectively.

He said released workers would not find employment in private industry, but would be "dumped on the already meager resources of States and localities."

Foreign Exchange.

The French franc held steady in foreign exchange markets yesterday following action of the Chamber of Deputies according the government decree powers to combat the financial crisis.

In New York, after sagging slightly at the opening, the unit improved and was quoted at 4.45⅛ cents, unchanged from Tuesday's close. In London it closed at 110.87 francs to the pound, a small gain over yesterday's level at 110.91.

Indicative of lessened fears over the franc's future was the fact that in both New York and London the discount on 90-day future sales narrowed perceptibly. At the opening in New York it was quoted at .23 of a cent, but in later dealings shrunk to .19 of a cent.

Most other currencies were inactive in New York trading. The pound sterling declined ⅛ of a cent at $4.93¾, while the Swiss franc, at 22.91 cents, Netherlands guilder, 54.99 cents, and Canadian dollar, 99.96 cents, were unchanged.

In London the dollar added ¼ cent to close at 4.93¼ to the pound, which compared with the New York overnight rate of 4.93⅜. It finished in Paris at the equivalent of 4.450 cents to the franc against the New York overnight rate of 4.433 cents.

Colored Boy Joins Annapolis Middies As Second of Race

Annapolis, Md., June 16 (AP).—George J. Trivers, of Chicago, became today the second colored midshipman at the Naval Academy in more than 50 years.

An appointee of Representative Arthur W. Mitchell, colored (Democrat, First Illinois), Trivers took the oath of a midshipman along with 40 others enrolled at the same time. He received his uniform and was assigned a room at the Academy. If he successfully completes the four-year course there he will become an officer in the Navy or Marine Corps. He would be the first colored youth ever to be graduated from the Academy.

James Lee Johnson, jr., of Washington, the only other colored youth appointed to the Academy in its modern history, resigned in February because of academic failures. Johnson, also an appointee of Mitchell, entered the Academy a year ago.

Several other colored youths have been appointed to the Academy, but failed to pass the entrance examinations, physical or otherwise.

Curb Prices Dip In Light Trading

New York, June 16 (AP).—Curb stocks found few friends in a quiet session today as most issues drifted fractionally lower. While traders scanned the domestic and foreign news for encouraging signs curb shares wilted under a complete lack of interest.

The utility department was a loser with Electric Bond & Share, United Gas, American Superpower and American Gas & Electric off fractions. Aluminum Co. of America slid off a point to close at 134 and Nicamerican Cyanamid "B" at 31, down ½.

Pointing down were Cord Corporation, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., McWilliams Dredging, Technicolor, Montgomery Ward "A" and United Wall Paper. Some evidence of support was noticed in the oil group where Sunray, Venezuela Petroleum, Creole and Leonard Oil lifted a little. Turnover shrank to 178,000 shares compared with 237,000 Tuesday.

Foreign Markets.

London, June 16 (AP).—Trading in today's stock market was on a larger scale and industrial shares were firm with rubber issues in good demand. Oils and mining securities sold higher, especially the gold issues. Transatlantic shares were in good demand, and reacted slightly from the high prices of the day. German bonds were strong.

Paris, June 16 (AP).—The Bourse closed with a heavy tone, although government bonds were firm, rentes finishing with gains of 3 to 85 centimes. Bank of France issue lost 145 francs. Royal Dutch declined 91 francs and Suez Canal was weak with a loss of 845 francs from Tuesday's close.

Liverpool, June 16 (AP).—Wheat futures closed firm, 3½d to 3¾d net higher. The market advanced on a bullish Canadian government report, active Continental buying and dry weather in the Argentine. Cotton futures advanced 9 to 14 points on the more favorable French financial advices and less favorable weather reports from the American cotton belt.

BIRTHPLACE OF ADMIRAL WINFIELD SCOTT SCHLEY
One of the best farms in Frederick Co., Maryland. Now owned by J. W. Fout—containing 156 acres, with one mile of U. S. No. 15 Route frontage. 3 miles from Frederick, Md., on the splendid highway to Gettysburg, Pa.
Will Be Sold in Two Sections
AT AUCTION ON THE FARM
Saturday, June 19, 1937, at 3 P. M.
This Old Colonial Home is attractive and in splendid condition. Hardwood floors, first floor, hot-water heat, electric bath. The room where the Admiral was born is interesting indeed. Many features throughout this lovely place should attract those who have in mind the dream of a lifetime where comfort is the first word, large portico from which you obtain a gorgeous view. The shrubbery and beautiful lawn add much in value.
One of the best dairy barns in the State. Basement under the entirety. This large barn has only been erected a few years, it has recently been painted. Nearly new silo, capacity over 100 tons, milk and creamery house, up-to-date, large machinery sheds, garages, tool shop, corn houses, other small buildings, poultry houses, all buildings have been painted in the last few weeks.
One of the best and most valuable farms in the good old State of Maryland. Road frontage. Worth thousands of dollars divided into one-acre plots. One mile of road frontage on U. S. Route, so near absolutely to just one of the best cities in any State, namely, Frederick, Md. There is about one mile of frontage on Monocacy River, where there is fish aplenty.
SOLD IN TWO SECTIONS
No. 1—Containing 80 acres of splendid soil. Never-failing spring of water.
No. 2—Containing all the buildings and over 70 acres of land, also never-failing springs of water.
Going with the sale of this desirable farm is 15 acres of wheat, about 40 acres of yellow corn, all the hay, all the manure, all the wheat, and barley straw from 57 acres.
Notice: Mr. and Mrs. Fout have arrived at the age where they desire to retire, therefore, here is an opportunity that presents itself to those who want to make a safe and profitable investment, because this farm is a real producer. The potential value of this purchase exceeds anything this auction company has ever handled in conducting many thousands of sales.
One more special mention. The drinking water from the driven wells is superior. Mr. Fout will manage the farm until the new purchaser makes other arrangements. The purchaser has the opportunity to purchase all of the valuable personal property consisting of a large dairy herd of cattle, horses, hogs, poultry, machinery and tools at a reasonable figure.
Conditions: 10% of the purchase price is to be paid when the property is bid off. The balance and final settlement is to be made on or before Thursday August the 19th, 1937. There can be attractive terms arranged in the purchase of this valuable farm.

On the Air Today

It has taken Jeanette MacDonald a long time to make up her mind about affixing her signature to a radio-series contract, but she did it. The singing star of filmdom has signed for her first broadcast with the Vick's Open House show, to be inaugurated in September.

J. L. Rawlinson, radio director for the sponsor, in addition to signing Miss MacDonald, has arranged to bring Miss Grace Moore and Nelson Eddy on the same program. He was successful in persuading both the new star and her predecessors to sing on a weekly radio program, although all three had previously refused to sign for a series.

Having appeared several times as guest-star, Miss MacDonald was favorably impressed with the manner in which both Miss Moore and Eddy were presented on the air and she agreed to become the third noted singer to be introduced each week on the Open House program.

Kate Smith lends her hand in helping two young persons who all this year have had roles in eminent plays, but always as supporting players. Miss Betty Garde and Ray Collins are the fortunate players. New York, June 16 (U.P.).—The Normandie was ready to sail at noon today with 1,596 passengers. Ready, that is, until Gurtta Drimer, 9, who had gone aboard with her parents to say bon voyage to some friends, got lost. Five hundred members of the crew searched the entire ship. Oklahoma Storm Can't Keep Garner From Texas Fish

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 16 (AP).—Headed for Texas and "big fish," Vice President John N. Garner couldn't be bothered by a rainstorm here today. En route to his Uvalde, Tex., home from Washington for a vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Garner and their chauffeur purchased gasoline at the filling station of G. B. Moncreif.

The Vice President asked Moncreif to send a telegram for him to an Amarillo, Tex., friend announcing his intention to drive straight through despite the storm.

"Well, I see you're going down after the big fish," Moncreif said to Garner. He quoted the Vice President as replying, "Yes, and I'll give them hell when I get there, too."
